The Debts, Once More.
Nullifying the Presidency.
Earth's Biggest Theater.
If All the Tired Died.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

FOURTEEN YEARS ago yesterday Woodrow Wilson, President of the United States, arrived in Paris, to look after peace details and start the world on a happy journey, with democracy forever safe.

He would read with interest the news that France declines to pay money borrowed from Uncle Sam, in the glorious war enthusiasm.

PRESIDENT HOOVER, remembering how many American millions were used, by him, to feed Belgium, must be amused to learn that Belgium declines to pay the small amount due Uncle Sam today.

Benjamin Franklin, intelligent American, warned us long ago:

"Who goes a-borrowing, goes a-sorrowing."

He does not, necessarily, if he defaults.

THE BOOK of Proverbs says, "The borrower is servant to the lender," but our European friends have found a way to get around that.

Uncle Sam might write on his cuff Shakespeare's warning:

"Neither a borrower nor a lender be.
"For loan oft loses both itself and friend."

FORTUNATELY WE can afford to smile as friends that fawned and borrowed, expressing eternal gratitude, now turn their backs, saying in diplomatic language:

"Try and get it."

If we had no worries more serious than the loss of a few hundred millions in gold, we need not worry much. Our real trouble is not inability to extract gold from foreign countries, but inability to make our own marvelous gold and prosperity producing machinery work in the old way.

But that will come back.

YOU REMEMBER, back in 1914, all the horror about treating a solemn agreement between nations as a "scrap of paper." When Uncle Sam was helping Europe to yell about that, he could not imagine that in 1932 an agreement to pay billions of dollars lent to friends in distress would be treated as another "scrap of paper."

THE SENATE of the United States yesterday refused, 44 to 37, La Follette and Blaine, of Wisconsin voting with the Democrats, to confirm any further nominations by President Hoover.

The Senate has a right to exercise its constitutional power as it chooses. Whether it has the right to deprive the President of the United States, during several months, of power to exercise functions that belong to his office, is a question.

Confirmation by the Senate is supposed to depend on the fitness of the appointee. It is in the nature of a conspiracy not to confirm under any circumstances, regardless of fitness, and that might possibly be made to interest the Supreme Court.

M. H. AYLESWORTH, head of National Broadcasting and the R. K. O. Company, controlling the two gigantic theaters in John D. Rockefeller's New York "center," showed the two theaters to this reporter yesterday.

They will interest you when you see them, particularly the radio music hall.

The biggest stage and biggest theater in the world, with 6,250 seats, is so vast that you find it difficult to believe your eyes.

Only a few big things in the world come up to your expectations. Mr. Aylesworth's music hall is one of them.

A COMBINATION of electricity and the science of acoustics makes an ordinary voice on the stage distinctly audible from every seat in the theater.

No pictures will be shown in that biggest theater in the world, only performances by living human beings.

It was pleasing yesterday to see one or two hundred young ladies, in rehearsal, practicing their charming accomplishments, singing, dancing, nearly all of them with legs quite bare and very athletic.

MRS. EMMA HODGES, 53 years old, turned on four gas jets in a little furnished room and died, first removing to a safe distance a cage containing two canaries. The woman was found dead, sitting in a chair, near her a note which read, "I am tired," and said nothing more.

If all those that are tired should leave the world, how the population would drop, considering all the ways of being tired—tired of hard work, tired of disappointment, tired of disillusionment, tired of ambitions unfulfilled.

Fortunately the dominant "instinct of self preservation" keeps the majority here.

MRS. FRANKLIN D. ROOSEVELT said:

"The average girl of today faces the problem of learning, very young, how much she can drink of such things as whisky and gin, and sticking to the proper quantity."

Temperance ladies of Kansas and Cleveland, O., object, saying the statement "must have startled thousands of thoughtful American women."

Mrs. Roosevelt's statement doesn't startle those thousands of American women half as much as it startles them to see a daughter come home, who has NOT learned "the proper quantity" of gin or whisky that she can drink.

CHAIN GANG FUGITIVE ARRESTED

N. J. Governor Denies Promise to Protect Author of Film

NEWARK, N. J., Dec. 15.—(AP.)—Robert Elliott Burns—"I am a fugitive from a chain gang"—is no longer a fugitive, but a prisoner in a police cell.

Burns, who attained nationwide prominence by his book and the motion picture based on his experiences, was arrested quietly last night. A member of the Georgia Prison Commission said at Atlanta that the southern state would make an effort to return Burns to that state at once.

Counsel for Burns, however, promised a fight to prevent extradition and word was awaited from Gov. A. Harry Moore to learn what action he would take.

MOORE WANTS FACTS

Gov. Moore said today:

"I will hear the case on its merits. Until I have had the facts formally presented to mt I cannot say what my decision will be. The situation is somewhat unusual. Georgia has not submitted a requisition for Burns' return to my office."

Mr. Moore said that Burns' statements that he had been guaranteed protection from the Georgia authorities, were untrue, adding:

"I have made no promise not to return Burns.

"However, he has probably served enough time for his offense, which I understand was minor."

Burns called on Gov. Moore yesterday prior to arrest. He told the Governor he had heard Georgia had increased the reward for his arrest to $450 and would shortly seek to have him extradited.

Burns was held in $25,000 bail to await decision on extradition.

TWO YEARS IN N. J.

Burns had made no apparent effort to hide, and although he was known to have been in New Jersey over two years there had been no request for his arrest.

Burns came here from Pittsburgh, September 7, 1930, only a few days after he escaped from the Troup County (Ga.) prison camp, and has lived in this vicin-

SOCIETY SCION, 12, HANGS SELF

WESTPORT, Conn., Dec. 15.—(INS.)—Robert Glover, 12-year-old son of Mrs. Katherine Glover, chief of the editorial staff of the White House Conference on Child Health, hanged himself by a belt today in the home of Remington Schuyler, widely known artist.

Mrs. Glover, socially prominent, was immediately notified in Washington, where she was attending a White House conference.

Dazed by the tragedy, Schuyler was unable to give police any likely reason for young Glover's act. He had always known the boy as an intense student, the artist said, and probably worry over examinations had distracted his young mind. He was a high school honor student.

Judge Smith Makes First Jury Charge

The first jury charged by Judge Ralph H. Smith, newly appointed to the bench in Common Pleas Court, brought in a verdict today awarding $3,000 to Nick Pugliano, of 1626 Forbes street, in his suit for damages against Harold F. Virden, of 39 Creighton avenue, Crafton. Pugliano sued for injuries he said he received when Virden's automobile struck him October 21, 1930.

Cupid Tackles Second Pitt Star; Munjas Wed

MRS. MILLER MUNJAS

Wheeling Girl Secret Bride of Gridder; Co-eds Warned

Cupid 2, Pitt 0.

That is the story of the rout of Pitt's heretofore unbeaten football team by that little guy with the arrow.

The second victim is Miller Munjas, sophomore quarterback. It became known today that 12 days ago Miller and his childhood sweetheart were more or less secretly married in the parish house of St. James' Catholic Church at McMechen, W. Va. She's Bernice Foley, of Wheeling, W. Va.—just across the river from Munjas' home in Bellaire, O.

Munjas enjoyed a quiet chuckle when he read in the Sun-Telegraph Tuesday that Warren Heller, Pitt's All-America halfback, was engaged—but not married—to Irene Malindzak, Pitt co-ed.

The newlyweds are living in an apartment at 226 Craig street. In a few days Munjas will have to leave his bride to go to the coast with the Pitt squad for the New Years game with Southern California.

Not too seriously Mrs. Munjas hopes the Pitt co-eds will recognize Miller's new status. But Miller reassures her:

"Don't worry about the co-eds. I only hope I'll be allowed to stay on the team."

NEAR-ZERO WEATHER ON WAY

Cold Wave Widespread In Nation, Takes Toll of Lives

The coldest weather in nearly two years is headed for this district as chills ran down the nation's spine from Duluth to Dixie, according to Forecaster W. S. Brotzman.

Pittsburgh's official thermometer is scheduled to drop to between zero and 5 degrees above tonight, according to the Weaher Bureau.

Duluth reported 20 degrees below. Rice Lake, Wis., was colder, an unofficial temperature of 30 degrees below. In the Chicago district, with the mercury at 3 below, several persons froze to death.

The last time the mercury dropped to zero here was January 19, 1930, Weather Bureau records show.

With the fall in temperature, Pittsburgh was assured of clear weather for the next 24 hours.

Five Killed, Seven Hurt In Coasting Accidents

Coasting casualties mounted in the Pittsburgh district today, with five dead and seven injured in collisions between sleds and automobiles.

TEAR GAS GANG ROBS N. Y. BANK

NEW YORK, Dec. 15.—(AP.)—Five robbers held up a branch of the Bank of Manhattan Trust Company at One Hundred and Sixty-ninth street and St. Nicholas avenue shortly after it opened for business this morning and fled with approximately $15,000 in cash.

They covered their retreat by hurling tear gas bombs into the bank as they left, and drove away in a waiting automobile.

The manager, assistant manager, paying teller and three women employes were in the bank when the robbers entered. The manager was forced to open the vault while the other employes were covered with the robbers' revolvers. Two of the women fainted when the tear gas bombs were thrown.

Ely, Old Yale Star, Makes Death Plunge

NEW YORK, Dec. 15.—(AP.)—Morris U. Ely, 57, an attorney and one-time Yale football player, fell to his death today from the tenth floor of the Yale Club. After reading two notes left in the club's writing room, police authorities said it was suicide.

SIX NATIONS PAY, FIVE DEFAULT

Washington Considers Retaliatory Steps Against France

Associated Press.

Almost $100,000,000 of war debt installments were marked paid today in Washington. Six nations honored their obligation, but five others defaulted.

In Paris, Camille Chautempts accepted the French premiership after Edouard Herriot, overthrown on the debt issue, had refused to organize a new cabinet.

When London, with no ceremony, announced the transfer of $95,550,000 in gold to American credit, the populace responded with patriotic thrill to flaring headlines that "Britain Pays."

Berlin reacted to the French default with newspaper declarations that France had broken the sanctity of treaties and in one instance that Germany was no longer morally bound to comply with the Versailles treaty.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 15.—(AP.)—The United States today collected the war debt payments from six nations while five, unable to pay or determined not to, went into default.

Great Britain was first to have its transfer announced, Secretary Mills receiving official word that the Bank of England had earmarked $95,550,000 of gold for American credit and had instructed the Federal Reserve Bank of New York to remit to the Treasury.

Through the same New York agency the Treasury expected to get Italy's $1,245,437; Czechoslovakia's $1,500,000; Finland's $186,235; Latvia's $148,852 and Lithuania's $92,386.

A Prophecy Fulfilled

(The following signed article by William Randolph Hearst is reprinted from the News-Chronicle of London of the issue of June 24, 1931, and from the Hearst newspapers of June 26, 1931. It was published then under the heading, "Mr. Hearst Discusses the Proposed War Debt Moratorium.")

THERE IS AN old saw which says:

"I had some money and a friend, I loaned my money to my friend, I lost my money and my friend."

The nations of Europe were in dire distress during the late great war.

The Allies asked financial and military aid from the United States. The Allies sent delegations to the United States speaking literally these words:

"Our backs are against the wall—come to our aid and come quickly."

The United States came to the aid of the Allies with money and men.

It loaned the Allies money they needed to prosecute the war and without that money they could not have effectually continued the war.

And in addition to the billions loaned the Allies, America spent billions on its own armies.

Those American armies decided the outcome of the war—they saved England—they saved France—they saved Italy and the minor Allies from German domination.

The Allies realized it at the time and acknowledged it at the time and at the time professed eternal gratitude and eternal remembrance.

IT IS EASY to be grateful while receiving favors. It is difficult to be grateful or even mindful after the favors cease.

France, England and Italy speedily forgot that America had saved them and in order to make forgetting easier, proceeded speedily to deny that America had rendered any great service.

It was not so easy for America to forget. American citizens had billions upon billions to pay in yearly taxes in order that bonds issued by the American government should be redeemed.

Those bonds were issued to find money to loan the Allies, and also to find money to maintain our armies and to send men abroad to save the Allies.

The American people are bowed under the weight of taxes which they incurred in order to send money and armies abroad to serve and save the Allies in a war which was not an American but particularly a European war.

THE AMERICAN people have a constant reminder of their generosity—and folly.

The Allies, however, forgot to be grateful and Uncle Santa Claus became Uncle Shylock.

Then the Allies began to beg and scheme for remission of their debts to the United States.

England was most mindful of her obligation and most honorable in the discharge of it.

Italy pleaded poverty; but she is not too poor to maintain a great military establishment in preparation for the next war.

France took the simple and direct road of repudiation. She would pay what she pleased and when she pleased and if she pleased. So America would be lucky to get half of what was owed her.

Now America will probably not get that. She may not get ANYTHING.

AN AGITATION HAS been set afoot by international bankers and debtor nations which they represent to revise further the war debts.

Revision is an euphonious word. It means, of course, reduction.

Nobody is stupid enough to believe that war debts will be "revised" upwards.

Nobody is simple enough to imagine that the Allies want to pay MORE than has been agreed upon.

No, the Allies want to pay less. They want to take more of the burden of THEIR war off THEMSELVES and place more of the burden on the bent backs of the American people.

The Allies want to save their money for future wars.

Let America pay for the last one.

Italy wants to increase her army and navy.

England wants to maintain her domination of the seas.

France wants to continue to subsidize Poland

RATES URGED BY CITIZENS ADOPTED

Millage on Buildings 10.3, on Land 20.6; Pay Cuts Loom

City Council today directed a blow at Mayor Charles H. Kline's administration and his proposed $25,000,000 budget when it voted a 10 per cent tax reduction, setting the 1933 tax millage at 20.6 mills on land and 10.3 mills on buildings. The land levy was cut 2.4 mills and the building rate 1.2 mills.

To effect the decreased millage, adopted on recommendation of the special Citizens' Tax Source Committee, Council will have to reduce the Kline budget to approximately $20,073,000.

BIG SAVING TO OWNERS

The reduction will mean a saving of $2.40 on each $1,000 of land valuation and $1.20 on each $1,000 of building valuation.

The lower millage was voted on motion of Councilman Harry A. Little and brought approval of representatives of the civic and business bodies which have fought for the reductions.

President John S. Herron indicated the 1933 budget will be set up by Council next Thursday and declared:

"I think the time is past to expect any aid from the directors."

Little's motion to cut taxes was seconded by Councilman Robert Garland.

Little said:

"When we consider that we have the benefit of thought and study of some busy men on the committee of taxation, the Real Estate Board and the Building Managers' Association and all of them unanimously agree that a tax decrease is highly desirable, all of us being fully aware that to bring this about, eliminations, consolidations and some dismissals and a substantial wage reduction must follow, I feel that we can safely bring about a 10 per cent reduction in the present millage, setting it at 20.6 mills on land and 10.3 mills on buildings."

CUT HELD JUSTIFIED

Councilman P. J. McArdle said while such a rate might bring about a deficit the justification for it would be in the relief it would furnish in these distressing times.

Action came quickly after the budget meeting was called to or-

HELPING HAND AIDS 621,651

More than a million meals were served and a half million men sheltered at the Helping Hand, during the past year, Joseph C. Trees, general chairman of the organization told members of the Chamber of Commerce at their noon luncheon today. He said:

"During the year 1932 we served 1,675,359 meals and lodged 621,651 men."

Trees explained the total operation cost of the association at 439 Water street has been 8.15 cents per day per man and has saved the city countless thousands of dollars. He said:

"It has taken hundreds of men off the streets at night who otherwise would have to panhandle, rob and steal to sustain life. It has kept many from becoming criminals who would have had no other alternative.

"It has saved the city many thousands of dollars that would have been needed for additional police protection and the expense of court trials of criminals. It has saved our citizens from being held up, and possibly beaten and shot."

3.2 PER CENT BEER APPROVED IN HOUSE COMMITTEE

$5 TAX VOTED IN SECRET SESSION

Garner Clears Way for Floor Action With Passage Indicated

By WILLIAM S. NEAL
International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 15.—Legalized beer of 3.2 alcoholic content and a $5 a barrel tax was approved by the House Ways and Means Committee in secret sessions today.

The committee made unexpected progress on the Collier beer and light wines bill after seven days of hearings, with indications it might be reported out of the committee today.

4 PER CENT VOLUME

The 3.2 per cent of alcohol by weight—equal to 4 per cent by volume—was approved without a record vote, according to Representative Bacharach (Rep.), of New Jersey. No vote was taken on the 2.75 per cent provided in the Collier bill. Bacharach said:

"It seemed to be fairly unanimous to have the 3.2 per cent if we have the bill."

He made the motion for this content.

The $5-a-barrel tax was voted 16 to 7, he said. There was a sharp division on the tax, some wets favoring a higher tax.

GARNER CLEARS WAY

Speaker Garner was prepared to give the beer bill right of way. Reports to Democratic leaders indicated the bill will be passed by Wednesday.

The attitude of President Hoover still remained a secret.

Protection for dry states in any repeal resolution adopted by the Senate appeared likely today following the first meeting of a Senate Judiciary Sub-Committee called for the purpose of drafting a compromise measure for repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment.

Senator Walsh (Dem.), of Montana, said the sentiment of the sub-committee generally was in favor of including provisions to protect the dry states from the liquor traffic of wet states once the Eighteenth Amendment is repealed.

LEADER OF DRYS SEES 'PERIL'

WASHINGTON, Dec. 15.—(AP.)—Dr. Clarence True Wilson, in his report as secretary of the board of temperance, prohibition and public morals of the Methodist Episcopal Church, made public today, said "prohibition is in grave danger," but declared this was due to "capture of organizations and educational agencies by the wets" and predicted "a terrible reaction."

The board has just concluded its annual meeting here. Primary responsibility for maintenance of temperance "rests definitely upon the Christian Church," the report said. It called for every local church to organize in defense of prohibition.

In his report, Wilson expressed his opinion that President-elect Roosevelt "is conscientious in his views and a man of high ideals," and added:

"We will find ourselves in direct conflict with him over prohibition, but it will be in the open, on the square, and carry no personal implications."

Mexico Will Quit League of Nations

GENEVA, Dec. 15.—(AP.)—Mexico sent the League of Nations notice of withdrawal today, effective two years hence, alleging financial difficulties.

The note said the action was not meant to indicate Mexico did not desire to co-operate in league activities, but that, in view of the economic situation, it was obliged to give such notice under terms of the covenant.

Luke Visions Senate As 'House of David'

Ban on Barbershop May Save Members 'Close Shave'

Fears that the State Senate may look like a House of David were expressed today by Pittsburgh's funster, Luke Barnett, as members faced a hard winter without the private barber shop maintained by the commonwealth.

Gov. Pinchot yesterday refused to approve a $25,000 appropriation for the Legislature that provides for the shop as well as face lotions, choice of soaps, shoe polish, fountain pens, clothes and shoe brushes, and other gewgaws. State Treasurer Edward Martin has joined Pinchot in withholding approval.

While taxpayers wondered why members of the House never had advantage of a barber shop, the Senators of the future were visioned by Barnett as follows:

"If the barber shop passes out, visitors to the next session at Harrisburg are probably going to think the House of David is sitting in the Senate. Then again, maybe with all the recent political upsets, Pinchot might just be wanting to save some of the boys a close shave."

State Senator Herman P. Brandt, expressing disinterest in what might happen, remarked:

"I don't think Pinchot cares about our faces, but wants us to have pure hearts. I'm in sympathy with the idea. But I believe in economies and to that end I'm considering offering a bill to reduce salaries from the Governor down through the Legislature to the County Commissioners."

Senator Frank J. Harris, noncommittal, said:

"I know there is a barber shop, but I have never made use of it during the five sessions I have served."

James W. Bamford, who has led the Building Owners and Managers' Association fight for lower taxes, commented:

"That is not alone class legislation, but distinctive class legislation. There are plenty of other fool expenditures that can be eliminated. Foolish spending must be stopped."

GUARD CAPITAL VET MARCH

WASHINGTON, Dec. 15.—(AP.)—A guard of 25 additional metropolitan policemen today was stationed at the White House, with a still larger force held in reserve, after reports were received that a group of bonus marchers intended to visit the executive mansion.

Police had reports that more than 100 members of the "rank and file" veterans would visit Arlington Cemetery and then return toward the White House.

Police officers said the marchers would be allowed to approach no nearer than three or four blocks away from the White House.

Meanwhile, silently and in good order, a column of about 150 demonstrators marched through the downtown section of the capital under the watchful eyes of police.

The leaders bore a red wreath on which shone in gilt letters the name "Hushka"—in honor of the bonus marcher who died from a police bullet received in the rioting of last July.

Gibson Girl and Baby To Have Secluded Home

NEW YORK, N. Y., Dec. 15—(Universal.)—The baby which precipitated Rockland County's recent "modern youth" trial, in which Sidney Homewood, young riding master, was convicted of the betrayal of Charlotte Gibson, 23-year-old society girl, is expected to be born Sunday, it was learned today.

The Gibson family, feeling their honor vindicated by the conviction of Homewood, have announced their intention of adopting Charlotte's baby, and taking both mother and child some place far away from the scene of the girl's tragedy.

The Gibson home has been listed with realtors for immediate sale.

Meanwhile attorneys for Homewood continued their efforts to have the jury's verdict set aside on the ground that one of the jurors, Philip Kohler, was prejudiced because, almost 20 years ago, he had brought similar charges against a young man accused of betraying a girl relative.

Unless he wins a new trial, Homewood will be sent to Sing Sing Monday.

6 NATIONS PAY, 5 OTHERS DEFAULT

day, nevertheless France, Belgium, Poland, Esthonia, and Hungary let their opportunity to pay go by and the Treasury was prepared to record the $26,212,511 due from these countries as unpaid.

Another nation, Greece, on November 10 failed to meet a $444,920 payment and today it was indicated that she would also pass up a payment due January 1.

None of the $124,934,421 being paid today will come into the Treasury in the form of bullion for the present. Payment, officials explained, is this time just a bookkeeping entry, the remittances being credited to the account of the United States probably in the New York Federal Reserve Bank.

The latter will probably withdraw the foreign gold a bit at a time, as no single shipment totaling the $95,550,000 being transferred by Great Britain could be insured.

U. S. Considers Retaliatory Steps Against France

WASHINGTON, Dec. 15.—(INS.)—Stirred as it has not been since war days, Washington today began consideration of retaliatory steps against France for her defiant default on her debt payment of $19,000,000, due at the U. S. Treasury today.

In and out of Congress, indignation ran high. And the view was generally taken that by her unprecedented act France has eliminated herself from participation in the benefits of any future readjustment of the whole debt structure. Opinion was universal that there can be no further negotiations with France until she meets this payment.

DEFAULT ASSAILED

One official said:

"You can't deal with a defaulter."

Leading senators agree that France's repudiation of her debt technically places her in the same category with Soviet Russia, which has been denied American recognition for 10 years for that very "sin."

There are various other methods by which France can be "punished" for her default.

Already one resolution has been introduced in Congress to bar from this country the securities of any foreign country which defaults on its solemn obligations to the United States. There will be scores of other retaliatory measures introduced in succeeding weeks unless the debtors take steps to rectify their defaults.

TALK OF BOYCOTT

The speculation and talk concerning these measures ran all the way from a boycott on French goods to the prevention of American tourists from spending the millions of dollars they annually spend in France. In the past few years, the American tourist trade has been worth from $400,000,000 to $600,000,000 a year, or many times the relatively insignificant sum of $19,000,000 which France has refused to pay.

Senator David A. Reed, of Pennsylvania, in commenting upon the resolution to bar French securities from this country, sarcastically observed that he didn't think it was necessary. He said:

"Anybody who would buy a French security after this doesn't deserve to have any money."

Chautemps Asked to Form New French Cabinet

PARIS, Dec. 15—(AP.)—Camille Chautemps, minister of the interior in Premier Herriot's cabinet, told President Lebrun this evening that he would try to form a new government.

Herriot, overthrown for insisting on payment of the debt installment to the United States, previously had refused an invitation to form a new cabinet.

The three gunmen last night invaded the home of Postmaster Thomas Wharrie where the police chief happened to be a visitor. After unsuccessfully attempting to force Wharrie to divulge information concerning mail addressed to the local bank, the bandits left with Pierard.

and the Little Entente and be able to put eight million (8,000,000) men in the field in the next war. The figures are Lloyd George's, and are accurate.

SO, THESE European nations cannot afford to pay their honest debts.

Moreover, they think America is an easy mark and they think rightly, because an American President has made a more preposterous suggestion regarding the payment—or rather non-payment of the debt—than any foreign nation has made.

The European nations have asked for further reduction of debts. Mr. Hoover has proposed the equivalent of their cancellation.

Every informed person realizes and every statesman whom I have talked with over here frankly admits that if payments of this debt to America by foreign nations are interrupted now THEY WILL NEVER BE RESUMED.

The moratorium will be first extended over a period and then made permanent, either by consent or by definite refusal to pay.

THE WHOLE DEBT SITUATION CAN NEVER BE REOPENED AND RENEGOTIATED UNDER PRESENT CIRCUMSTANCES AND CONDITIONS.

Europe's sense of gratitude has become more and more feeble and her faculty for forgetting more and more robust.

MR. HOOVER'S plan for debt cancellation has been received with joy by the nations whose debts will be cancelled; but I doubt if it will be received with any satisfaction in America, where the people need these payments to help relieve them of their financial distress.

Mr. Hoover could be elected President today of almost any country in Europe, but can he be re-elected in the country whose rights he has surrendered and whose welfare he has jeopardized?

I do not think so.

The international bankers, of course, are rigging the market in the effort to make it appear that failure to receive the money due them is going to make the American people prosperous; but the American people are not fools. They are mostly business people and they know that you prosper by GETTING what is due you, not by GIVING IT AWAY.

Every corner groceryman knows that he would go into bankruptcy if he cancelled all the accounts which are owed him.

None of the banks practice the debt cancellation which these international bankers and their President are advocating for the American people.

Go around to any bank and try to get your debt to the bank CANCELLED or REDUCED or REVISED downward; or anything but PAID.

No, indeed; what is good for the goose is NOT good for the gander, and America is surely the goose, all right; and a goosed goose at that, if it submits to Mr. Hoover's plan for debt cancellation by means of a moratorium.

SALE OF BONUS IN NEW VET BILL

WASHINGTON, Dec. 15.—(AP.)—Legislation to authorize veterans to sell their bonus certificates providing the buyer pays off loans advanced on them by the government was proposed in the House today by Representative Bachmann, of West Virginia.

Bachmann, Republican whip, said the measure was his individual idea. He said it "will give the veterans the immediate benefit of their certificates; cease agitation for cash payment of the bonus, and return more than $1,500,000 to the Federal Treasury."

The present law prohibits banks and individuals from taking over the service certificates.

HOUSE SLASHES INTERIOR FUNDS

WASHINGTON, Dec. 15.—(INS.)—Appropriations for the Interior Department for the next fiscal year were slashed more than 33⅓ per cent by the House Appropriations Committee today in a drastic economy effort.

The committee, reporting the annual supply bill to the House, granted the department $43,192,904 as compared with $67,183,684 last year.

While the major decreases were made in two job-construction items—Boulder Canyon Dam and national parks' highways — the committee also pared the budget all along the line.

It cut President Hoover's budget estimates $2,891,025 beyond the $23,990,680 reduction which he recommended. It refused to increase any budget item.

HOOVER PRAISES U. S. LABOR

WASHINGTON, Dec. 15.—(AP.)—Expressing "profound pride as an American in the history of labor in this country," President Hoover today laid the cornerstone of the new $11,250,000 Department of Labor Building.

Simultaneously, by means of electrical synchronization, the President also laid the cornerstone of the new Interstate Commerce Commission Building which is rising nearby.

COUNCIL CUTS TAX ON LAND 2.4 MILLS

der. Public Safety Director James M. Clark was called on the telephone and asked whether he had anything further by way of reductions in his department to offer Council. Word was brought back that Director Clark had said he had nothing further to offer, but he would "cheerfully" abide by anything that Council might do.

Controller James P. Kerr appeared and offered to reduce the sinking fund $103,600 and said he would turn back into the general fund $21,825 saved in his office this year through economy measures.

Immediately after Kerr's offer came Councilman Little's motion for the tax reduction.

Councilman Garland, after the millage had been set, said:

"It is unnecessary to comment upon the seriousness of our situation or the revolt of taxpayers generally, but it seems to me that this is a time when we must very seriously consider our present predicament. The fixing of the tax levy is of course important, but vastly more important is the work that follows—the making of the budget."

CITES MAYVIEW CHARGE

Garland then quoted newspaper stories published this week about Mayview. The newspaper story said:

"Only those in political favor can hold positions at this institution. There is an average of one employe for every eight inmates."

Garland declared:

"This bears looking into."

From another newspaper story, he read a statement regarding the city detective force:

"Butcher, baker, candlestick maker—almost anybody—can get a job on Pittsburgh's detective bureau. Almost anybody but a detective."

Garland continued:

"Just two years ago about this time, 198 new positions were added to the 1931 budget by Council majority, in addition to special salary advances varying from $300 to $1,000 per year. These additions meant more than half a mill of taxation. Neither the requests for the positions nor the raises in salaries were asked by department heads. I voted against these raises."

'TAXPAYERS IN SADDLE'

He then explained that Council could, "if it so desires," undo "wholly or partially," the action of two years ago, by cutting out many of "these unnecessary positions." Many of them, Garland asserted, are sinecures.

Concluding his remarks, Garland said:

"The taxpayers are now in the saddle. This Council should not turn a deaf ear to the appeal of distressed taxpayers."

Councilman Charles Anderson suggested department heads should be called in to say where the cuts in the city payroll should be made. Anderson said:

"It's not the intention to punish the deserving for the faults of men who have been employed and have given little service."

It was then that President Herron made his criticism of Kline's directors. Just before Council adjourned until next Monday, it voted authority to Herron to tell the officers of the Helping Hand that $60,000 would be set up in the new budget for their work.

COUNCIL PRAISED

Council was praised for its action by many prominent citizens. J. Rowland Brady, executive secretary of the Pittsburgh Real Estate Board, said:

"I congratulate you gentlemen of Council for the excellent way you have handled the budget. I am sorry that the Board of Education did not sense the times as you have. I believe the County Commissioners also will sense the situation."

L. H. Brandl, secretary of Building Owners and Managers' Association, said:

"Council should be commended for its action. This tax cut is entirely satisfactory to the Building Owners and Managers' Association."

Charles F. Chubb, representing the Frick estate, said:

"Council is to be congratulated."

George S. Oliver, large downtown property owner, said:

"I think this Council has proved itself to be a business Council."

Sullen Assembly Votes N. Y. City Pay Cuts

ALBANY, N. Y., Dec. 15.—(INS.)—Bowing to the demand of Wall street bankers, the special session of the State Legislature early today jammed through a program of New York City salary reduction bills and adjourned sine die.

The bankers were adamant in insisting there must be no strings to the pay-cut bills affecting New York City teachers, firemen and policemen; and the lawmakers sullenly struck out amendments which would have limited the reduced scales to two years.

President-elect Franklin D. Roosevelt emerged from the session victorious in his demand that steps be taken to speed revision of New York City's charter.

This paves the way for former Gov. Alfred E. Smith's recommendations for overhauling New York's governmental structure, to be laid before the next session.

HUNGRY MOTHER RETURNS GEMS SHE STOLE, REWARDED

FAINTS IN COURT AS POLICEMEN RAISE PURSE

Back Rent Paid With $30 Donated at Hearing

They hear countless sob stories at Central Police Station, but with that of Mrs. Anna Bruce today, they passed the hat, And Mrs. Bruce collapsed.

Mrs. Bruce, 38, is the frail, undernourished mother of three children, the youngest born three months ago Her husband hasn't been able to find work for a year.

A few days ago Mrs. Bruce decided to steal something that would bring food to the youngsters, detectives testified.

She took an Eastern Star pin, a stickpin and ring from her landlady, Mrs. W. E. Deakins, at 3125 Faronia street, where the Bruces had been living.

But before she pawned the jewelry Mrs. Bruce's conscience overtook her.

She returned the pin and the ring quietly. But the temporary theft was discovered.

Mrs. Deakins made information charging her with larceny.

Mrs. Bruce was arraigned today. Mrs. Deakins' husband offered to drop the larceny charge if the Bruces paid $12.50 back rent.

Magistrate Leo Rothenberg dismissed the charge. He criticized Deakins and told him to go before an alderman if he insisted on the rent.

City Detective John Dean passed the hat and got $30. The rent was paid.

Mrs. Bruce collapsed.

Family Welfare has been helping the Bruces for months.

FUGITIVE AGAIN IN CELL

ity since. He worked on a Newark newspaper until it stopped publication.

Then he found a variety of other jobs, among them that of a dynamiter at a copper refinery in Chrome. After that, he decided to write his experiences and the book and motion picture dealing with the Georgia prison system followed.

Now he operates a small store in East Orange, and before his arrest was a familiar figure in downtown Newark, where he was taken into custody.

Burns and two other men held up a grocery in Atlanta, Ga., in 1921. Burns was sentenced from six to 10 years. He escaped in 1922 and was free until 1929, when, according to his story, a woman brought about his return to the "chain gang."

After his first outbreak, he chose Chicago as a place to live and became a success as a magazine publisher. He married, but later fell in love with another woman and asked his wife for a separation. She agreed, but in time asked for more alimony When he refused, the story goes, she notified Georgia authorities and Burns was arrested in 1929.

PROMISED PARDON

A lengthy legal battle followed, with high Chicago officials taking an interest in the case. Burns said he waived extradition finally when Georgia officials promised a pardon within 60 days if he would take such action.

But the pardon was denied and a new fight for freedom began, with the brother, the Rev. Mr. Burns, taking an active part by seeking the aid of scores of prominent persons. The brothers declare the prison commission told them if the prisoner's conduct was good for a year his pardon would be only a matter of routine.

There was a hearing in July, 1930, from which no word came for weeks. The next news was that Burns again had escaped.

The small, 125-pound fugitive—a prisoner once more—is 41 years old.

Georgia Wants Burns 'To Finish Term

ATLANTA, Dec. 15—(AP.)—Georgia today set in motion machinery to seek the return from New Jersey of Robert Elliot Burns, escaped fugitive from the Troup County chain gang.

John Howell Hardy, Jr., warden of the chain gang from which Burns escaped, was called to Atlanta with the expectation that he would be sent as a representative of the state to return Burns.

Vivian Stanley, member of the state prison commission, said:

"We are anxious to get Burns back to Georgia ot serve out his time."

Stanley said Burns fought his return to Georgia after he was discovered at Chicago after his first escape from the Campbell County chain gang. The commissioner said the prisoner instituted habeas corpus proceedings and was turned over to the Georgia authorities after the Governor of Illinois, at Stanley's personal request, had instructed officers to take that action.

DOCTOR-MAYOR URGES MERCY

COLUMBIA, S. C., Dec. 15.—(Universal.)—"An expectant mother is above the normal processes of law."

With this declaration, Mayor L. B. Owens, of Columbia, a practicing physician, joined South Carolina's womanhood in petitioning Gov. Blackwood to save Mrs. Beatrice Snipes from the electric chair. Mayor Owens said:

"The acts of a woman approaching motherhood should have every consideration because it affects them temperamentally, and they may do things they would not otherwise do."

The petition circulated by South Carolina women appealed to Gov. Blackwood in "the name of humanity and mercy," to grant clemency to Mrs. Snipes, 29-year-old expectant mother, sentenced to die April 1 for the murder of a policeman.

Mulrooney May Head U. S. Secret Service

NEW YORK, Dec. 15.—(INS.)—Police and political circles were stirred today by reports that Commissioner Edward Mulrooney may head the United States Secret Service under the incoming Roosevelt administration.

The rumor emanated from Albany, where Mulrooney is with Mayor Joseph V. McKee, attending the special legislative session.

MOTHER-TO-BE RELATES FATAL ROAD BATTLE

Tells From Death Cell Her Own Story of Slaying Officer

This is the second of a series of articles by Mrs. Beatrice Snipes, 29-year-old expectant mother, sentenced to die in April in the electric chair for the murder of a policeman, in which she tells her own story of her life.

By MRS. BEATRICE SNIPES

STATE PENITENTIARY, COLUMBIA, S. C., Dec. 15.—In June my baby girl died.

I think something happened to me from this time. I have been told since that I have a disease which affects me, I know that I have been highly nervous and that of course my throat gets worse as time goes on. But the loss of my baby and my condition unhinged me, and at times I got so that I really did not know what I was doing. I would suddenly get kind of excited, and when I cooled down I would not be quite sure what had happened.

Now I come to the awful day which has put me here. Clyde's mother was very sick, and Spencer Morton, a friend, offered to drive us over to her with a friend of his, Etta Mulling. We all got into the car and started out to drive rather fast, as we were frightened how ill Mrs. Snipes was.

LOTS OF BOOTLEGGING

There is a lot of bootlegging on this road, as it is the direct route from Hell Hole swamp in Berkeley County, where most of the illicit liquor is made. The cops are always on the lookout for fast cars here, and I guess Harris was only doing his duty.

He came up in his police car with a friend and they told us to stop. His friend, Kenyon, was driving, and he turned the car across the road to stop us. Clyde was driving our car and he pulled up. Officer Harris got out and came over to the car. We all got out, and Harris seized the keys of our car. He started to argue with Clyde, and the next thing I knew he had knocked him down.

I rushed to help my husband—what would any other woman do? Harris hit me in the face, a blow which has resulted in the loss of my front teeth. He called to Kenyon to bring out his blackjack. Clyde ducked, I ran towards him—Harris stopped me, we struggled, he pulled his gun half out. I put up my hand to knock it out of his, and the gun went off.

SEES VICTIM FALL

I remember hearing the report and seeing Harris fall. There was a smell of smoke—everything seemed to go red, then black. I remember no more but a confused noise and shouting. Then I found I was in the officer's car. Clyde was with me. I said to him:

"Have I shot someone?"

Clyde said:

"Yes. Go straight and give yourself up. Tell the truth; tell them it was an accident."

He got out of the car near where a friend lives, and I drove on. I thought I was over the state line and drove straight to Charlotte, where I went to the police and told them all I knew.

All the time since July 17 I have been in prison. I have worked as long as my condition permitted and tried to remember what happened on that afternoon. Try as I may, my mind is just a blank—something vent off in my head, and I cannot remember any more. I am all the more astonished at it as I have never in my life handled a gun before.

GIRL'S FEVER SETS RECORD

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 15.—(AP.)—A 20-year-old Mexican girl today amazed medical authorities of the Los Angeles General Hospital by running a temperature of 110 degrees. Medical men say 107 degrees is fatal.

For three months, doctors said today, Alice Tolan has been running an almost daily temperature of a height never before equaled by a human sufferer.

Dr. P. Berman, medical director of the General Hospital, brain, lung and other specialists who examined Miss Tolan, have concluded a tubercular tumor in the third ventricle of the brain, where the "heat center" of the human is located, has prevented control of her bodily temperature.

Dr. Berman said there was no way in which an operation could be performed to remove the tumor and restore the heat controlling function.

Lefcourt's Estate Dwindles to $2,500

NEW YORK, Dec. 15.—(AP.)—Abraham E. Lefcourt, real estate operator and builder whose real estate holdings in 1928 were valued at more than $100,000,000, left an estate of about $2,500 when he died November 13, a petition for probate filed with his will said.

The petition, filed by four executors and trustees appointed in the will said that Lefcourt owned no real estate when he died.

Santa Pays Visit To Philadelphia Animal Waifs

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 15.—(AP.)—Carrying a bag filled with choice catnip, bones, hay, apples and other gifts, Santa Claus jingled into Philadelphia today on a pre-Christmas visit.

He climbed down the chimney of the dispensary of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals and became the chief figure at the organization's annual Yuletide party.

Food, catnip, mice and other toys, blankets and sweaters were distributed to horses, dogs and cats owned by persons financially unable to play Santa Claus for their pets.

WIDOW FIGHTS DEATH CHARGE

KANE, Pa., Dec. 15.—Mrs. Beatrice Sullivan, 38, today began a fight for her life, on the charge that she killed her husband, Neil, in the family auto after a wild party at a roadhouse.

The defense will contend Sullivan killed himself, it was indicated by Defense Counsel R. T. Mutzbaugh, when he recalled County Detective J. J. Allison. Allison admitted the automobile was on a sharp slant and that Mrs. Sullivan was in the lowest part of the seat. He said the defendant would have been forced to hold the gun over her head in order to shoot her husband. Mutzbaugh thrust the death pistol in Allison's hand and had him demonstrate how easy it would have been for Sullivan to fire the shots into his head.

MRS. GANN ENDS ANOTHER 'FEUD'

WASHINGTON, Dec. 15.—(AP.)—After dining her social enemy of the present administration, Alice Roosevelt Longworth, on Tuesday, Dolly Gann has radiated more of the Christmas spirit of good will toward her fellow-women.

No longer ago than last October, Republican Mrs. Gann and Democratic Ruth Bryan Owen were stumping the Mid-West for their opposing political causes.

Once they spoke in the same town on the same day, and often they followed close upon each others heels, answering each others arguments. Even then they were friendly enemies, for Mrs. Owen welcomed Mrs. Gann to her own home town of Lincoln, Neb., with a corsage bouquet.

Mrs. Gann, of the defeated party, returned the compliment yesterday by inviting Mrs. Owen, of the victorious group, to assist her at her "at home."

Seated at Mrs. Gann's flower-decked table, Mrs. Owen gracefully poured Dolly's tea and graciously smiled upon the Gann guests.

AIR STAR SHOT; WIFE, PAL HELD

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 15.—(INS.)—Dying from a shot through the head, Roy D. Barnes 32, Hollywood radio star, was found in his automobile today by police who detained for questioning Barnes' pretty red-headed wife, Gloria, 22, and his friend, Carl W. Long, former policeman.

Detectives, puzzled by the strange shooting on a city street, learned that two shots had been preceded by a woman's screams and said they found Mrs. Barnes running hysterically after her husband's slowly moving automobile.

Barnes made an incoherent statement before he lapsed into unconsciousness.

Dreiser Lists 'Tragedy' As 'Loveliest' Word

NEW YORK, Dec. 15.—(Universal)—Selma Robinson is not only a poet, but a woman. In consequence, her "10 loveliest words" in the English language number 11.

She and Theodore Dreiser, novelist, today contributed their lists in the quest in New York literary circles. Here is Miss Robinson's:

Cloy, mouth, poisonous, serenade, dark, savage, elliptical, tinkle, bell, thundering and amber.

Tinkle and elliptical she says, have a brittle, stimulating quality. She adds:

"The shorter words are very melancholy. 'Cloy' sounds like a cry, 'dark' is mysterious and rich and ominous. 'Bell' has a sharp, clean sound. 'Poisonous' is an ominous word—the 'poi' seems to suggest a spitting or hissing."

Nine of Theodore Dreiser's list are taken from titles of his stories and a periodical he writes for. They are:

Jennie, Titan, chains, spectator, Carrie, genius, free, financier, tragedy and moods.

Mayor James M. Curley, of Boston, said he favored the following:

Mother, home, love, charity, health, happiness, friendship, kindness, success and loyalty.

Ben Ames Williams, author, favored:

Tremorous, shelterless, whispers, blue, decorous, water, ardent, ember, victuals and valiant.

Mountaineer's 21 Guns Found on Penna. Territory

UNIONTOWN, Pa., Dec. 1g.—Twenty-one guns, comprising the Pennsylvania section of the arsenal of Isley Tate, aged mountain king killed by his 19-year-old son for $200 "blood money," will be sold to pay the $328 funeral bill for the cattle dealer.

Justice of the Peace W. J. Ruble, appraiser, located 21 guns on this side of the Pennsylvania-West Virginia line, which with other articles were appraised at $1,824. West Virginia officers have recovered a greater number, it is said. Many of the guns were located in the Tate residence near Bruceton Mills, W. Va., while others were discovered along the mountain trails.

GUNS FOR DEFENSE

Ruble said many firearms were sold by Mrs. Nellie Tate, the widow, to obtain funds for the defense of her three sons, Sam, 15; George, 19, and John, 21. The former two pleaded guilty to murder and are to be sentenced December 22. John pleaded to sharing in the theft of the money.

Due to the feud which is said to have developed between Perry Tate, brother of the slain man and who assisted in the appraisement, and Frank Price, who is quoted as saying an effort is being made to rob the widow, state troopers probably will attend the sale.

DOG ON BLOCK

Other chattels included in the sale is an unusual hunting dog, for many years a favorite of the murdered man. Mountaineers say that the animal not only catches groundhogs and coons without the help of hunters, but many times was seen dashing home with its quarry. Twenty head of goats and 15 sheep are listed, together with saws, cider mills and three cows.

Among the weapons are shotguns, German, Swiss and American rifles, various pistols and revolvers and a double-barreled combination rifle and shotgun.

GIANT DOCTOR'S ATTACKER SLAIN

NEW YORK, Dec. 15.—(INS.)—Mystery today surrounded the shooting of Dr. William J. Walsh, 41, for 10 years club physician for the New York Giants, by a patient in his office on Riverside Drive last evening.

Dr. Walsh, shot three times, was in a critical condtion at Lutheran Hospital. His assailant, identified as John Wilson, was slain in a pistol battle with police.

Just before seeing Wilson, Dr. Walsh had confided to a friend in the office that Wilson had telephoned Tuesday night and asked Dr. Walsh to examine his brother, who, he said, was suffering from a heart attack. Believing the case involved wounded gangsters, Dr. Walsh refused, and asked for a guard of two policemen at his office.

Walsh is an honorary police surgeon and a close friend of Police Commissioner Edward P. Mulrooney. He received a tryout as a pitcher with the Giants in 1912, and later became the club's physician.

Radio Crew Takes Pair Hurling Brick

Two boys, who, police say, hurled a brick through the window of a store of Abraham Zahn at 4545 Irvine street, were speedily captured by Lieut. M. M. Murphy and the crew of a radio police automobile attached to the Hazelwood station.

The youths, William Gillingham, 17, of 1105 Fifth avenue, and Frank Heckman, 18, of 208 Hazelwood avenue, were arrested, police said, as they fled with cigarets valued at $10. They were held for court.

ALOHA DECIDES TO CARRY ON CAP'S PLANS

By ALOHA WANDERWELL

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 15.—Two years of wandering brought us to Pekin.

Our tour ended in January, 1925, if any Wanderwell journey ever may be said to end.

We came to the United States and Canada and remained until October, 1926, when we went abroad.

It was not until November, 1929, that we again came to America. In the interim we had spent 18 months in Africa and had done Europe again.

I had an evening gown for our crossing on the Ile de France. For years I had worn breeches instead of skirts. I had attended operas, dinners, receptions and all sorts of affairs in breeches and boots.

We had expected a quiet crossing, but at the last moment our sailing was halted and the ship held for hours while six trainloads of "Wall street paupers" were put aboard.

'PAUPERS' HOMEBOUND

You see, it was immediately following the stock market crash of October, 1929, and hundreds of people, prominent in world affairs, who had been vacationing in Europe, were hastening home to protect what was left of their fortunes.

I could not help but contrast that voyage with the little one we made the other day when we took Capt. Wanderwell's body out to sea.

He had come to Los Angeles from Long Beach to see me on Sunday afternoon, the day before he was murdered.

I had left my hotel on Saturday and, with my sister, had taken a room in a private hotel. A slight attack of flu had kept me in bed all day Sunday and Cap came in the afternoon to see how I was progressing. I saw him again the next morning at breakfast about 8:30 o'clock. He went away to attend to several business matters at about 10:30 a. m. I retired about 8 p. m. and my sister played the radio until about 9.

LEARNS OF KILLING

It was about 4 o'clock Tuesday morning that the police came for me.

They did not tell me my husband was dead. They merely said they wanted me to go to Long Beach in connection with some investigation of Capt. Wanderwell.

It was not until I reached Long Beach that I learned my husband had been been murdered.

Yes, I shall carry on.

After all, our wanderings about the world were not entirely for pleasure.

In late years, too, Cap had this dream of international peace and an international police force to enforce peace.

I shall do my best to forward such a movement.

So far as I have been able to ascertain, all the present members of our crew are anxious to proceed upon the cruise we were planning.

As long as there is one man or one woman willing to go on, I shall continue.

LOOKS TO FUTURE

Cap and I had worked for years to buy a ship. At first, we thought we would merely use it for pleasure cruises. But later he conceived the idea of organizing an international police force.

Then he often talked of how he would like for our two children to carry on the work after he and I had passed on.

Perhaps they will. Who knows? But Cap and I had a slogan which, through the years, had proved to be something more than mere words.

Once a Wanderwell, always a Wanderwell!

That was it.

I was with Capt. Wanderwell for 10 years. During eight of them I was his wife.

I could never have found a more congenial mate, or a truer one.

I won't be lonely as I continue to journey about the earth, for I shall always feel that Cap is with me, taking the brunt and carrying the burden, encouraging, guiding, leading the way.

And I shall always regard him as I thought of him 10 years ago while a 16-year-old schoolgirl in the South of France—the gayest, most gallant, most romantic adventurer in all the world.

THE END.

SHOPPERS TOLD OF FAKE CASH

Chief W. A. Landvoigt, of the United States Secret Service in this district, is warning Christmas shoppers and merchants to beware of counterfeit $5, $10 and $20 bills being circulated in Pittsburgh and nearby towns.

Chief Landvoigt wants anyone receiving any of the spurious notes to notify the nearest police station or call the office of the United States Secret Service, Court 2121. The passers of the bogus notes made their appearance last week and are believed planning to take advantage of the holiday purchasing.

The $5 note, on the Federal Reserve Bank of New York, carries the serial letters and numbers "G33290324A." The $10 notes are on the Federal Reserve banks of New York and Cleveland. The Cleveland note has different serial numbers, but can be detected by the light green color on its back and heavy printing of serial numbers.

That on the New York bank carries "B30256958A" as letter and serial numbers, which are slightly smaller than on genuine notes. The $20 counterfeits are also on the Federal Reserve Bank of New York. The letter and first four figures in the serial are "B0758," but the remainder are different in notes already recovered by secret service operators.

YACHT SLAYING HEARING SET

LONG BEACH, Cal., Dec. 15.—(AP.)—William James (Curly) Guy, 24-year-old Welsh adventurer, today awaited preliminary hearing on charges of killing Capt. Walter Wanderwell, 35, noted globe trotter, set for Monday morning.

Scores of spectators jammed into Municipal Judge Charles F. Cook's courtroom yesterday to witness the arraignment of Guy, charged with shooting Wanderwell the night of December 5 aboard his yacht, Carma, on the eve of his departure on another world cruise.

Guy's friend, Edward De Larm, an Indian aviator, held for a time as a material witness, was released when his attorney agreed to have De Larm in readiness at any time. De Larm is Guy's chief alibi witness. Two detectives accompanied De Larm to Glendale to make a final check of witnesses who have told of seeing Guy at De Larm's home the night of December 5. Ralph Dunlap, mechanic, also was freed.

Two Women Leave Estates to Children

Mrs. Emma L. Crisman, of Filbert street, by her will filed here for probate, leaves an estate estimated at $14,000 to her seven children.

An estate valued at $13,000 left by Mrs. Walburga J. Steinberg goes to her two daughters, Barbara and Julia Steinberg.

1933 PROMISES 'BIGGEST' NEWS OF DECADE

Universal Service.

NEW YORK, Dec. 15.—World events are crowding so quickly at each other's heels that 1933 promises to be the "most interesting year of this decade because anything can happen," Joseph V. Connolly, president of Universal Service, International News Service and King Features Syndicate, declared in a radio talk yesterday over the Columbia Broadcasting System. He said:

"I am hopeful that the really big news of next year will be the definite return to prosperity. But there will be other big news in the progress of the human race.

"In some obscure laboratory the cure for cancer and paralysis and other diseases may be delivered, the science of radio will be applied increasingly to medicine, and swift transportation across land and sea will be increasingly popular.

"The possibilities of international aviation are boundless, and next year will witness remarkable progress.

"Power and heat and light may be transmitted by radio.

"Arthur Brisbane, greatest editorial writer of this generation, says the greatest event that could happen in 1933 would be something that would put a sudden end to this depression."

Mr. Connolly, touching on prospects of repealing the Eighteenth Amendment, said:

"Everybody is talking hopefully about beer and light wine and reduction of taxes. Beer-running, backbone of racketeering and the basis of virtually all gang wars and killings, will soon pass out if promised bills are enacted.

"What will the gang leaders and their crook followers do when the brewers, backed by law, take over the legitimate trade? The answer will appear on the first page of newspapers."

After reviewing the important news events of 1932, including the Lindbergh baby kidnaping and murder, the Far Eastern trouble, the jailing of "Al" Capone and the collapse of the Insull utilities empire, Mr. Connolly listed these as the major issues facing the world next year:

New European war debt negotiations; the world economic conference; developments in Germany and Russia under disguised dictatorships; efforts to induce American recognition of the Soviets; India's independence fight; transocean air developments and progress in wireless telegraphy.

ARRANGE RITES FOR GALBREATH

BUTLER, Pa., Dec. 15—Funeral services will be held at 2:30 p. m. tomorrow for Attorney James M. Galbreath, 81, former president judge of Butler county and widely known law authority who died suddenly here yesterday.

Judge Galbreath was one of the attorneys for Mayor Charles H. Kline and former Supplies Director Bertram L. Succop, of Pittsburgh, in the Butler trial last summer.

The jurist was a native of Butler County. He served as a judge of Common Pleas Court 11 years, serving the last year by appointment of Gov. John K. Tener. He was a member of the First United Presbyterian Church. He leaves his widow, Mrs. Sarah E. Galbreath; a son, John Galbreath; two daughters, Mrs. Irene Ivory, of Sewickley, and Miss Edith B. University Probes Snowball 'Fight'

EVANSTON, Ill., Dec. 15.—(AP.)—The weather being just right, some of the fraternity boys of the city decided to throw snow balls, but it was charged that some grew tired of this sport and substituted red ink. James Armstrong, dean of men at Northwestern University, was called upon to open an inquiry as to who was responsible for damage to broken windows, etc.

Lost Gem Found In Servant's Shoe

DETROIT, Dec. 15.—(AP.)—Kneeling in prayer before starting her daily work, Miss Charlotte Zywot, maid in a Grosse Pointe home, saw in a mirror the reflection of something glittering in the heel of her shoe. It proved to be a $500 diamond ring set lost two weeks ago by her employer, Mrs. G. V. Saylor. The gem was retrived with the aid of a pair of scissors.

SUNDAY SHOW BAN STUDIED

OIL CITY, Pa., Dec. 15.—Oil City may adopt an ordinance imposing a fine of $300 or 30 days in jail for operatingp motion picture theaters on Sunday. Such a plan is before Council as a result of a protest by 1,200 petitioners against Sunday shows, inaugurated here this week. City Solicitor S. N. Mogilowitz informed Council that a York (Pa.) law sustained by the State Supreme Court invoked the above penalties, and Council is now studying its provisions.

Mayor J. G. Payne said operation of motion pictures on Sunday is unsatisfactory, but that there is much to consider. He said other merchants might benefit by patronage of visitors to the city.

The Rev. Dr. T. G. Koontz told Council he opposed "tampering with a law that is older than the blue laws." Mrs. A. W. Goodwin, president of Oil City Women's Club, voiced objections to Sunday movies.

TRUNK SLAYING STORY DELAYED

PHOENIX, Ariz., Dec. 15.—(AP.)—Dr. William C. Judd may tell this week-end what he asserts is the "true story" of the slaying of Mrs. Agnes Anne Le Roi and Miss Hedvig Samuelson. His wife, Winnie Ruth, is under sentence to hang after conviction of murdering Mrs. Le Roi.

Authorities at Fort Whipple, Prescott, Ariz., yesterday refused Dr. Judd the furlough he needed to come here to confer with Sheriff J. R. McFadden. They explained the condition of Dr. Judd, a patient in the hospital, would not permit the trip. The Sheriff said today, however, he had been told Dr. Judd might be permitted to come here tomorrow or Saturday.

Dr. Judd announced he would tell his story in an effort to save the life of his wife. Sheriff McFadden said:

"I have no idea what Dr. Judd plans to reveal."

MISSION PROBE AIM OPPOSED

NEW YORK, Dec. 15.—(AP.)—The Board of Foreign Missions of the Reformed Church in America has issued a statement in which it dissented from the "basis" of the Laymen's Foreign Missions' inquiry report, but indorsed many of its "particular recommendations as to method."

The statement, issued yesterday, said:

"Our aim is nothing less than the establishing of the religion of Jesus as the final and universal religion, while the report distinctly encourages the missionaries to look forward, 'not to the destruction of these religions (non-Christian), but to their continued co-existence with Christianity, each stimulating the other in growth toward the ultimate goal, unity in the completest religious truth.'"

3 Girls and 2 Boys Held as Runaways

NEW CASTLE, Pa., Dec. 15.—Three girls and two boys who are alleged to have run away from their homes in Indiana were captured by state police in a car said to have been stolen. The five were stopped on the Butler-New Castle road and are being held pending disposittion of their case. Those arrested gave their names as Ruth Perry, Lottie Boyer and Edna Ruby and Raymond Cramer and Rex Smith.

MUSIC

Detroit Symphony Orchestra
SYRIA MOSQUE

PROGRAM

Brandenburg Concerto, F Major .... Bach
"Spring" Symphony, B Flat Major .... Schumann
Gavotte from "Idomeneo" . Mozart
Two Fragments from "Rosamunda" .... Schubert
Natchez-on-the-Hill .... Powell
L'Isle Joyeuse" . . Debussy-Molinari

The Detroit Symphony Orchestra with Ossip Gabrilowitsch conducting, gave a delightful concert in Syria Mosque last night. Various conditions seemed to have depleted the ranks of the audience and surely the orchestra deserved a better house.

Mr. Lissfelt

At first sight the program promised no thrills, in spite of the fact that we were to hear music that has not been tried here in a long while. And yet as the evening unfolded we found ourselves enchanted with this music, with its delicacy, its exuberance, its wholesome good-natured appeal, all of which reminded me more of music as played by Viennese orchestras than by any others which I have ever heard.

This orchestra may not be the most brilliant, its volume is not the grandest, we frequently miss precise outlines, and yet when Gabrilowitsch leads his players where else would we find the charm of his "Rosamunda," the beautiful singing of the woodwinds in the Bach Concerto, or the grace and warmth of expression as he gave throughout the Schumann Symphony.

Powell's American dance was a novelty for us, happily scored in its variations, and lilting along in its southern tempo. Debussy, Gabrilowitsch tells us, always wanted to orchestrate his "L'Isle Joyeuse." Molinari knew this desire and undertook the work. It would be interesting to know Debussy's plan for the orchestra, for as it now stands surely it is still more idiomatic in its original piano form.

Yesterday afternoon the Detroit Symphony Orchestra with Victor Kolar conducting, played a clever program in Carnegie Music Hall. This concert, planned for school children as well as for adults, might also have been better patronized, for the scheme of the music was to illustrate the evolution of the orchestra.

Edith Rhetts Tilton lectured in a very pleasing manner, simply and not without some humor, and sketchily traced the growth of the orchestra throughout the music. In making her plea for good listenters and for hearing contemporary music she made an excellent point, namely, that music is greater than anyone's personal taste, a good point for anonymous letter writers when they complain against those who try to uphold good music.

A simple arrangement of a Bach Minuet, the Allegro from Mozart's G Minor Symphony, the Andante from the Beethoven Fifth Symphony, Berlioz' Rakoczy March from "Damnation of Faust" and Honegger's orchestral movement, "Pacific 231." The music was played without flare, but made its point, and the last number went over in grand style, especially among the students who really want to know what is going on among composers of the present.

J. FRED LISSFELT.

BRIBERY SIFTED BY PENNINGTON

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 15.—(INS.)—Bribery charges involving federal prohibition agents and Northern New Jersey liquor interests were being investigated today.

Commander John D. Pennington, administrator for New Jersey, Pennsylvania and Delaware, declined to comment on the investigation.

One arrest already has been made. Frank Reiterman, Allentown, formerly attached to headquarters here, was arrested in Newark, N. J., when he is alleged to have accepted $1,000 in bills from a Newark city detective while Deputy Administrator Louis Tutt and another federal agent stood across the street from the rendezvous and watched the payment being made.

Reiterman said he intended to accept the money and then prefer charges.

GAIN IN FREIGHT FORECAST

A moderate increase in freight traffic originating in the Pittsburgh district in the first three months of 1933 in comparison to the final quarter of 1932 was predicted by delegates to the annual meeting of the Allegheny Regional Advisory Board at the William Penn Hotel this morning.

Shippers estimated that about 500,000 cars of freight will be loaded in Western Pennsylvania, Eastern Ohio, Northern West Virginia and the Panhandle of Maryland during the three months.

Charles Donley, traffic counselor, presided at the meeting. General transportation conditions throughout the country were covered by W. J. McGarry, manager of the car service division of the American Railway Association, Washington. C. F. How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Beware of 'Sure-Cure' for Cancer

Recently, when the newspapers printed the story of a man who had been poisoned by drinking radium water, nation-wide interest was aroused. Such preparations as were used in this case, as well as other remedies claimed to be cancer cures, have been submitted to careful investigation for years. False claims have been exposed and the public has been warned against doubtful remedies and "sure cures," particularly for cancer and tuberculosis.

Dr. Copeland

For a generation the scientific world has worked untiringly in an effort to discover a cure for cancer. No certain means of relief has been found to date, but valuable knowledge concerning cancer has been revealed.

It is the opinion of leading authorities throughout the world that cancer can be cured only when it is recognized in its early stages. The achievements in surgery now enable the surgeon to perform wonders in this disease.

It is advised that every person, no matter how well he may seem to be, report to a physician for examination every six months. If this rule is followed universally it is probable that unsuspected cancer will be discovered in its early stage.

Impaired health with vague and mild pain somewhere in the body should always be carefully investigated. Unfortunately, too many seek medical relief when the pain has become severe and the cancer has advanced beyond hope of recovery.

When radium or X-ray is used, it should be applied only by a physician who has been trained in this work. In the hands of an unqualified person radium is a dangerous substance and may cause great harm.

I can readily understand why the word "cancer" arouses such fear. For years this disease has been associated with death. But cancer need not be a fatal disease. In neglect lies the danger.

Many live in fear of cancer, yet they refuse to have medical advice.

Such persons are misled by false advertising and induced to use unscientific remedies. Thousands of dollars are wasted every day in purchasing unreliable and often dangerous medicines.

The American Medical Association has endeavored to combat this menace by exposure of claims made by charlatans. Despite these efforts, quackery in cancer cures still exist. It will continue to exist as long as the public gives financial support.

Never buy a remedy that has not been sanctioned by your physician. If you are in doubt about your health, consult with your doctor or apply for advice at a hospital clinic. This is the only safe procedure.

Answers to Health Queries

"A. Reader." Q. — What should a girl of 20, 5 feet 2 inches tall, weigh?

A.—She should weigh about 119 pounds. This is about the average weight for one of this age and height as determined by examination of a large number of persons. A few pounds above or below the average is a matter of little or no significance.

HOME BANK SET TO MAKE LOANS

A full quota of the $9,000,000 credit granted by the Federal Home Loan Bank, has come to Pittsburgh, W. F. Bell, executive vice president of the Pittsburgh Branch, announced today. He said he did not care to give the exact figures, but that Pittsburgh, one of the 12 regional banks, got its full share and is now ready to make loans.

In Washington Franklin W. Fort, chairman, said:

"We have received applications for $20,000,000 worth of credit from 113 building and loan associations and we have granted about $9,000,000 of that amount."

He said further applications will be granted as soon as the board has time to investigate them. He said $5,000,000 have been drawn from the United Stataes Treasury and distributed among nine of the 12 regional banks. This, with money the banks already had from the sale of stock, will be loaned to ease the real estate market, he said.

123 KEYSTONE STORES SOLD

The sale of 123 stores of the Keystone Stores Corporation, in the hands of receivers, to the American Stores Company, the P. H. Butler Company and J. W. Broderick, has been approved by Federal Judge R. M. Gibson. None of the stores are in Pittsburgh, but are located in Western Pennsylvania and the Pittsburgh district.

The amount of the purchase prices will be based on inventories. The American Stores Company, a Philadelphia concern, has paid $75,000 toward the purchase of 93 stores. The P. H. Butler Company has purchased 26 stores and deposited $10,000. Four stores were taken over by Broderick, with $1,000 paid. The transactions were approved by a committee representing creditors of the Keystone firm. The receiver was represented by Attorney George D. Wick. TELL IT TO ELSIE -:- -:- Follow This Unusual Feature Day by Day -:- -:- By ELSIE ROBINSON

Should Romance Keep Living On After Marriage?

Do you think marriage should be a perpetual romance—one long session of billing and cooing?

And are you about to jump over the traces because yours hasn't turned out that way?

Then you'll probably burst into big, wet sobs of sympathy when you hear Margaret's mournful broadcast. For that is what ails her.

Do we sympathize with her? Listen!

Dear Elsie:

I don't know, honestly, whether it is possible to help me, but I hope you'll try.

I am 26. I am married to a man 14 years older than I. I have two lovely children, and I adore them both.

My husband is really good and kind, and is a good husband and father. But Elsie, that's all he is!

Should I be content without any romance at all—without any loving caresses, any compliments, or even any hugs and kisses He thinks I should be.

He believes "all that is foolish." He takes life as a matter of course while I am craving for real love. I wish you would tell me what you think I should do.

I have gotten so that I am sort of weaned away from him, on account of his coolness, but he claims that he loves me and says I should understand that he isn't of a demonstrative nature.

VISIONS ROMANCE

Well, maybe he isn't, but is it fair that I am missing all the romance in life just because he thinks it's silly?"

I always have before me the vision of being loved by someone who will say all the lovely things that I have always wanted to have said to me.

It just seems, sometimes, as if I can't stand it. What do you think? Am I just foolish, or am I only human? I will be waiting to read your answer. Please help me.

MARGARET.

What'll you do? Grow up! Begin to act like a woman instead of a moony kid. You've been trying to stay Sweet Sixteen, with all Sweet Sixteen's ga-ga glamour. You've insisted on clinging to a romantic dream and refused to accept life and love as is. And, because of that, you're getting yourself into a bad jam.

TOO CHILDISH

Snap out of it! Yes, I know; your husband might be more loving. He should compliment his wife and tell her how fond he is of her. There wouldn't be anything "silly" about pretty words or loving gestures. They're an ornament to any marriage.

But how much are you doing to win such words or gestures?

Has it ever occurred to you that his heart may also be starving; that he may be as bitterly disappointed in marriage as you are? He's a grown man looking for and needing a grown woman as a mate and partner. Instead, you're offering him a Sweet Baby, who probably gives him a severe pain in the neck.

Cut out the gurgles and be your age! You're a big girl now. Then act like one. Give your husband a grown-up love, sister, and I'm betting you'll find a grown-up romance in return.

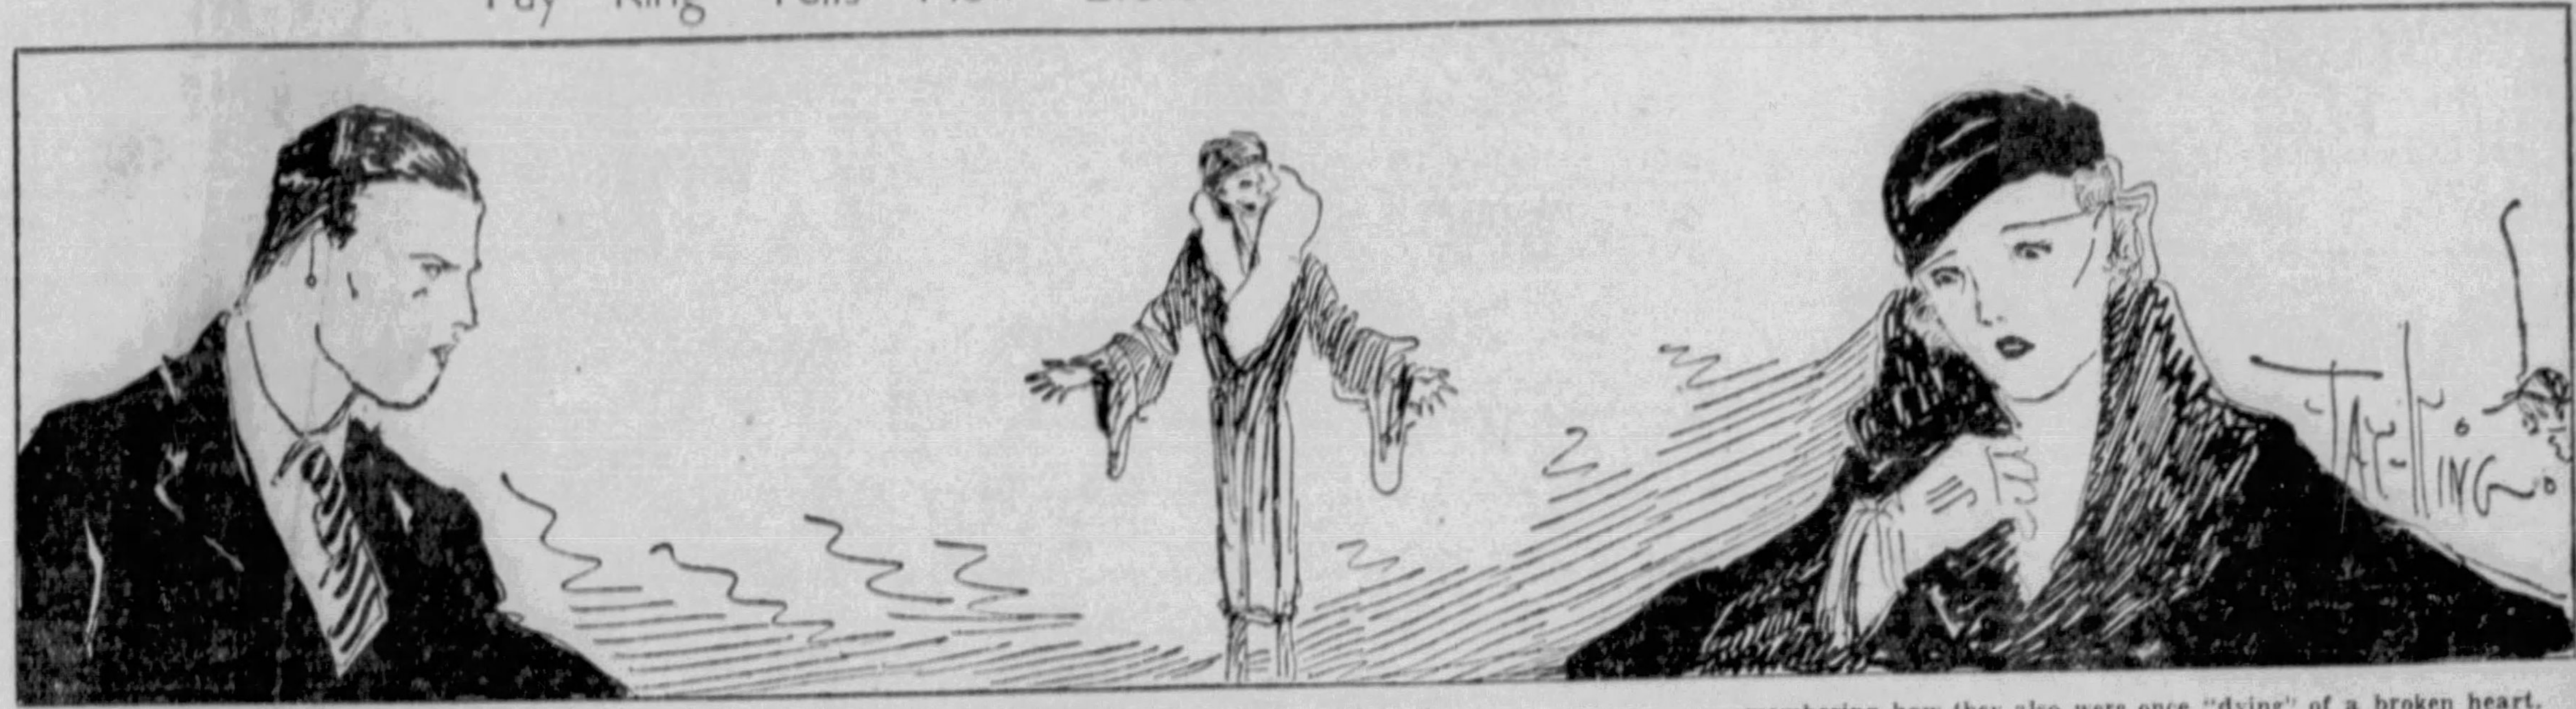
Fay King Tells How 'Broken Hearts' Can Oft Be Mended



By FAY KING

Young persons who imagine that they will die of broken hearts think that no one understands or sympathizes with them as they deserve.

If their cases were half as serious and fatal as they imagine them to be, everyone would rush to comfort them.

But the truth is that nearly everyone has not only survived, but lived to laugh over the heartaches of young love.

When it is long over, only the comedy of it remains in memory so that those who would sympathize cannot help smiling, too, remembering how they also were once "dying" of a broken heart.

They know only too well how soon these breaking hearts will mend, and how funny this will all seem then.

Have faith—time adjusts everything!

Contract Bridge -:- HOW TO PLAY and HOW TO WIN

By JOSEPHINE CULBERTSON

A Psychic Reputation

There is this much to be said about players who make a habit of using psychic bids: Their opponents, and sometimes their partners, will not believe them when they choose to open on sound, but minimum, holdings, and credit them with nothing, or nearly that, on almost every occasion. Whenever a player finds that the confidence of his partner in his game has been undermined, so that games are made but not bid, he is probably using bluff tactics entirely too much, and when a player, making a sound Opening bid, finds his opponents reaching not only a game, but a Slam, against him, and more than making it, it is apparent that his methods need revision.

I watched a rubber the other day in which the holder of the West hand pictured below had gained a great reputation for psychic of bluff Opening bids. So strong was the influence of this reputation on the South player that the Opening bid was probably one of the largest factors in reaching the Slam.

The bidding:

West	North	East	South
1 ♣ (1)	1 ◇ (2)	1 ♡ (3)	2 ♡ (4)
Pass	2 N T (5)	Pass	3 ♠ (6)
Pass	4 ♠ (7)	Pass	5 ♣ (8)
Pass	6 ♠ (9)	Pass	Pass
Pass

1—A minimum, but still an Opening bid.

2—The length of the diamond suit justifies the vulnerable Overcall.

3—Certainly not overstrong, but still attack is the best defense.

4—In view of his own strength and the previous bidding, South decides there is something peculiar about it all, but elects to believe his partner, and so makes this bid Forcing to game.

5—This is North's correct response. It does not show any stopper in hearts, but as South has elected to force, North now shows that his hand is a minimum.

6—There is no occasion for South to force further, and he correctly proceeds to feel out the distribution.

7—This is North's correct bid.

8—South is now entirely convinced that his opponents are both bluffing. He therefore bids the adverse suit as a Slam try.

9—North understands the message and does not stop by bidding five spades, but, in view of his singleton in hearts and the club King, correctly bids six.

The play of the hand was interesting. West opened the diamond King and then shifted to a trump, which was won with the Ace. It was apparent, of course, to the Declarer that the heart finesse must be taken, and naturally he hoped that East's bid of hearts had as a basis at least the King. The Queen held the trick, and the heart 5 was returned and ruffed with the spade 2, the spade 4 returned, and the adverse trumps picked up. South next laid down the Ace of hearts and followed with the Ace of clubs, and four more rounds of trumps. Diamonds were discarded from the Dummy, leaving only the diamond Queen. When, on the eleventh round, West, who was undergoing a squeeze, elected to hold the diamond King and discard instead the club Knave, the diamond Queen was discarded from Dummy and the Slam made by winning the last 2 tricks with the King and nine of clubs.

The situation before the lead of the last trump was as follows:

◇ Q
♣ K 9

◇ A
♣ Q J

North
West East
South

♡ K
♣ 10 7

♠ 6
♡ J
♣ 5

Today's Question

If three notrump is bid and four made, is the overtrick considered the fourth trick or the first?

Answer: The Declarer would score 100 points (30-40-30) in the trick score and 40 points in the honor column, as it is the fourth odd-trick over the book of six.

The Beauty Box

By HELEN FOLLETT

Every morning open the window and do your daily dozen. Stretching exercises are helpful to retain the youthful shape; they can be done in bed. The lazy girl will like that. Stretch from head to toes, stretch legs, arms, torso, fingers.

Superfluous hair, a real beauty grief, can be bleached so that it is scarcely noticeable. Pour two tablespoonfuls of peroxide into a sauce dish, add two drops (no more) of ordinary household ammonia. Apply with a bit of cotton. Do this for several days until the hairs have whitened. Peroxide does not destroy the growth, merely bleaches it.

Alcohol rubs are recommended for treatment of oily hair. Dilute the alcohol one-half with water, trickle the mixture onto the scalp with a medicine dropper, get busy with the digits, moving the scalp about. Dip a cloth in the diluted alcohol, pass it over a small strand at a time, dry with a towel, sit in the sunlight for 20 minutes. This treatment can be given daily, if one can bear to wreck the heavenly wave.

Forged Letter Has Signatures of Missing Girls

"Why do you think Marion did not write the note?" my father asked quietly, when I pronounced the note, ostensibly from her, a forgery.

I explained the misspelled words and the faulty English, which I was sure Marion would note have used. My father listened carefully, his eyes fixed upon the lawn outside the window, his fingers holding the note lightly by the corner. Finally he looked over at me.

"Read it again to yourself," he directed, "so that you will have the feel of it, and then read it aloud to me."

I obeyed him, and then with a mighty effort kept my voice steady as I read the letter aloud.

"Dear Momsy," it began, and that was the first misspelling I noticed, for Marion always calls her mother "Moms" or "Mumsie," never using either an o or a y. "First, don't worry about us. The gentleman who took us away was awful nice to us, and the lady who he took us to is kind and nice. We are together in a nice clean room and we've got a comfortable, nice bed. It's so nice not to be seperated. The food is good to, or is it too? You know I always forget that Momsy, sweetie.

DEMAND $100,000

"But this is a bad business, Momsy. These men mean business, even though they are nice to us. I don't know just what they will do if you don't do what they ask. One of them is a leader and the two others his helpers, and the leader told me to write this. He says he don't want any handwriting of his to go out.

"He wants me to tell you to go up the Easton road to the first turn left, then the next turn left, and the next after that. You'll be climbing all the time and you'll come out on a sort of platow all clear. He wants you to remember the place and then tomorrow have an airplane fly over it and circle three times and dip twice to let the men know he's the right one.

"He's to drop a note inside a small pasteboard box so it won't blow away, telling when he can bring one hundred thousand dollars in bills and drop it in the same spot. When the men get the money they will blindfold us and take us to a place where we can can come home from. We're not anywhere near that field, the men say to tell you

"Goodbye, Momsy, and please do anything to get the money. Caroline and I are awful scared.

"Your loveing girl, Marian."

Below the signature was scrawled in a shaking hand:

"I'm scared, too. Please do something quick. Caroline."

REMEMBERS BEQUEST

My father threw his shoulders back as I finished. It was as if he were starting a race.

"Read it again," he said, and when I had complied he said quietly:

"That's a lot of money. I'm afraid it will bankrupt all of us, for of course we're all in this as much as the Underwoods. But that much in cash! There isn't that much!"

I caught my breath sharply, for I had just remembered where there was a sum, not as large as the one named, to be sure, but one which, added to our own resources, would fulfill the staggering demand contained in the letter.

Never had I told anyone about the bequest Robert Savarin had made to me upon his death bed, the half of his goodly fortune, which he did not dare to leave to Lillian because of Harry Underwood's jealousy of the love the elderly artist bore her. He had made a deed of gift of it to me, so that I could use it for Lillian if any desperate need arose in her life.

I knew that she would never touch the money for herself, nor for Marion under ordinary circumstances, because of her husband's feeling. But for this, I would not need to ask her consent. I knew that if Robert Savarin, wherever in the mysterious beyond was wandering, could speak to me, he would command me to use his money for the ransom of the child he had idolized because she was Lillian's daughter.

But, I also knew that I must speak of that money first to Dicky. That was his due. The money had been left to me, and I never had told him about it. If I used it, I must tell him first.

"We have until tomorrow to plan," I said. "First of all, Lillian and Harry must see this note."

"Not the note, the photographic copy of it," my father corrected. "I can't let anyone touch this note until my fingerprint man comes. Ah, Mrs. Barnes, that is fine!"

Mrs. Barnes had fastened a string diagonally across a small, but deep, pasteboard box.

"If you'll just keep that safe," he said.

"I'll put it away at once," she said. "The grocer and his boy are here, if you wish to see them."

Household Hints

A bowl heated and placed over a pat of hard butter will soon soften it.

Linen that has become slightly scorched can be restored by rubbing the affected parts with a piece of raw onion.

Crinkle paper cups are wonderfully convenient for baking individual cakes. Ice them and serve right in the cup.

Wallpaper that has become soiled by dust or smoke can be cleaned by rubbing it over with a flannel dipped in oatmeal.

To whiten handkerchiefs add one tablespoonful of peroxide of hydrogen to the water in which they are rinsed after washing. This will also remove fruit stains.

To preserve eggs, fill a wooden box with ordinary salt, smear each egg with olive oil and place in the salt with the pointed end downwards. Eggs treated in this way will keep fresh for some time.

Correct Manners

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Note of Thanks

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Will you kindly advise me if it is considered correct to send a thank you card to thank one for gifts received by my baby? If so should it be signed with the baby's name? M.

The best form is for you to write notes of thank-you when you are able to do this, and in the notes say how much the baby "enjoyed" the gift too. Don't use ready-made cards for this expression of thanks, which should be very personal.

Signatures

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1—A is applying for a position and in writing the letter signs herself as "Miss" Ada Lyon. B believes this to be incorrect. She thinks that it should just be signed "Ada Lyon." as the Miss would be taken for granted if the Mrs. were omitted.

2—C believes A is correct, but the Miss should not be in parenthesis.

Please tell me who is right?

D.

1—While it is true that when Miss is not written in parenthesis before a signature it is taken for granted that the writer is a Miss. It is best, especially in this kind of letter, where this fact might be very important, to write the Miss in parenthesis before the signature.

2—C is wrong, distinctly wrong. Never, never, in a direct signature should we prefix the name with the title unless we enclose that title in parentheses.

This is wrong:

Very sincerely yours,
Miss Mary Dascom.

This is right:

Very sincerely yours,
(Miss) Mary Dascom.

And this is right:

Very truly yours,
Mary Dascom Jones.
(Mrs. Henry Jones).

'CHOCOLATE SOLDIER' :-: Ethel Merman, Comics With Rudy Vallee :-: ON THE AIR TONIGHT

7 Movie Stars In Hollywood Broadcast

"The Chocolate Soldier," Oscar Strauss' operetta that became a success by making fun of light opera heroes, is presented in miniature as the Aborn Light Opera Company's Five Star Theater feature over CBS-WJAS from 10 to 10:30 tonight. The work, a musical version of Bernard Shaw's play, "Arms and the Man," has the mythical Balkan kingdom that has been the setting for so many operettas as its background. Edward Nell, Jr., sings the role of Lieut. Bumerli; Gladys Baxter appears as Nadina, Vivian Hart as Mascha and Roy Cropper as Alexis. The remainder of the cast, the major portion of which has frequently been seen in stage production of "The Chocolate Soldier," includes Hal Ford, Ann Carey and John Willard.

Miss Baxter

Those nut comedians, Olsen and Johnson, make a return air appearance as guest artists with Rudy Vallee over WCAE tonight at 8. They co-star with Ethel Merman, blues singer, whose scheduled appearance with Rudy on a previous Thursday night was canceled; Hal Skelly and Ken Murray. Miss Merman, currently featured in "Take a Chance," offers a group of "torch" songs; Skelly is heard in a scene from "Burlesque," his big dramatic hit of a recent season, and Murray and Olsen and Johnson provide the comedy.

Program Pointers

Seven of Hollywood's junior stars—Eleanor Holm, aquatic champion and Wampas star; Dorothy Wilson, Julie Haydon, Tom Brown, Ben Alexander, Richard Cromwell and William Bakewell—come to the microphone during the "Hollywood on the Air" broadcast over an NBC network, including WCAE, from 12:30 to 1 a. m. . . . Ward Wilson's impersonation of Jack Benny, genial master of ceremonies and comedian, and the antics of the laugh-provoking pair, Willie and Eugene Howard, are KDKA 7:15 highlights

Miss Holm

Jack Pearl, alias the Baron Munchausen, unheralded and unsung master musician of the age, tells about the various times he's been summoned to play his own concerto on the zither before all of the crowned heads in Europe and the Orient on WCAE at 10. George Olsen and his orchestra provide the rhythms.

Robison Gives 3 Prairie Songs

Three of his own compositions, culled from the 250-odd songs of the prairies he has written, are featured by Carson Robison and his Pioneers on WCAE at 7:30 tonight.

Uncle Bob, Betty Read Comics

Uncle Bob and Betty take WCAE listeners on another delightful "tour" of the mythical land of comic page characters when they read the Sun-Telegraph "funnies" at 6 o'clock tonight.

Twin broadcasts over WCAE and WJAS by Louis L. Kaufman, Globe-Trotter of the Sun-Telegraph and Hearst Metrotone News, are listed at 9:05 a. m., 12:15 p. m., 2:15 p. m. and 6:30 p. m. today. His schedule tomorow is identical with the exception of the 2:15 news talk, heard on WCAE only.

Listening In On Radio Gossip

Lee Vaughn, veteran radio actress, has been added to Fred Allen's "Bath Club" cast to play leading comedy roles. . . . Stoopnagle and Budd have been signed by Paramount to appear in a full-length talkie, "International House." . . . Mr. and Mrs. Peter Dixon, whose "Raising Junior" skits were long an NBC-WJZ network feature, tried out a new chain idea from a Jersey City radio station Sunday. The broadcast marked one of the few times this plan of tryouts, followed in the theater many years, has been used in network broadcasting.

Miss Vaughn

If you'd learn the microphone faults and virtues of radio's performers, ask the control men—those unsung gentlemen who sit behind the glass windows in the studios—Rudy Vallee's said to be the most "mike perfect" performer with Eddie Cantor running a close second. Ed Wynn is the "most difficult" to handle—largely because of the many microphone shifts which are a part of the Fire Chief show. Walter Winchell bears watching because of his tendency to "blast the mike." Jack Pearl has a nearly perfect technique and Paul Whiteman is probably the most microphone-conscious.

* * *

Ward Wilson, dozing in front of his radio the other afternoon, heard the familiar strains of the Royal Vagabonds' rarely-played-on-other-programs theme song, "Love Is Love," from "The Royal Vagabond." He gave a yell and a leap and, still in a fog, looked wildly about for a microphone. The melody is his cue to start talking.

Globe-Trotting

With the Globe-Trotter of the Sun-Telegraph and Hearst Metrotone News

By LOUIS L. KAUFMAN

Hello, Ladies and Gentlemen:

It has always been said, by the more authoritative sources, that when in doubt, talk about the weather. Under cover of the fog, this column has existed for many days. Now under a blanket of snow, we continue to function. We present another appeal for our feathered friends. You know the birds can't knock on your door and say:

"Lady, have you a crust of bread?"

Be thoughtful, ladies and gentlemen, be thoughtful.

* * *

And while you're in such a benevolent frame of mind, don't forget the little boys and girls who may be almost as helpless as the birds. There are many deserving ones who will find Christmas just an empty, cheerless word. Here's a chance to clear that attic or empty storeroom of many toys that are no longer useful to your family. They don't have to be in perfect shape or tip-top condition. Send them to the Pittsburgh Toy Mission for distribution among the poor children of Pittsburgh. The address is First avenue and Wood street.

* * *

Ah-ha. There's a Globe-Trotter Dancing Club now. They held a dance the other night. And believe me, the fox-trot is passe. C'mon everybody—let's do the Globe-TROT.

* * *

Here's a bargain that the Globe-Trotter struck up with H. J. Neely, head of the city's Department of Highways and Sewers. If the "sled-riders" will tell me their favorite coasting streets, I'll tell Mr. Neely, who promises to rope off the streets where maximum safety can be provided and furnish police protection. Mr. Neely, the youthful globe-trotters will be grateful—and their parents more so.

Lanny Ross, Bledsoe In 'Show Boat'

NBC-WCAE at 9 tonight brings another varied "Show Boat" program featuring Lanny Ross in sentimental appeal as he sings "Dream Lover;" Jules Bledsoe's baritone interpretation of "I Got the South in My Soul;" Annette Hanshaw's version of "Between the Devil and the Deep Blue Sea" and the Hall Johnson Choir singing "Lindy Lou."

TIP ON TRICKY CIPHER

Fans Having Trouble With No. 25, So Here's Help

By KENNETH A. NAGEL
Cipher Editor

Lots of persons say Cipher No. 25 is causing them trouble. How are you getting along? Here's a tip.

The biliteral cipher is based on the mathematical fact that the transposition of two objects—blocks, letters, radishes, roller skates, etc.—will yield 32 dissimilar combinations.

Of these, only 24 would be necessary to represent the letters of the alphabet (i and j, u and v were interchangeable when Sir Francis Bacon devised this code).

As soon as you've mentally digested this fact, make up a "key" alphabet.

Write a column of letters of the alphabet, remembering that "i" and "j" as well as "u" and "v" should be regarded as one unit. Then, on the same line as the first letter of your alphabet, write the letter "a" five times.

Under the fifth letter "a" write the letter "b"—and alternate "a's" and "b's" to the bottom of this column.

In column No. 4, there should be two "a's" and "b's", alternating the PAIRS until the column is complete. Column No. 3 consists of four "a's" followed by four "b's" to the end of the column. In No. 2, place eight "a's' followed by eight "b's" and eight "a's". In No. 1 column, you must have 16 "a's" followed by eight "b's".

Now get the rest yourself. It shouldn't be so hard. Write or call the Cipher Editor if you get it.

Cipher No. 25

JUST KEEP TRYING. IF YOU FEEL THAT PILL SEEM TO STICK, JAM BOYS THE GREASE. YOU DREAD MOST TO DO A WORSE TASK. I SPY A GRAYER SKY. THE THING LOOMS BLACK ON TOP SO BE KINDLY SPEEDY. I TAKE THRONGS IMPRESSIBLE.

Watch for the answer tomorrow and a new original cipher.

Walter Winchell ON BROADWAY

Sonnet On It

Of all the specious banes extant in life,
The columnists exceed the worst excuse.
They foster rancor, gossip, hate and strife;
They're sort of like unjustified abuse,
Chicanery, intrigue, and much besides
Which never looks so beautiful in print.
As regular and ruthless as the tides
They go to press by labor and by dint.

Yes, there they are on every blessed eve,
Airing their piffle in their wonted way.
They never seem to miss, I do believe,
The issue of a solitary day.

And if they did, through any known conniption,
Darned if I wouldn't cancel my subscription;
—Albert W. Elsner.

Power of the Pests

The other week-end the newspapers played up the fact that Norma Talmadge settled huge money to guarantee Mrs. G. Jessel's divorce cash bargain. Jessel was miserable about the stories. He sent for Eddie Cantor, who rushed to the Jessel dressing room at the Paramount Theater.

"Those awful newspaper pests!" shrieked Jessel; "look what they're doing to me!"

Cantor peeped through the hole in the curtain at the jammed theater.

"Look," said Eddie, "that's what the newspapres are doing to you!"

Heheheh

J. H. Pollack was at a third-rate show the other night in Philadelphia and he felt like yelling: "Okay, Ham-erica!"

Add Inventions

Walter W. Browne, of Detroit, submits these for the approval of Stoopnagle and Budd, creators of needed inventions.

A cigaret case that will snap shut on the fingers of muggs who ask you for a ciggie, and then take two . . . Also a typewriter that squirts ink on kibitzers who sit all over your desk or look over your shoulder when you're trying to do your column!

No Hamateurs, At All

Some time ago when Ethel Barrymore heard the false rumor that Alexander Woollcott was to be in the cast of "Design for Living" (in which Noel Coward, Alfred Lunt and Lynn Fontanne will appear), she commented:

"Good! That makes four amateurs altogether!"

That quip was related to Coward. He replied:

"There will be several other persons in the cast, including no Woollcotts!"

O, Mr. Wilstach!

Recommended for the Best Similes Dicksh: Judge—If hockey isn't rough, then the Democrats don't owe Raskob a dime, and Kate Smith is a toe dancer! . . . Ted Cook, unemployed as an engraver of stock certificates . . . Helen Rowland: As superfluous as mistletoe at a whoopee party.

Nasty Note

Barney Friedman wants to spoil our whole evening with this:

"Bertrand Russell recently wrote that language, like every other social institution, requires a conflict between the conservative and the revolutionary, and the revolutionary in language is the inventor of slang. If your phrase red?"

A Few Kind Words

Martin Starr, who is preparing material on the Ziegfeld book, writes:

"I discovered that the boss, attributed a great part of the success of his show 'Whoopee' to the catchiness and timeliness of the word in 1929. He handout such neat royalties as 61,000 smackers to Sam H. Harris (who owned 'The Nervous Wreck,' on which the musical was based); $30,600.40 to William Anthony McGuire, the author; Walter Donaldson and Gus Kahn, who did the songs, each received $20,400.26, while Seymour Felix, who arranged the dances, was entitled to 9,800 case-notes.

"What your sharpshooters and sneerers in show business especially will appreciate, is that, ironically, you—who made 'Whoopee' a household word in 1929—didn't get a penny or even a note of thanks from all concerned . . . What an amusing business!"

How about those Hollywood guys? In return for titles, I got—look, I can show you the marks!

Izzy Elinsonisms

Jack Dempsey has become an orchestra leader. As an ex-heavyweight fighter, he will, of course, feature the waltz . . . As if the unemployment situation isn't bad enough this winter—Jimmy Walker fades from the New York scene, and now George Jessel has nobody to introduce!

Merrily We Roll a Log

(over a rival's neck!)

One of the local Broadway columnists (not us, ehhhh?) had to be sent home from the editorial rooms the other night, after being felled by his first heart attack.

"Gosh," gosh'd a radio critic (whose name we omit for fear he might imagine we are baiting him for favorable mention), "did you hear what happened to Sidney? The poor kid had a heart attack!"

"He ought to be very happy," snarled a Connie Bennett admirer, "to find out that he has a heart!"

Roles will be played by Donald Buka and Lenore Malakoff, Mrs. Isabelle Jones, Martha Arnold, George Lobinger and Ann Hinsdale Bateman.

Irish Players Excel In 'Juno'

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

'Twas Barry Fitzgerald night in the Nixon last night, and a big night, too, for the audience that was fortunate enough to witness the Irish Players in their unmatchable production of a most difficult tragedy, Sean O'Casey's "Juno and the Paycock." When it is said the production, as done by this company of rare artists, is unmatchable, the implication of superlative degree need be taken with no grain of salt and no exception consisting of—"unless it be matched by some future company from the famed Abby Theater of Dublin." As for the possibility of surpassing it—it is a sacrilege to think of such a thing.

"Juno and the Paycock" is proclaimed a most difficult tragedy because, unlike the more highly keyed greater tragedies of the classic grade, it is not tuned to the stentorian note of melodrama, but to that of comedy. It is developed amidst the pathetic humor of the poor rather than the epic grandeur of the flight of high ambition. The tragic idea is a growth from an almost farcical beginning to the starkest of dramatic climaxes, from which it drops back again to comedy that is just a grim piling of tragedy upon tragedy, like decorating despair with a grinning mask.

IRISH RIP VAN WINKLE

The story is that of a Dublin family, the head of which is an Irish duplicate of Rip Van Winkle or "Lightnin'" Bill Jones, a good fellow around the taverns, while his wife has the burden of caring for the man, herself and two children. Through a will there is promise of better things, and their condition improves through credit arising from this promise. But the will is one of those terrible jokes that dying people sometimes perpetrate upon expectant relatives, and no money comes.

This revelation is accompanied by other developments that are much more serious, terrifically serious, but, as stated, the framework is developed in a comedy vein, hence the play is not depressing.

TRIUMPH FOR ACTOR

Barry Fitzgerald achieved a personal triumph in his depiction of the chief character, that of "Captain" Jack Boyle, or the "Paycock," to whom the thought of work was sure to bring on twinges of pain in the leg. So natural seemed the characterization that, between acts, members of the audience marveled that the actor could seem so much the man.

Yet the piece, in its characters, was fitted together like a pattern, and there were no parts that didn't fit. While Mr. Fitzgerald dominated, others were equally skilled in what they had to do. Especially Eileen Crowe, as Mrs. Boyle, or "Juno," so called because June was the month of many events in her life, including marriage. Also F. J. McCormick as another copy of the "Paycock," and the latter's boon companion. Kate Curling played excellently as the daughter, and Arthur Shields gave a good impression of a crippled invalid son. Maureen Delaney, U. Wright, May Craig, P. J. Carolan, Michael J. Dolan and Denis O'Dea all helped to make the play realistic.

TRIPLE MATINEE BILL

Two comedies and a tragedy were presented at the matinee, both the lighter plays out of Lady Gregory's locker, and "Birthright," by T. C. Murray, reviewed here by George Seibel.

Murray has written another version of the Jacob and Esau, Cain and Abel, plot which runs through the world's literature from the beginnings. P. J. Carolan was the moody and superstitious farmer who favors the one son at the cost of the other; Maureen Delany was the mother, who has to bear the brunt of the action, being almost continually on the stage. The play unfolds somewhat slowly and the tragic outcome seems forced, but the acting was up to the high standard of the Abbey Players in all their work.

The well-known farce of "The Workhouse Ward" was played uproariously by F. J. McCormick and Barry Fitzgerald, and the almost equally familiar "Spreading the News" was done with much vim. From now on there will be no changes in the bills as announced.

Whole Hersholt Family

Allen, son, Mrs. and Jean Hersholt, latter the fine character actor of many films.

Plays and Players

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

"The Playboy of the Western World," by John M. Synge, generally recognized as a genius of the Irish literary renaissance, of which the Abbey Theater of Dublin is a prominent product, will be the principal offering of the Irish Players from that theater in the Nixon tonight. It has been described as overflowing "with beautiful lines that are swinging and lilting, rich in delicious satire and uproarious humor." This is the play that was particularly resented by those of Irish blood who were stirred by strong racial pride when it was presented first in this country two decades ago by the original group of Irish Players. Time appears to have mellowed original objectors, for the Synge opus is now accepted as one of the great comedies of the English language. It will be preceded by a curtain-raiser, "Spreading the News," one-act comedy by Lady Gregory, who accompanied the Irish Players on their first visit to this country.

* * *

"East Lynne," old-time melodrama, to be presented by the George Sharp Players in the Pitt next week, takes its name from a locality. It had been the seat of an earl, Lord Mount Severn. What would literature and the drama be without its lords and ladies? Nothing—especially "East Lynne," which, while its lord has vanished, still has its Lady Isabel, his daughter and a child of misfortune if there ever was one. If it has no earl, it at least has a "Sir," and what an unprincipled villain he is! Jean May will play Lady Isabella and Alden Chase will be seen as her husband, whom the good lady is deluded into believing is unfaithful, a belief that brings sorrow to everybody on and off the stage—except the villain. The company will be enlarged for this production.

* * *

"Biography," which had its premiere in the Nixon last week, may save the Theater Guild's season yet. It was well received, both for the play and its star, Ina Claire, in New York at its opening there Monday. Critics were of the opinion that it may develop into a hit, the first of the season for the Guild, which previously produced "The Good Earth" and "The Pure in Heart."

'East of Fifth Avenue' Cast Increased

Henry Clive and Gino Corrado are the latest additions to the cast of Columbia's "East of Fifth Avenue," the dramatic story of an Italian emigrant who tried to buck the politicians and racketeers of the East Side "quarter," where he had become a power among his own people. Leo Carrillo and Lois Wilson play the leads, with Mary McLaren, Eddie Garr and Dickie Moore in featured roles. Ben Stoloff is directing.

Betty Compson Back In Hollywood

After a year on tour as headliners of a Fanchon and Marca revue, Betty Compson returned to Hollywood last week and immediately was signed by Carl Laemmle, Jr., for the only feminine role in "Destination Unknown."

Russ Jewels On Screen

Former treasures of the Russian czars, valued at $1,000,000, recently brought to America and displayed for the first time, are shown in the current issue of Hearst Metrotone News. The display illustrates how the Romanoffs spent their money. Solid gold tea-sets, champagne buckets and other trinkets are included. The Globe Trotter gives a detailed explanation of their history.

Grace Moore, star of the operetta, "The Du Barry," and former soprano of the Metropolitan Opera, pleads for the needy. She is seen and heard as she sings "Home, Sweet Home," and makes a personal appeal for the thousands of unfortunates.

It is springtime in Australia and 100,000 persons gather at the Flemington track in Melbourne for the opening of the racing season.

Dry leaders are seen and heard as they open their fight against repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment or the modification of the Volstead Act.

Rough-and-tumble playing marks the hockey game between the Americans and Rangers at Madison Square Garden.

Spectacular scenes show the great gridiron clash of Notre Dame and Southern California at the Memorial Coliseum in Los Angeles, won by Southern California by a score of 13-0.

Colbert Contract Is Ended And She Won't Be Back In Old Studio

By HARRISON CARROLL

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 15.

When the old year tolls out, it will be quits between Claudette Colbert and Paramount.

Despite her big role in "The Sign of the Cross" and currently in "The Queen Was in the Parlor," the French actress tells friends that she positively will not sign again with the company that has been her studio home for three years.

She is willing to free-lance or to listen to contract offers from other outfits—and you can write it down that there will be plenty of propositions of both kinds. No established star goes begging these days when the fans are shopping so relentlessly for their entertainment.

Miss Colbert

Interesting to observe that Claudette and Norman Foster still make a success of their two-establishment married life. Her mother lives with her and Norman lives alone. But you always see the Fosters together at parties.

* * *

Most of Hollywood guessed wrong about that football game Saturday. Among them is Roscoe Ates.

"I had a hunch," says Roscoe, "and bet on the Irish. That makes me the original 'Hunchback of Notre Dame.'"

FOOTBALL NO TREAT

With everybody else at the football game Saturday, two earnest young golfers had a certain course almost entirely to themselves. A scout of mine spotted them as Katharine Hepburn and Don Terry, constant luncheon companions of the last two weeks. It turns out that the whimsical Hepburn lass asked Terry to teach her the game and then shot a 93. With his clubs, too. Later on, she confessed being the runner-up for the Connecticut title four years ago. At that, Don beat her. His score was 87.

Miss Hepburn

Another score for "Hollywood's "divorced but friendly" club. Kathlyn Williams was at the football game with Charles Eyton . . . The Mayfair also produced two interesting combinations. Dorothy Jordan was at one table with Merian Cooper, the RKO producer, while Ronald Dilloway was at another with the pretty Lenore Bushman . . . Joan Crawford, who is always nice to newcomers, had Franchot Tone and Benita Hume as her guests . . . Lupe Velez was squired by the omnipresent Johnny Weissmuller, and Jack Oakie had Arthur Lake's sister, Florence, for his partner . . . Gary Cooper took the Countess Frasso, of course, and Mary Pickford went with Buddy Rogers.

TO STAGE HORRORS

George K. Arthur has struck Hollywood's fancy with his plan to open a series of "Grand Guignol" plays here December 28. With opening night tickets selling at premiere prices, $5 a pasteboard, 200 seats already have been sold. This is a third of the capacity of the Hollywood Music Box Theater.

Interest in the project is being built by the reports of many stars who have seen these horror plays abroad. Georgie says there are about 100 shockers available, so he can change his program every few weeks. Hollywood authors also are phoning in about plays of their own. Both Frances Marion and Rupert Hughes have originals that would fit in.

And just in case some over-squeamish spectator faints, Georgie is putting a doctor and a nurse under a run-of-the-play contract, which goes "Dracula" one better. It only had a nurse.

Broadways of the World

All in a Day

—By Mark Hellinger—

MAJESTIC HOTEL, TUNIS, NORTH AFRICA.—As I sit down to write this column I have been in Tunis exactly 10 hours. I'd like to describe the strangeness of this town, but I'm afraid that will have to wait until another day. For, of the 10 hours I've been here, nine of them were spent in the world's dizziest custom house with Mr. Hellinger up to his neck in trouble and Arabs.

The fun began the moment I put my foot on African soil. My baggage was dumped before an elderly gentleman with a wide mustache and narrow mind. He looked at me suspiciously and ordered me to open my first bag.

I did as directed. I was carrying a lot of motion picture film with me and I figured that I would have some trouble with it. So I deliberately held that for the very end. By the time he went through all the junk I was carrying I imagined that he'd pass the box of film by in order to get rid of me.

Well, children, that bird was an absolute pip. I was smiling hopefully as he hit the first piece of luggage, but the smile disappeared in nothing flat as the dope began to dump things on the dock. First a pair of shoes. Then handkerchiefs. Then a sweater. Then socks. And all, mind you, for the payment of duty.

When he arrived at the second bag, half the contents of the first were strewn all over the dock. If a sudden windstorm had come up at the moment, half my shirts would have been blown right back into Nat Lewis' window. It was all very lovely.

The second bag went the same way as the first. Ties, underwear, dress shirts and whatnots were tossed on the dirty pier. By this time, quite a crowd had collected around us. Numerous Arabs, old and young, were pawing my garments. And filth—wow! It would have been almost impossible ever to have given those guys a bath. You'd first have to start with a rake.

As my pal was about to dive into the third bag, I touched him on the shoulder.

"Tell you what you do," I suggested hopefully. "We'll just reverse the whole process. You pay me the duty—and you keep the bags."

My only answer was a grunt from the runt. Twenty minutes went by. Half an hour. And finally, after what seemed to be five or six years, he came to the last box; the one that contained some 15,000 feet of motion picture film.

When I explained in my expert sign language that it was motion picture film, the gentleman's mustache began to shimmy and he fairly squealed with delight. He talked rapidly to me in some language that seemed to be a combination of French and Arabic. And I, of course, had no knowledge of what he was talking about.

The crowd grew larger. His voice rose higher. He pointed at the film. He began to shake my lapel. His mustache quivered violently. His eyes began to roll. His voice went higher and higher. I began to wonder whether I was on an African dock or in one of Aimee McPherson's revival meetings.

It had taken me a long time, but I finally boiled over. I grabbed the dope by the tie and yanked him toward me. It was a stupid thing to do because I was in a strange country and anything might have happened. But I couldn't help myself

"Listen, you bum," I fairly screamed. "I've had enough of this. I'm not paying you one dime now or at any other time. I'm going to lock those grips and leave them here. I'm going to see the American ambassador, the French consul, the Tunis chief of police and—if there's a local Winchell—I'll see him, too. How do you like those onions?"

I released the mug, locked my baggage and raced from the pier. Nobody made the slightest effort to stop me. I didn't know where I was going, but I was on my way.

Within two hours, I was back at the dock. Through the luckiest of breaks, I had come upon a highly intelligent gentleman named Frederic Knobel, a member of the French diplomatic service. About him I will write much more in the future. But for the present, it will be sufficient to tell you that, through him, I immediately received letters of indorsement from practically everyone of importance in Tunis. And that included a note to release my film free of duty, from the head of the entire customs.

I went in search of my officer with a song in my heart and a pain in my head. I searched the entire joint, but not a soul could I find. It suddenly dawned upon me that this was the luncheon period and, if they observed the same idea as France, nobody would return to work for at least two hours. I sat down to wait.

I am now in a position to tell you that they do observe the same idea as France, except that here they go the ruling country one better. Instead of resting from 12 to 2, they rest from 12 to 3. And if they feel that to be insufficient, they just take off the rest of the day and let it go at that. It's the ideal spot to raise a race of columnists.

At any rate, after a horribly tedious wait, the gentleman with the shimmying mustache reappeared upon the scene. I waved my papers under the slight portion of nose that could be seen through the mustache.

"Read those, you monkey," I cried. "Read 'em and jump. I'll teach you to fool around with the wrong guy in the future."

He read the papers and, to my utter amazement, he did nothing more than shrug his shoulders. I found me an interpreter and attempted to find out what the trouble was now. The interpreter was most explicit.

"The officer says," he reported, "that the head of the customs doesn't know what he's talking about. He will release your films on this order, but you must leave 2,000 francs here as a guarantee. Or if you do not want to leave the money, you must get the manager of your hotel to guarantee you."

How do you like that? Not only was this customs man calling his boss a complete jackass, but he was insisting upon a guarantee that was something of a complete mystery. What was the guarantee for? Who? Why? Why?

I could get no satisfaction out of the interpreter, but I had made up my mind about one thing. I wasn't going to pay those bozos one single penny if I had to stay in that dingy custom house a solid week. If they wanted a guarantee, they would have it. I raced back to my hotel, explained the situation to the manager through another interpreter, received the guarantee—and raced back to the pier.

Another hour of deliberation and my film and baggage were finally released. But not until I had to pay everyone in the joint for keeping open after hours. They finally got me in one direction anyhow.

Back in the hotel, I told the head porter all the details. Could he tell me what that mysterious guarantee was all about? He could. They wanted to be sure that, if I had been fined, I could have paid it!...

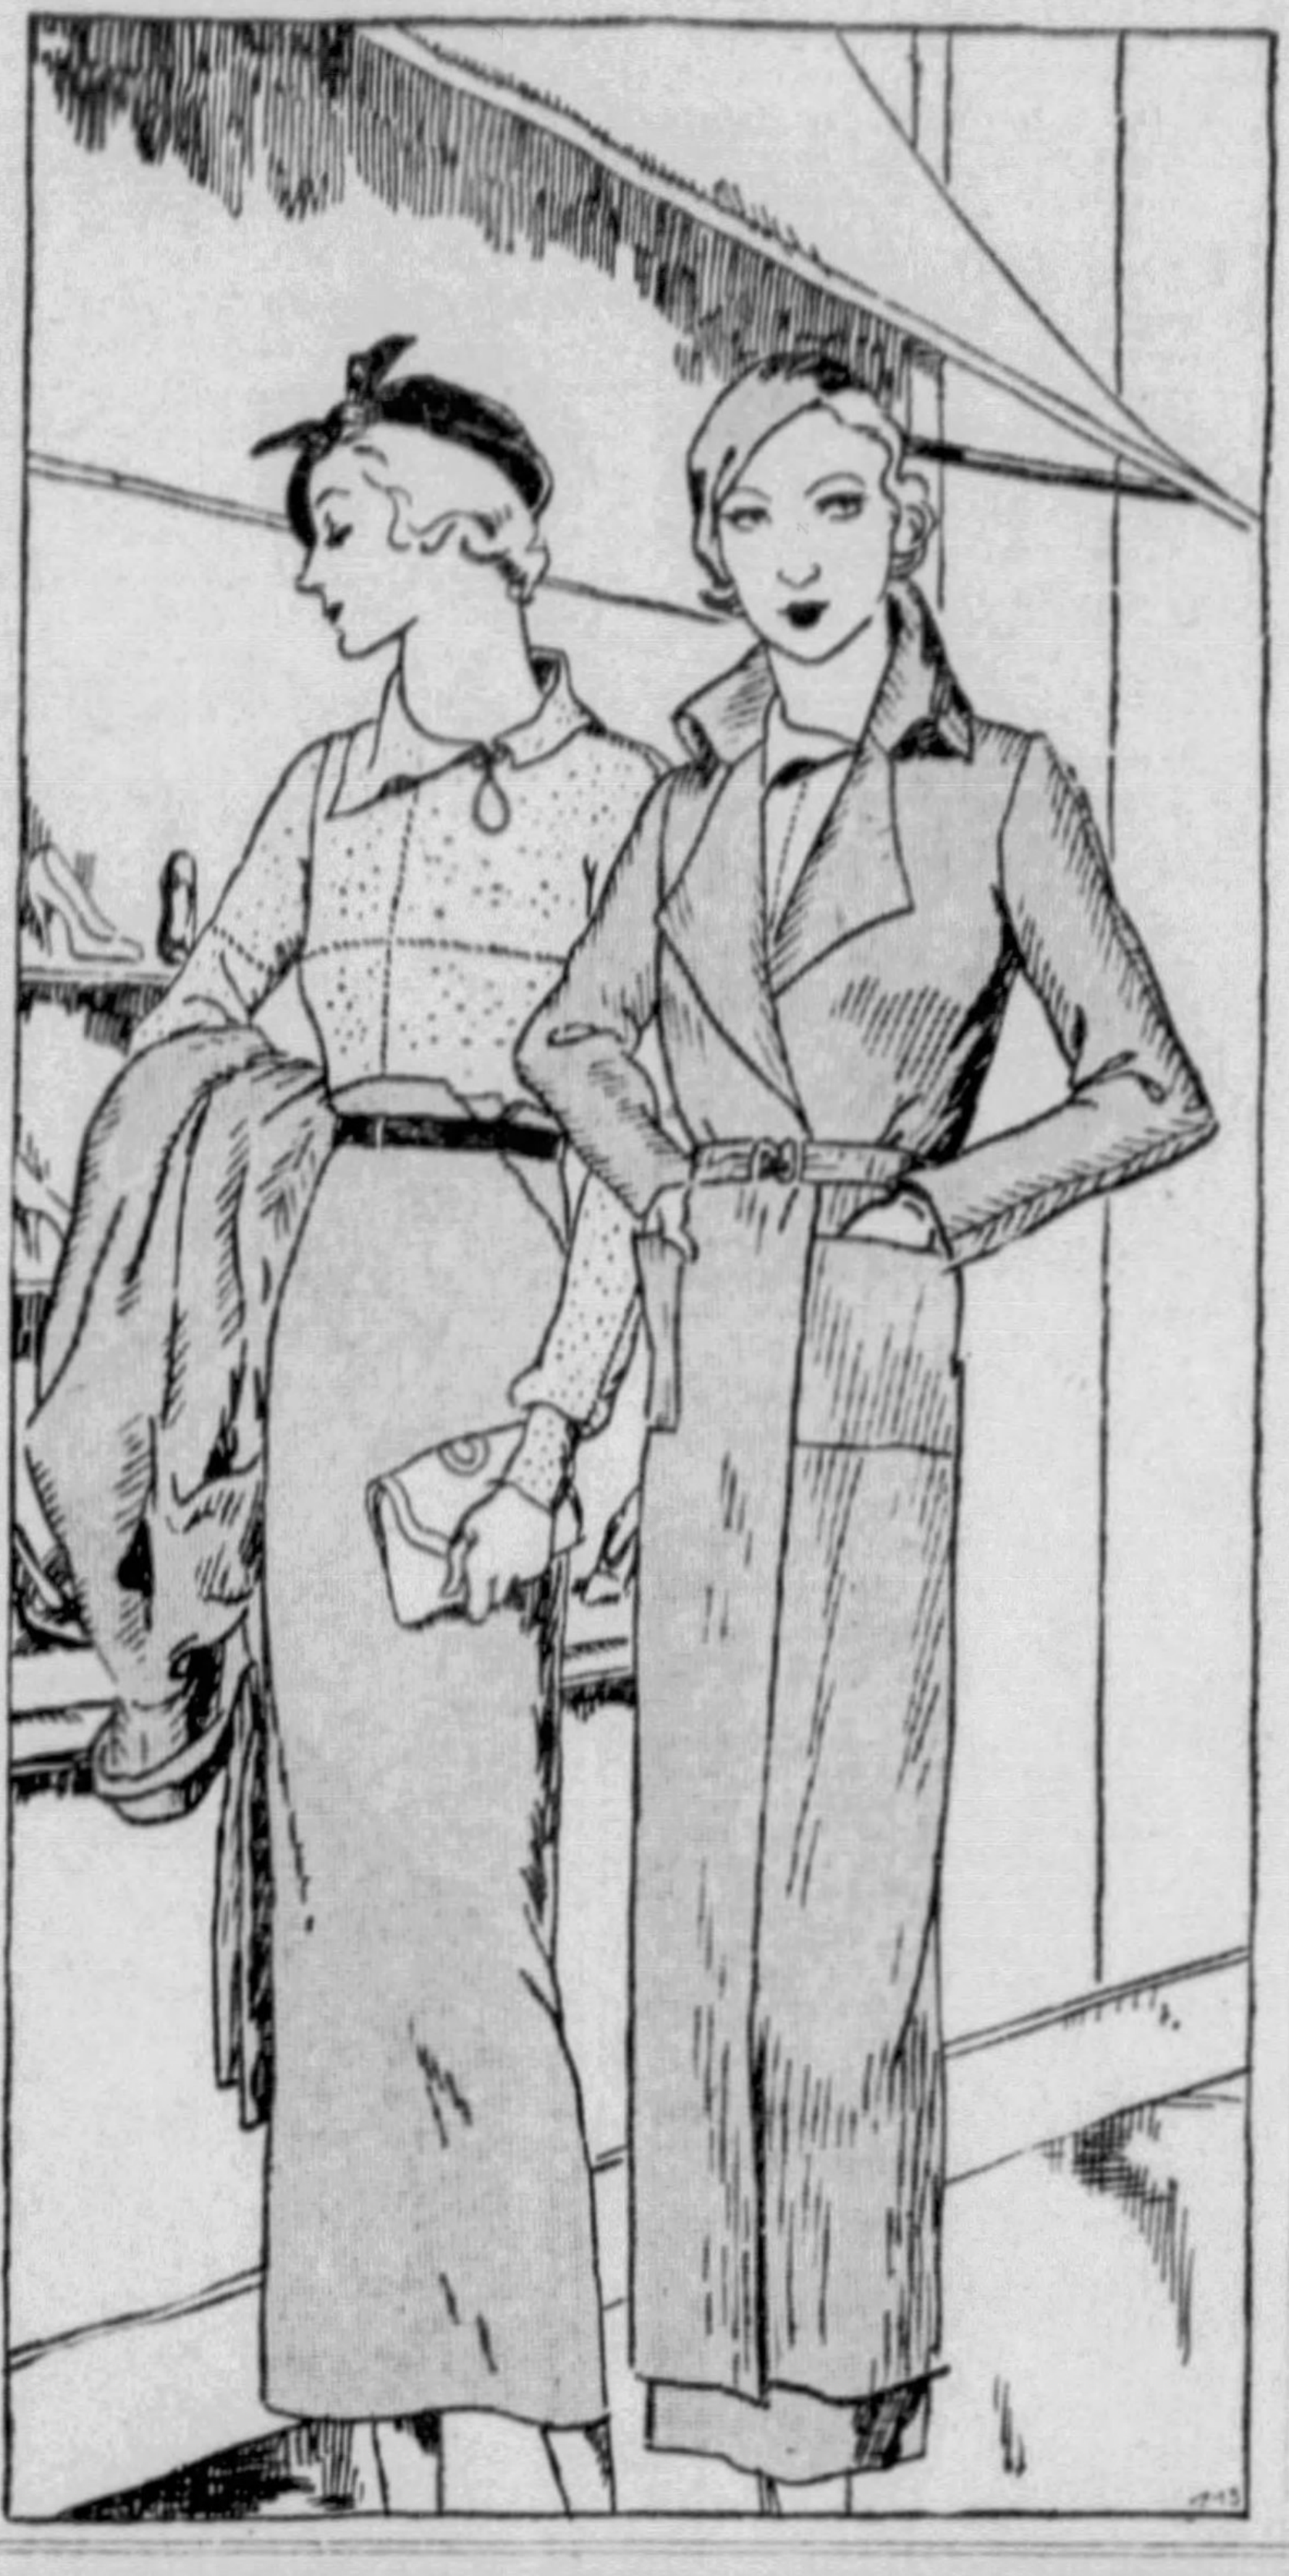
UTILITY COSTUMES FAVOR VELVET

—Sketched in Paris—



Paris Bureau,
Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

PARIS, Dec. 15.—The days when velvet was classed as a luxury are over, 1933 velvets, for the majority, are good, solid, practical materials, listed under the same headings as tweeds and homespuns and destined for utility clothes. Sports suits, town coats, rain overcoats and other such utilitarian costumes are those which are made of velvets these days—velvets and corduroys of sturdy, wearable and durable weaves.

* * *

THE PARIS women themselves rather than the creators of styles have brought these fabrics into being. They have asked, year after year, for clothes made of some material that would stand up under hard wear, yet whose appearance would belie its very solidity. Velvet raincoats began to appear at Deauville, at Dinard and at the race courses in Paris itself. Women found that they didn't need to resort to dull, drab-looking affairs in dun colorings, during rainy weather, but could wear velvet instead, in reds, blues, greens and even white.

* * *

NOW THE utility topcoat of velvet or corduroy in some light, cheerful color is almost standard equipment among French women. The smartest dressmakers of Paris are showing it among their models of advance clothes for early spring and for wear right now in countries where the weather is not cold enough for furs. In today's sketch, Worth shows how smart is the combination of velvet, corduroy and tricot, in a light gray three-piece costume, accented with black.

* * *

THE SKIRT is cut slightly on the bias, and is made in wrap-around fashion; its waistline reaches above the black leather belt and goes over a tuck-in sweater-blouse. The corduroy coat, in matching color, is in classic tailored.

Frances Dee Given Lead

Frances Dee has been given the romantic lead in the Paramount-B. P. Schulberg production of the successful European mystery play, "The Crime of the Century." Miss Dee is just completing her role in "King of the Jungle," which followed parts in "If I Had a Million" and "The Night of June 13."

In "The Crime of the Century" she will appear with Jean Hersholt, Stuart Erwin, Wynne Gibson, Robert Elliott and David Landau under the direction of William Beaudine.

The play, in which a supposedly "perfect crime" is committed, was written by Walter Maria Espe and adapted for the screen by Florence Ryerson and Brian Marlow.

Buck Decides to Risk Life To Rout Out Ferocious Malayan Tiger

CHAPTER LIV.

Selecting about two acres at the edge of the jungle, where the forest was thin enough to allow the sun to penetrate between the trees, I brought 30 Chinese carpenters up from Singapore and built all around this area a framework of logs and planks 16 feet high, with a sort of catwalk along the top. Then I made a trip into Singapore and bought corrugated iron sheets enough to line the entire enclosure. This was hauled by motor lorries and bullock carts to our jungle headquarters.

When the work was completed, we had a structure as efficient for its purpose as it was incongruous in its wild jungle surroundings—a solid wall of sheet iron, sixteen feet high, so smooth on the inside that no joint protruded where a tiger could get a foothold to jump or climb over.

This fence encircled about two acres of as picturesque jungle as I have ever seen. A small trap door was arranged in one side, so that a cage could be pushed up against the outside, the gate raised by a pulley, and the tiger permitted to walk in and feel perfectly at home in surroundings to which he was accustomed. Any number of cameras could operate from the catwalk on top of the fence.

Within a week we had trapped one of the big cats, about eighteen miles away from our improvised compound. It was a particularly fine specimen, a big male measuring nearly ten feet in length from nose to tip of tail, in the very prime of life—just the ideal animal for our purpose.

FREED FROM CAGE

Having photographed the trapping episode and also that of getting the big cat out of the trap and hauling him by bullock cart down through the jungle trails to our headquarters, we placed the huge log crate against the trap door, raised the gate and gave him his restricted freedom.

The center of our enclosure comprised about an acre, more or less, of heavy brush cane and creepers as thick and impenetrable as any of the jungle outside.

Surrounding this within the walled space were the lighter areas, including a good-sized grass plot entirely open to the tropical sun, a small pond and other settings deemed appropriate picturizing locations.

My hunch was that on being released the tiger would make for the heavy brush but that he would soon come out and wander about, drinking water at the pool and showing himself in the lighter places where we could get some splendid pictures of the jungle terror in his natural element.

My long experience with wild animals proved to me years ago that they just won't do what is expected of them, and this cat proved no exception to the rule.

He made a bee-line from the trap door to the heavy brush and there he remained throughout the morning. From our perches on top of the wall we could disturb his feline solitude, all to no avail.

ANIMAL STAYS HIDDEN

At noon I sent Ali to a village three miles distant, where a Chinaman kept a small store for the sale of Chinese firecrackers (essential merchandise wherever there is a colony of celestials). The boy came back with a grand assortment of noise-makers, and I threw package after package with fuse lighted into the brush at different points where I thought the tiger might have taken refuge. Even this did not budge him.

Next "smoke pots" were tried. These are devices used for years in the making of movies to simulate clouds and fogs. When this device first came into vogue in the picture-making industry I recognized its value as an accessory to my animal-catching equipment, and have used it on many occasions to rout some stubborn animal out of a den or cave. But my efforts to smoke out Mr. Tiger were as unavailing as those preceding them.

He was either unaware that anything unusual was going on, or he was bored—or both. The fact that our smoke pots belched forth enough in the way of dark clouds to make a small bit of Johore look like Vesuvius for a few minutes, seemed to mean nothing at all to our bashful jungle cat.

By mid-afternoon, when all efforts to get the tiger out into the open had met with failure, my associates were beginning to show signs of impatience. Transport a director and camera man, accustomed to Hollywood actors, local topical events and nothing more hazardous in the way of animal photography than a tame lion on a studio set, into the raw jungle of Malaya, and they are rather lost.

A DANGEROUS TASK

They don't know what to expect next and they are likely to become impatient when they find that you cannot order jungle animals around as you can movie actors or trained studio animals with keepers in attendance. Not that this worried me so much, for I determined at the outset to use the same patience in the making of wild animal pictures that I had always used in the collecting of animals for the zoos, but we had already strained our time schedule pretty severely in attempting to get these tiger ground-shots, and unfortunately we had been so confident of completing the work on this day that we had made definite arrangements with the native contractor to have his coolies on hand the very next morning to start scrapping our timber and sheet iron wall.

Also we had planned to move on up country just as soon as this work got under way. Postponing these pictures even for a day would mean a considerable amount of inconvenience asd expense to everybody concerned.

So I decided that something had to be done and done quickly to get our stubborn actor out into the open. It was a situation that called for direct action and it seemed obvious that the only course open to me was to get down into the enclosure and rout the tiger out myself.

I did not minimize the danger of such an enterprise. If the animal wanted to be nasty, he would have all the best of it in any encounter which might take place in the thick jungle area, for he could be practically on top of me before I would have a chance to defend myself. My intention, of course, was not to have any encounter with the beast, but merely to rout him out of the brush. But I must be prepared to defend myself if he should decide to charge me. And defense would not be easy in a place where the vegetation is so thick that a man has to crawl or fight his way through it.

Tabby leaped for the door and escaped as the bullet entered Roger's foot and lodged in the floor.

Roger dug the bullet out and proudly exhibited it to a neighbor, who in turn rushed Roger to a hospital.

The method of application makes Pazo doubly effective. (See picture below.) Thousands say that Pazo is the first real relief they ever got from Piles. Thousands say it saved them the need of a painful operation. Try Pazo yourself and realize from one trial that your days of pile suffering are over. COXTOWN NEED OF AID GROWS

Of all the bleak spots in Pittsburgh on a winter day, the Father Cox community farm—"Coxtown"—out on Kittanning Pike is one of the bleakest. "Coxtown" was established early last spring and is today under its first blanket of snow.

More than 60 families are permanently housed on this farm, living in roughly made shacks. Father Cox, among his many other activities, feeds and clothes them and provides them with fuel. Under these shacks are thousands of tons of unmined coal and the residents of "Coxtown" have to depend on outside donations for their fuel. The majority of these shacks are provided with stoves. Father Cox suggests that it may be possible that there are some Pittsburghers who would like to provide aid for one or more of these "Coxtown" families as their regular contribution—week in and week out. It is the ultimate plan of Father Cox to make all the families on this big farm self supporting.

In the meantime there is a gratifying response to the Sun-Telegraph subscription drive inaugurated to help the "father of the jobless" in his welfare activities. Every subscription that comes in on the blank on this page brings to his unemployment fund a liberal cash contribution.

Mankind in Bad Shape, Columbia Dean Mourns

NEW YORK, Dec. 15.—(INS.)—Mankind, taking it from Dean William F. Russell, of Columbia University Teachers' College, is in pretty tough shape.

In fact, he's still in the Stone Age, despite his civilization. Among other things, Dean Russell believes these are wrong:

The spelling system—"as bad as the Chinese."

The weights and measures system.

The calendar—all holidays should fall on the same day.

The system of food and hygiene is "terrible."

The problem of eugenics hasn't been faced.

The governmental system is the worst in the world.

Rich Prizes Lessen Legislative Courtesy

By MARK SHIELDS

Mr. Shields

Harrisburg denies persistent reports that Public Service Commissioner Frederick P. Gruenberg has been asked to resign by Gov. Pinchot, who appointed him not so many months ago. The story ran that Chairman Clyde King of the Commission had fallen out with Gruenberg, and from this the resignation report was germinated.

The denial from official sources must be taken to close the rumor, which is only another evidence of the discussion which surrounds the commission, and which will continue to do so, as long as it appears the organization-controlled Senate will confirm none of the Pinchot appointees. Even Commissioner C. Jay Goodnough, former Speaker of the House, is understood to have the bars raised against confirmation. There were some who thought he might be approved on the basis of legislative courtesy.

With such rich prizes as public service commissionerships dangling before the organization in its hopes to elect a Governor as successor to Mr. Pinchot, legislative courtesy flies out the window. Mr. Pinchot has named five of the seven commissioners. There will be another vacancy during the term of the next Governor.

* * *

Goodnough Chairman If King Resigns

If none of the Pinchot appointees should be confirmed, the succeeding executive will have six places on the commission to fill, and can control that body for at least four years.

Goodnough will become chairman of the commission in the Pinchot administration should King resign and return to his old and important post as Secretary of Revenue. There are additional supports for the report that King contemplates such action shortly, and had it in mind when he was appointed to the commission.

Leon Metzger, a young man of unquestioned ability, was deputy to King when the latter headed Revenue. It was natural recognition of merit that he should have been named Secretary when King became a Public Service Commissioner—and the Governor followed that course.

But it is significant that no deputy has been named in Metzger's place, leaving the way open for the present secretary to step back to his subordinate position should King return to his old post. And Metzger has said he is willing to do that for King, but not for anyone else.

Metzger, not lacking a whit in ability, nevertheless lacks the stern coldness of King, which probably will be needed in the Revenue Department when the Legislature gets to work on financial estimates of income and outgo for the next biennium.

* * *

Constitution Calls For Reappointment

One really important undertaking should not be shunted aside by the next Legislature is the reapportionment of the Legislative districts in the state, both for the Senate and House. The Constitution calls for such action after each federal census, but there is nothing mandatory on the subject, and no way to compel the Legislature to act if it does not wish to—as it did not in 1931.

It reapportioned the Congressional districts, but ignored the changing population of its own constituencies.

Glaring inequalities exist, and one need go no farther than Allegheny County to see them.

An example frequently cited is that of the Second and Fifth districts of Allegheny County. The former district has two members for a population of about 60,000. The latter has one representative for a population of about 80,000. Manifestly this is unfair, and the 80,000 of the Fifth District have less say in legislative affairs than their smaller number of fellow citizens in the Second.

The time to begin on this session is at the beginning of the session. Senate and House committees will be named by the middle of January. Both should cooperatively study the subject, receive suggestions from all substantial sources, rebuff any suggestions of political gerrymandering—such as marked the congressional reapportionment of 1931—and perfect their ideas in the form of a single bill.

* * *

Bills Buried in 1931; Resurrection in 1933!

In the consideration of this bill worthy amendments should be accepted, after open hearings, and the result should be passed.

In 1931 Senator Jim Boyd, of Montgomery County, was chairman of the State Reapportionment Committee, and buried bills dealing with the subject. Representative Eldor Peelor, of Indiana County, was chairman of the House Committee. Probably neither will hold the same post this year, Boyd being eliminated through his election as president pro tem of the Senate, and Peelor because the House may not be organized by his friends.

But good men can be found.

In 1931 Boyd brushed aside suggestions for reapportionment, though asked to act. He said the Senate was a clubby sort of affair, that the members had become friends, and that rearranging districts might be prejudicial to some participant in the fellowship.

That is hardly the spirit in which to consider such an important subject. It was all buried good naturedly by the huge statesman from Montgomery, but there should be a resurrection in 1933.

VOTE MACHINE REPAIRS PUT UP TO FIRM

County Holds Makers Liable for Cost of Correcting Faults

A letter was in the mails today from the Allegheny County Solicitor to the Poole Engineering and Machine Company, notifying the company, its new controlling company, the Commercial Credit Company and all bonding companies that Allegheny County would hold the companies responsible for paying for the correction of the 1,100 county vote machines.

This letter was dispatched by Assistant County Solicitor Ralph Frank, who has been handling the voting machine problem. It stated that the county had found the machines, as delivered by the Poole company, did not meet specifications in six instances. It further stated that the county intended to improve the machines so that they did meet specifications and charge the Poole company for the work.

SIX FAULTS FIXED

The County Commissioners at the inspection of the improved machine yesterday in Dayton, O., learned that the six faults had been mended and the improved machine now meets with specifications. On recommendation of the county, several additions were made on the machine, but this cannot be charged to the manufacturer, as they were not included in specifications.

The Poole company was informed by Frank that the following defects had been found in their machine:

1—A vote could be registered without the curtains being drawn together.

2—A voter could vote more than once for a candidate.

3—It was possible for a voter to vote for one candidate as many times as the voter wished.

4—A voter was unable to change his vote up until the time he commenced final operation of registering the vote.

5—The spring operating the locator plunger was not strong enough and it prevented the machine from accurately recording the vote.

6—The return spring on vertical straight party rack was of faulty design.

The six faults which kept the machine from meeting specifications have been remedied by the National Cash Register Company on a sample machine. To put the entire 1,100 machines in this condition the Commissioners will ask for bids, and ask that the Poole company pay the bill.

However, it will be up to the county to pay for installation of a bell, reinforcement of the legs and for the change made in the transparent covering which prevents mutilation of names of candidates.

BLOCK PERILED BY POOLROOM BLAZE

Police Lieutenant Cut And Burned in Rescue Effort

A police lieutenant and a fireman were injured and 10 firemen affected by smoke in two early morning fires today which swept through three business buildings in Wilmerding and burned through a dwelling in Glassport.

An entire block in Wilmerding was threatened when fire, believed to have started by a defective flue in the poolroom of Jacob Breimtich, 407-409-411 Station street. The blaze spread to the office of Justice of the Peace James Biggs, second floor, and to the one-story frame building adjoining, occupied by a 5 and 10-cent store. The Christmas stock of the store was ruined by water, firemen said. Damage was estimated at $25,000 by Fire Chief Thomas Hurney. John Ambrose, volunteer fireman, was overcome, and nine were affected by smoke. Marlin Hurney, 18, the fire chief's son, sprained his ankle running to the fire.

Attempting to break into the burning house at 1052 Indiana avenue, Glassport, to rescue a mother and her daughter reported to have been in the building, Police Lieut. H. L. McClafferty was burned on the hand and suffered a laceration to his leg. The two, Mrs. Mary Mumish and her daughter, were believed to have been spending the evening with friends.

Fireman John Burton suffered a cut on the eye when struck by a hose nozzle.

A fireman was injured and a family living on the second floor was driven to the street when fire broke out in the cellar of Ray Fischer's grocery store at Tenth and Main street, Sharpsburg, early today. Damage was estimated at $600 by Fire Chief Oscar Shul. Jumping off fire truck No. 1, John Graul, its driver, sprained his ankle.

WILL ROGERS SAYS

BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., Dec. 15.

To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph:

Will Rogers

Got some news for you. Fellow wrote the N. Y. Times (my mother paper), took exception to some fool thing I had written and forgot about. The Times took it serious, and so did people arguing over it. They thought the fellow was some authority. Now what do I find out? He is a young Harvard graduate, Charlton Ogburn, Jr., 22 years old. And like all Harvard graduates "Junior" wanted to do something "worth while" for the old alma mater.

But America's sense of humor has taught 'em there is three things they must never take serious: A columnist on any paper, a political speech by any candidate and a Harvard graduate if he has been out four years. Harvard is an eight-year school—four in and four out, but after then they are just as human and fine as any college graduate.

So don't take the debt thing too serious from either Harvard, or O. C. C. (Oklahoma Cow Camp). Their information on the subject is about equal. Yours,

WILL.

GIRL, RUM TALK RESENTED HERE

Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt's radio address in which she said the modern girl must learn her drinking capacity, brought criticism today from W. C. T. U. leaders here.

They rallied to the support of the women of Topeka, Kan., who protested to Mrs. Roosevelt.

Mrs. Roosevelt's statement was described as "startling for a woman in public life," by Mrs. Elizabeth J. Morrow, who said it was ridiculous to say that all women drink.

Among the remarks that went around the table at Tuesday's meeting of the W. C. T. U. was that it was evident (following Mrs. Roosevelt's speech) that liquor would be served in the White House after Mr. Roosevelt takes office.

Another was that Mrs. Roosevelt will learn shortly that a great majority of American women abhor drink.

Dentist Ends Life In Love 'Triangle'

PASSAIC, N. J., Dec. 15.—(Universal.)—In an attempt to force a "showdown" in the triangle in which he had involved himself, Dr. Seburn Babcock, 47, a dentist, today took his wife, Ella, to call on the woman he loved, Mrs. Barbara Mathewson.

The dentist pleaded with Mrs. Mathewson to leave her husband for him. When she refused, he strode into the bathroom, locked the door and swallowed poison. He was dead when police arrived.

BULLETS ROUT TWO BURGLARS

Police today continued their search for two men who escaped early this morning when a policeman found them trying to break into a house in Plum alley, Glassport.

Patrolman William Stewart, who has been watching the row of houses for the last two weeks because of frequent attempts to enter, surprised the two men as they were prowling about the neighborhood. The men fled as Stewart drew his gun and fired three shots, none believed to have taken effect. Sergt. Jack Lees and Stewart followed the two men but lost track of them.

East End Woman Fights Thief, Loses Purse

East End police today had found no trace of the purse snatcher Mrs. Margaret Lessner, of 577 Rosedale street, a clerk in Lincoln School, battled at Hamilton avenue and Hale street, last night.

Confronted by the thief when she alighted from a street car, Mrs. Lessner attempted to beat him off as he seized her purse, containing a wrist watch valued at $70 and $9 in cash. The man broke loose, pushed Mrs. Lessner into the street and fled.

Three bandits held up George Blair and Luden Chilcotte, attendants in an Atlantic gasoline service station, Penn and Brushton avenues, and escaped with $35 in an automobile.

Jokester Twice Dupes Police Scout Crew

"No. 6 Scout Car, go to 5746 Broad street, investigate."

It was the voice of the police radio operator. Dashing across East Liberty, expecting most anything, the crew leaped from the machine in front of the East Liberty Police Station. Someone had been playing a joke on the boys, it seemed.

Once before the license number of an allegedly stolen automobile was broadcast to the crew of the downtown scout car. They dutifully copied the number, and included it in their report next day. It was the license number of their own machine.

Chatham St. Raid Victim Posts Bond

Henry Trifon, arrested by county detectives yesterday in a raid on a luxuriously furnished house at 71 Chatham street, near the Y. W. C. A., was at liberty on $1,000 bail today.

The detectives raided the place on complaint lodged with Judge Frank P. Patterson and confiscated home brew and wine, they reported.

BOROUGH ADDS TO PAYROLL

To the embarrassment of Sharpsburg Council, whose members recently pledged the borough to a rigid economy program, the November payroll was increased $300, it was revealed at a council meeting last night.

This reverse-English saving was found by Lawrence Bragg, minority member who demanded an explanation. None was forthcoming. Said Bragg:

"It's certain councilmen's ambition to get someone on the payroll."

This statement precipitated a heated verbal battle, Bragg on one side, Councilman Joseph Teresa on the other. Teresa admitted his nephew was employed by the borough and accused Bragg of making a "big show."

Bragg came back saying Teresa employed his nephew to "keep peace in the family," and that the light and water plant didn't need an ashman, anyhow, to which Teresa retorted:

"That's because he doesn't happen to be a Bragg ashman."

The matter of the increased payroll will be continued at a meeting December 28.

Let's Send Out A Distance Call For Lafayette

By ARTHUR 'BUGS' BAER

Now we know there ain't going to be no French Santa Claus this year.

The Paris financiers wear white whiskers. But only for decorative purposes.

The boys repudiated our swindle sheet. It was a simple sum in long evasion.

Fortunately, England came through and we don't have to play London bridge is falling down.

It's a little hip reducer for the budget. Every small contribution thankfully received.

Good old France taught us a lesson. It proves that lightning calculation can strike twice in the same place.

We can't even sue 'em. Only Lafayette knew whether we were there or not. And he ain't been around lately.

Officials' Aide on Job Despite Death News

Saddened by news of his mother's death, Albert Lauer, Allegheny County Election Bureau mechanic, remained on the job yesterday as he explained to county officials the workings of the voting machines. Lauer accompanied the Commissioners and other officials to Dayton, O., yesterday, to explain the technical points of the demonstration of a reconditioned voting machine in the plant of the National Cash Register Company.

The demonstration had barely gotten under way when a telegram was handed to Lauer informing him that his mother, Mrs. Hannah Lauer, 81, of Natrona Heights, had died. Lauer kept at his work throughout the day and returned to his home in Natrona Heights early today.

ADDED POWERS FOR P. S. C. PROPOSED

Legislation broadening the scope of the Public Service Commission to include control of holding companies operating utilities in the state will be sought as result of recommendations of the Pennsylvania Fair Rate Association made at its dinner last night in the Fort Pitt Hotel.

This proposed change in the public service law is chief of eight suggested improvements including a recommendation changing confirmation of commissioner appointments by the Governor from the Senate to the House; limitation of charters of public service companies to not more than 50 years, a maximum of 7 per cent earnings for such companies; authorization of municipal ownership or control of public service companies and a requirement for approval of rate increases by the Public Service Commission before they become effective.

Among the speakers were Judge Ralph H. Smith, of Common Pleas Court; Conway W. Dickson, of Berwick; Attorney Samuel M. London, of Youngstown, and Harry C. Lea, of Aspinwall.

These officers were re-elected: A. B. Davidson, of Tarentum, president; Mr. Dickson and Joseph A. Heineman, of Butler, vice presidents; William A. Fisher, Brackenridge, secretary, and John H. Rhodes, of Wilkinsburg, treasurer.

TOLLS FOR NEW BRIDGES ONLY

Any legislation the County Commissioners may seek next month for authority to establish toll bridges will apply only to new structures, not to bridges already built, County Solicitor J. P. Fife said today. A bill granting the Commissioners such power is ready for submission to the Legislature.

Senator David A. Reed introduced a bill in the United States Senate authorizing a toll bridge over the Monongahela River between Pittsburgh and Homestead. Representative Guy Campbell has presented a similar bill in the House. They were submitted at the request of Burgess John J. Cavanaugh, of Homestead, president of the Pittsburgh-Homestead High Level Bridge Association.

The county's plan to erect toll bridges opens the way for a loan from the Reconstruction Finance Corporation under the self-liquidating project clause. County authorities are contemplating a loan to build the Homestead span and the Highland Park Bridge, both of which would be on the toll basis.

BOY SUSPECTED IN SLAYING

CHICAGO, Dec. 15.—(INS.)—A new suspect, Stewart Obrest, 17, was under arrest today in connection with the mysterious kidnaping and murder of Edwin O. Schildrauer, handsome bandmaster of Austin High School.

The youth was seized last night in an allegedly stolen automobile which, authorities said, resembled the car used in the abduction of the young music leader. Schildhauer's comely widow was expected to view Obrest and inform police whether he resembles one of the two men who overpowered her husband while she watched from a balcony.

Authorities said David Saubert, 19, taken into custody as another suspect, had no connection with the crime. The widow failed to identify him.

About 1,000 Austin pupils attended Schildhauer's funeral yesterday.

CHANGE IN TAX LEVY STUDIED

The Board for Assessment and Revision of Taxes today was studying plans for a change in methods of determining property values to equalize assessments throughout the county. Instructions in the new system are being given a force of 149 assessors by George E. Meyers, chairman, and other members of the board. Explaining the work Meyers said:

"The board believes that taxation of real estate is, by all odds, the most important feature of America's tax system; and yet the assessing of that real estate has been given less consideration and is more bungled than any other function of the state. The board believes that an equalization of assessments will be reflected in the relief of the individual tax burden."

Snowbound Coxtowners Long for Christmas

Coxtown is snowbound. Residents of the little settlement in O'Hara Township spent yesterday and today digging out of the drifts that engulfed their tiny one-story residences, built last June by 20 destitute families who had lost their homes.

Work ceased as a result of the snowstorm. The road from the Kittanning pike to KDKA boulevard, which the men have been building during the summer and fall, is impassable even to foot traffic. The colony now spends its time cracking the ice in Pine Creek to dip out water for drinking and washing, chopping wood, and making necessary repairs.

Bread is being donated by Pittsburgh bakers, and other food comes from the Welfare Association. Father James R. Cox's relief furnishes the clothing and has given the use of the land on which their homes are built.

But the residents of the village are cheerful. They are looking forward to Christmas, and the baskets of food and clothing they hope to receive from voluntary contributors.

A month after her 15-year-old daughter by a former marriage, Mary Kritch, was found dead at the Dawson home at Modoc, Mrs. Dawson confessed yesterday that she administered poison to the child, and was sentenced by Judge A. L. Bales.

Officers said Walter Kritch, father of Mary, died of poisoning in an Indianapolis hospital in January, 1929. In August, 1931, Prosecutor Nathan Mendenhall said, he learned 5-year-old Betty Kritch died in convulsions without having received medical attention.

FRENCH AND JAP ACCORD SEEN

Withdrawal of French opposition to Japan's Manchurian policy may result from the disagreements over the payment of the French war debt to the United States, Dr. Ben Williams declared in an address before the Inquiry Club of the University of Pittsburgh yesterday. He said:

"The consequence of such action might be the failure of the League of Nations in its attempt to arbitrate the Far Eastern dispute. The present solidarity of nations opposed to the Manchukuo government set up by Japan in Manchuria is necessary.

"The war debts have put quite a strain upon the United States. It is my opinion that France was angling for America's favor in war debt settlement when she revealed several weeks ago that she was considering an offered alliance with Japan—an alliance America would frown upon."

The holidays are going to be as full of entertainments as the pre-depression child's stocking was on Christmas morning. Most of the affairs will be subscription dances, and a few parties to be given by mothers of the younger set will add to the gaities.

Before these dances there'll be many a dinner party from which the young guests will troop to the ball.

Pre-Dance Dinner

The Robert L. Clauses are planning a most attractive before-the-dance party.

They'll give a dinner in their home the evening of December 27 before the sub-deb dance at the Edgeworth Club. And the guests of honor at the party will be their daughter Nancy, Elizabeth Boyd and Sally Odell. All three girls go to Miss Madeira's school.

* * *

On the same date, December 27, the H. Fred Mercers will give a party, as I've mentioned before, in their home for a group of Pittsburgh's college set. The guests of honor will be the Mercers' daughter, Marjorie, and their son, H. Fred, Jr. Young Mr. Mercer is a junior at Williams.

Mary Rust Makes Bow

For the debutante set, the social whirlwhirl will start Monday when the first of the Christmas debutantes will make her bow. She's Mary Lee Rust, and her parents, the Stirling Murray Rusts, will give a luncheon in their home for her with the debutantes as guests.

School Play

The Winchester School will give a Christmas play for children Tuesday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock in the school gymnasium as a benefit for the Family Welfare Fund.

The play is based on Agnes Curtis' "The Book Children's Christmas." The dramatic club of the upper school is working with the children of the lower school on the play.

The choral class will sing, aided by Mary Seaver, who will sing and Georgia Orwing and Mary Taylor, who will be accompanists.

Ever so many girls are in the cast. There are Betsy Lilley, Mary Cooper, Elinor Cowdrey, Jane Phillips, Ellin Kaufmann, Mary Elizabeth Mitchell, Mary Emma Dull, Margaret Allen, Jane Richter, Selma Alperson, Virginia Wintherow, Marjorie Meyer, Kate Curry, Polly Ann Leichliter, Chari Rush, Tatiana von Horvath and Stuart Hart.

To Marry In London

Today's betrothal news is most interesting. The granddaughter of Mrs. Margaret Denny, of South Fairmount avenue, who was educated in Mt. Mercy Academy and Belgium, is betrothed. She's Jean Margaret Denny, the daughter of the Andrew C. Dennys, of London, England, formerly of Pittsburgh.

Her parents have announced her engagement to Dr. William Bleloch, of London and Johannesburg, South Africa.

The ceremony will take place in London in February, and later Dr. Bleloch will take his bride to live in Breeniging, Transvaal, South Africa.

Wednesday Club Holds Christmas Meeting

The Wednesday Afternoon Club had its Christmas meeting yesterday in Mrs. S. L. Smith's home, Wood street. Miss Helen Pershing read Van Dyke's story, "The First Christmas;" Mrs. Emma Albert Dean, Mrs. F. Sagerholm and Miss Helen Heiner sang appropriate numbers, and at roll call Christmas wishes were voiced. A collection was taken for the Wilkinsburg relief.

Author Guest of Three Congress Departments

Miss Helen Hoerle, of New York, author of "The Girl and Her Future," addressed the educational department of the Congress of Clubs yesterday and is speaking again before the drama department today. She was also a guest at the evening department's dinner on Tuesday.

Preceding the drama luncheon (at which Elmer Kenyon is the principal speaker), Miss Maud Miner is presenting a literary recital and an open forum on current drama follows. Some of the Irish Players from the Nixon Theater are special guests at the luncheon.

"The Wondrous Story," a new cantata by Richard Kountz, Pittsburgh composer, was beautifully presented by the choral of the Ingram Woman's Club, under the direction of Mrs. Frank C. Rex, at the educational meeting yesterday. Mrs. W. E. White was the accompanist.

Others contributing to the program were Mrs. D. N. Bulford, who reviewed "The Fountain" and "Peking Picnic," also giving a number of suggestions for Christmas books for children: Miss Hellen Asher, who spoke of the Christmas work which is being conducted by the different groups at the Y. W. C. A., and Mrs. J. Charles Wilson, who gave a group of Christmas readings.

Mrs. Isabelle Jones Gets Star Role in Play

One of Sewickley's social registerites, Mrs. Isabelle Jones, will have a leading role in "Mr. Dooley, Jr.," to be given Christmas week at Kaufmann's, starting Tuesday, December 27, with Mrs. Jerome Katz directing.

Others in the cast are Donald Buka, Miss Lenore Malakoff, Miss Martha Arnold, George Lobinger and Miss Ann Hinsdale Bateman.

Edgewood Woman's Club Hears Two Addresses

Members of the Edgewood Woman's Club enjoyed an excellent program yesterday in the Edgewood Club. Mrs. R. W. Cummings spoke concerning the Brownings and Mrs. A. L. Humphrey, who recently returned from Italy, gave her impressions of Florence.

Jewish Juniors' Bridge Party On Sunday

Mrs. Louis Ruben is chairman for the bundle bridge which the Pittsburgh Section, National Council of Jewish Juniors, will have on Sunday afternoon at Webster Hall. This is the first bundle party the juniors have given for the senior council's service shop, the shelves of which need replenishing. Mrs. Peter Cooper is serving with Mrs. Ruben as her vice chairman; Miss Alyce Berman is chairman of the invitation committee, and is assisted by Miss Lee Bowytz, Miss Esther Miller, Miss Lillian Goldstein, Miss Helen Rosenbach and Miss Corrinnie Gould.

Gossipy Chat
—By NANCY JANE—

Mrs. George Pomeroy Bassett's favorite diversion is amateur theatricals. So when she read about a play, which was to be given at the Pittsburgh Athletic Association by a group of people she had known for years, she reserved the night.

The evening came, and she and Mr. Bassett set forth to attend the event. But when they arrived at the club, there was no play, and no one knew anything about it.

She thought she had made a mistake about the place; so off they went to the Keystone Club. But no play there either.

Finally the Bassetts returned home and Mrs. Bassett looked up the article announcing the play.

And she found that she had been reading a "Twenty Years Ago" column. She said:

"Well, if only one in the cast had been dead, I would have known it was a past event."

Fashion note for smart dogs: One of the exclusive sport shops in New York is advertising galoshes to keep blue-blooded dogs warm these winter days. And there are special dog outfits for rainy weather, too.

I haven't seen any of Pittsburgh's blue ribbon dogs about in galoshes yet, have you?

The Lewis A. Parks, Sewickley Heights, are among those who've gone in for a broadcasting set in their home. Their swimming pool, now frozen over, also makes grand skating. Music for the pool is furnished by an organ, installed in the home.

Boy Congressman In Red Necktie Scares Guards

WASHINGTON, Dec. 15—(AP.)—Armed with a handful of campaign cards bearing his signature, Otha D. Wearin, the 28-year-old representative-elect from Iowa, almost had to storm the Capitol to gain admission yesterday.

Wearing a scarlet tie, a pale tan shirt, and a dark brown suit, the gentleman from the tall corn state ran afoul of guards wherever he sought to enter.

Doorkeepers of both houses, unusually cautious because only the day before a youth held the House membership at the point of a gun, shook their heads vigorously upon his arguments that he was entitled to the floor.

Auxiliary, Legion Post to Hold Yule Party

The December meeting of American Legion, Post No. 5, and the auxiliary to the post this evening will be a Christmas party for children and will be held at the East Liberty Y. M. C. A. Mrs. A. J. Kelly, Jr., of Bigelow boulevard, entertained the executive committee of the auxiliary at her home on Monday afternoon.

Miss Mary P. Lang spoke on "China, Old and New" at a meeting of the Women's Missionary Society of the First Baptist Church yesterday.

Speller, of Darlington road, whose marriage takes place Saturday, in Tyler, at the home of Mrs. Truman Warren, sister of the bride-to-be. And he is William Schoenack, who will be the best man.

Mr. and Mrs. Speller, Sr., will not go to Texas for the wedding, as their son and his bride will visit them here on their wedding trip, and after January 15 they will be at home in Overton, Tex.

By MRS. CHARLES M. BREGG

Two new appointments in the southwestern district of the State Federation of Pennsylvania Women have just been announced. Mrs. Paul Howe, of Beaver, is replacing Mrs. James Armstrong, of Monaca, who resigned as district chairman of the home, and Mrs. H. D. Stark, of Pittsburgh, is now district chairman of club institutes. Mrs. Stark was appointed to fill the unexpired term of Mrs. Frederick J. King, of New Kensington.

The board of directors of the State Federation will meet at headquarters in the Penn-Harris Hotel, Harrisburg, January 18 and 19, beginning with a dinner at 7 o'clock the evening of the eighteenth. Prior to the dinner, however, Mrs. Richard J. Hamilton, state president, will meet the officers and committee chairmen individually. Mrs. Hamilton has asked each chairman to present a preview of her year's program in writing.

Extra Protection Against COLDS

$3 worth of protection for $1 if you use Pepsodent Antiseptic

PEPSODENT ANTISEPTIC is 3 times as powerful as other leading mouth antiseptics. Hence it goes 3 times as far. And whether you buy the 25c, 50c, or $1 size, you still get 3 times as much for your money.

IT DIDN'T take the public long to figure out the difference between Pepsodent Antiseptic and other leading kinds. Common sense said, "Here's the difference between one dollar and three dollars . . . the difference between positively killing germs and being fooled by diluting old-style antiseptics."

Two kinds of antiseptics
Most mouth antiseptics kill germs only when used full strength. But Pepsodent Antiseptic is powerful enough even when diluted with 2 parts of water to kill germs in 10 seconds! Pepsodent Antiseptic is at least 3 times as powerful as other leading mouth antiseptics. It goes 3 times as far—gives you 3 times as much for your money—and gives you greater protection against sore throat colds.

Use Pepsodent for safety
Millions who once diluted ordinary antiseptics now discover their mistake. Be sure you choose the antiseptic that, even when mixed with water, kills germs. Insist on Pepsodent Antiseptic—be sure! Be safe...and save your money!

IMPURE BREATH (Halitosis)
The amazing results of Pepsodent Antiseptic in fighting sore throat colds prove its effectiveness in checking Bad Breath (Halitosis). Remember, Pepsodent is 3 times more powerful in killing germs than other leading mouth antiseptics. Remember, even when diluted with water it still kills germs.

WHITE FLASH

With ATLANTIC WHITE FLASH in the tank, you step on the starter and . . . whirr-r-r-r . . . your engine flashes into action as quickly, almost, as an electric light responds to the touch of a switch. There is no "coffee-mill" grinding of the starter. No spasmodic coughing as the spark catches hold, only to die again an instant later.

ATLANTIC WHITE FLASH vaporizes in the flash of an eyelid even on the coldest days. Its tremendous power is always at your command.

That's one of the reasons so many motorists like it better than any other fuel. Quick starting is a big economy item. Grinding away at the starter is costly business; it's a drain on the battery as well as a strain on the engine. And using the choke a lot is expensive, too, because it wastes gasoline.

Pennsylvanians have discovered that ATLANTIC WHITE FLASH gives best results in starting, as well as in power, pick-up and mileage. That's why they buy more than 2 gallons of ATLANTIC WHITE FLASH for every 1 gallon of any other gasoline.

CRONIN'S CLUB BECOMES FORMIDABLE

Goose Goslin

HAVING A FRIENDLY interest in Joe Cronin as the former Pirate starts his managerial career with the distinction of being the youngest pilot in the major leagues, baseball fans of the Pittsburgh district are pleased to believe that Joe's club has been helped a lot by the six-player trade with the Browns and the Fred Marberry-Earl Whitehill swap with the Tigers. The Senators get an ace hitter in Goose Goslin, who returns to the club which he served for nine years; another good clouter in Fred Schulte and two of the best left-hand pitchers in the business in Walter Stewart and Whitehill, the latter a Buccaneer experiment back in 1920.

Good men were given up in Carl Reynolds, Sam West, Lloyd Brown and Marberry, the last named probably being disposed of as a possible disturbing element, but even if the cash paid by Washington to St. Louis were not a tip-off it would be apparent on paper that there is an edge for Washington in the deals. The Senators, as they stand now, shape us as one of the strongest rivals that the Yankees will have to contend with for next year's flag in the American League. Cronin is off to a very favorable start.

SIZING UP THE National League pennant race of 1933, Rogers Hornsby declares the Cubs are not to be feared, and he wants it understood there is no personal animus behind the assertion.

"Their pitchers carried 'em last season." Hornsby remarked in discussing the Cubs during a breathing spell between workouts in a St. Louis gymnasium, and Bush, Root and Malone won't improve next year. Warneke can't possibly have a better season than he turned in for 1932, and they are shy of southpaws."

HORNSBY ADMITS A wholesome respect for the Pittsburgh club. "If the Pirates get the pitching, don't think for an instant that they won't be hard to beat," he says, "with the Waners clicking, Lindstrom added, and Vaughan and Piet having a year's big league experience behind them.

"I can't place the Giants very high. They need too many replacements, more than they'll be able to get. The Phillies may cause some trouble if Flint Rhem comes through again."

FOR THE FIRST winter in 30 years, John J. McGraw sits back in a dark corner, without even being asked for his advice, while the New York National League club goes about the business of rebuilding a broken-down machine. Perhaps the men who appear to consider themselves smarter heads know more about the work confronting them than does the gray-haired general of other days, but the average baseball follower on the outside is inclined to doubt it. There is hardly an official on any other club in the business who would not seize an opportunity of getting a suggestion or two in such a situation out of McGraw's vast store of diamond knowledge and experience. But the veteran's business associates seem determined to get along without him, unmindful of the fact that he has forgotten more baseball than most of them will ever know and that when they tried the same thing last year the only club they beat out was the Reds.

John J. McGraw

SOME OF THE New York critics resent the waste of McGraw's talent. "It might not be a bad idea to set McGraw on the task of building anew," says Bill Slocum. "He is not being bothered for advice these days by anybody connected with the club. That's a lot of talent going to waste when one has to move only from one office door to another to take advantage of it. It's a high price to pay for independence.

"Let Terry manage the ball club, and he surely carries the well wishes of every fan in New York. But the man who knows more about building up a winner in New York than any other man alive today, the man who bows to nobody in appraising the value of the ball player on the hoof, has become the positively silent partner of the firm, and not through choice."

THE SAME THOUGHT that has been running through the heads of many football followers is expressed by George Trevor when he remarks that while you hear a lot about the Rockne system and the Warner system, nobody ever mentions the Howard Jones system.

Yet Jones must have something on the ball, or he couldn't have won so consistently at Syracuse, Yale, Iowa and Southern California. It is suggested that perhaps his is the system that levels all systems—a great line, which keeps on top of the ball all afternoon.

WHILE DEVOTING A fair proportion of his time to building an attack, Jones still betrays the defensive psychology that he assimilated through his playing and coaching affiliations at Yale. Defense came first in the Walter Camp system on the theory that "they can't beat you if they can't score." Not until the Yale elevens of the 1885-1905 era were solidly grounded in defensive fundamentals were they allowed to concentrate on advancing the ball. "Hold 'em, Yale" was not an idle, catch phrase. Big, fast, resilient lines have been Jones' chief stock in trade since he started coaching at Syracuse a quarter of a century ago. That 1908 Orange line built around Horr, giant all-America tackle, averaged 200 pounds from end to end. A year later Jones returned to Yale as head coach and fashioned another memorable barrier.

THAT BLUE WALL, made up of Cooney, Andrus, Goebel, Lilley, Hobbs, Vaughn and Kilpatrick, did not permit any opponent to come nearer to a score than Yale's 26-yard line. Shifting to Iowa in later years, Jones produced more great lines that won two Big Ten titles. Iowa's famous standouts of 1921 and 1922 included Duke Slater, Hancock, Meade, Minnick, Heldt and Kadesky.

Since Jones went to Southern California it has been the same old story almost every year. Only Knute Rockne appeared able to beat him. Pop Warner has not won over Howard since 1926. Flashy backs like Drury, Pinckert, Mohler, Shaver, Kaer, Duffield, Saunders, Music, Warburton, Griffith, McNeish and others have caught the public eye, but don't forget that they were screened by typical Jones lines.

THE LATEST FOREIGN fistic sensation, Bep Van Klaveren, of Holland, will be in for another test in New York tomorrow night, when he meets Billy Townsend, of Vancouver, in the semi-final to the McLarnin-Fuller debate.

King Clancy

Townsend is slower than Van Klaveren, but a much harder hitter. He punches like a mule kicks, and if he connects with the Hollander's jaw it may be too bad for Bep. However, Van Klaveren has not been found lacking so far, and he looks to have at least an even chance to win again in this latest test.

THE OLDEST HOCKEY player in the major league in point of continuous service became jobless for the time being when Edward Reginald Noble was released unconditionally by the Detroit Red Wings for failure to get in condition after losing three weeks of training work through a holdout. Noble, 39, was in his seventeenth consecutive season in the National League. He played his major league hockey in 1916 with Les Canadiens. He is now dickering with that club for a new job as a defense man. With Noble out, the oldest players in the National League in continuous service are Frank (King) Clancy, Toronto defense man, and John Ross Roach, Red Wing goalie, both of whom entered in 1921.

JERSEY BOXER ACCUSED BY DOUGHERTY

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 15.—(INS.)—Stanley Poreda, Jersey City heavyweight, and Bill Reppenhagen, his manager, have been barred from Pennsylvania rings today. Their licenses were revoked yesterday when they failed to appear before the State Athletic Commission to answer charges of attempted "fixing."

Stanley Poreda

The charges were made by Jimmy Dougherty, manager of George Godfrey, veteran Negro heavyweight, of Leiperville, Pa. Dougherty declared Reppenhagen had demanded that he (Dougherty) post $5,000 to guarantee Godfrey would lose to Poreda in their scheduled bout here November 10. Dougherty said he refused and Reppenhagen declined to go through with the fight.

DENIED BY MANAGER

JERSEY CITY, N. J., Dec. 15.—(INS.)—"Ridiculous," said Bill Reppenhagen, manager of Stanley Poreda, when informed today he and Poreda had been barred from Pennsylvania rings for failing to attend a meeting of the Pennsylvania State Athletic Commission in Philadelphia yesterday to answer charges of attempted "fixing" of a scheduled bout between Poreda and George Godfrey.

Reppenhagen declared the commissioners had given him no warning of their action, but merely had telegraphed him they "would like to have him attend the meeting."

He said he was too busy to attend.

Jack King, Little Rock welterweight, is due in town today for his 10-round main bout with Ted Yarosz, of Monaca, at the Arena, on the North Side, tomorrow night. His manager, Ray Alvis, sends along word in advance that King is in fine condition and hopes to demonstrate that he really is the master of the still undefeated Yarosz, who recently got a referee's decision over him after a torrid battle, during which both were knocked down. He writes:

"King feels he won his first meeting with Yarosz and will be even better prepared to battle in this second bout, for he now is familiar with Yarosz' peculiar boxing style. That should prove an asset to him, for I believe a good deal of Teddy's success comes from the fact that his opponents find his stance a peculiar one to combat."

Yarosz winds up his training with a light workout at Monaca this afternoon. He is entirely recovered from the heavy cold which forced him to cancel a match in Detroit last week, for which he has been banned in all of the states of the N. B. A.

Between Rounds

Announcement is made by Motor Square Garden that there'll be no boxing show there next Monday night. The management was not enthused by the slim gate for last Monday's good card, and has decided not to take a chance on going through with the Midget Wolgast-Jimmy Thomas show signed for next Monday. The next bill in the East End arena will be held on Christmas afternoon.

Jack Portney, of Baltimore, who has beaten Steve Halaiko, Louis (Kid) Kaplan, Eddie Cool, Mike Sarko and others, wants to box any of the local lightweights.

Although 25 bouts remain to be disposed of, it is announced that the Greater Pittsburgh amateur championship boxing tournament in the McKeesport arena positively will be concluded tonight. The preliminaries in all but two classes were fought Monday night. George Pirrung, of Homestead, is one of the contestants in the heavyweight class.

EXPLANATIONS OF RIPLEY'S CARTOONS OF YESTERDAY: TONAL BOMBS—For years tourists have been awed by the curious effect which a ship's whistle would have upon the face of the Taku Glacier in the waters of Alaska. The sound vibrations released by the ship's whistle were powerful enough to cause the iceberg to break with a deafening roar. Scientific investigation led to the construction of whistles of a definite sound frequency, with particular emphasis on the tonal pitch. The glacier has a tendency to crack in the warm summer weather, so that great blocks of ice delicately balanced above the water can be dislodged by definite whistle vibrations. Almost 70 years ago, the French scientist, Chomet, demonstrated that under certain circumstances a very high and long sustained musical note is capable of killing a dog. ONE-WAY CONDUCTIVITY—Galena, or lead sulphide, exhibits a most remarkable property in that the transition of electric current from it to a metallic conductor placed in contact proceeds easily in one direction, while in the opposite direction its resistivity to electricity increases a thousand-fold. This mystifying property of galena is made use of in the crystal detector of the commonly used crystal radios.

GIRL ATHLETE VINDICATED

DALLAS, Tex., Dec. 15.—(AP.)—Mildred (Babe) Didrikson, Texas girl athlete, still hopes to convince the National Amateur Athletic Union she should be restored to amateur status.

Her hope was based on statements by E. Gordon Perry, Dallas motorcar dealer, and a New York advertising agency, that the 19-year-old Olympic star did not authorize release of a motorcar advertisement which carried her picture and a testimonial. Perry took the responsibility.

Miss Didrikson has continually denied authorizing the use of her name and picture. Homer R. Mitchell, president of the insurance firm here which employs her, has asked the advertising agency to furnish documentary evidence to the A. A. U. exonerating Miss Didrikson.

Lawrence Di Benedetto, chairman of the Southern A. A. U. registration committee, said at New Orleans the committee would not take final action on the suspension until it learned whether Miss Didrikson signed a release.

FERRIS URGES SUIT

NEW YORK, Dec. 15.—The only way in which Mildred (Babe) Didrikson, famous girl athlete, can settle her case and gain reinstatement with the A. A. U. will be to instigate legal proceedings against the advertising agency, which she claims, used her name and photograph without her permission to advertise an automobile.

This advice has been passed along to Miss Didrikson by Daniel J. Ferris, secretary of the A. A. U.

Centre Game Completes Pitt's '33 Grid Card

By JESS CARVER

It will be just like those "Praying Cunnels" of Centre College to go out and get tough now that they've been added to the Pitt football card for 1933 as a prospective breather game next November 5. Just like 'em.

If they don't Dr. Jock Sutherland will be disappointed.

The addition of the Kentuckians completes Pitt's schedule for '33. The Golden Panthers will play nine games, meeting Wash-Jeff, West Virginia, Navy, Minnesota, Notre Dame, Centre, Duquesne, Nebraska and Carnegie Tech in a row. All games save the ones with West Virginia, Minnesota and Notre Dame will be played right here in Pittsburgh.

It was necessary to effect a switch with Nebraska in order to get Center. The Huskers previously were listed to appear here on November 4, but they graciously consented to change to November 18 so that the Panthers could close the deal with the Southerners. The complete schedule follows:

September 30—Wash-Jeff at Pitt Stadium.
October 7—West Virginia at Morgantown.
October 14—Navy at Pitt Stadium.
October 21—Minnesota at Minneapolis.
October 28—Notre Dame at South Bend.
November 4—Centre College at Pitt Stadium.
November 11—Duquesne at Pitt Stadium.
November 18—Nebraska at Pitt Stadium.
November 30—Carnegie Tech at Pitt Stadium.

DRILL INDOORS

The merry Panthers, who play their first 1933 game in a couple of weeks (against Southern California in the Rose Bowl), are continuing preparations for the tussle in the Hunt Armory. The snow has driven the locals indoors, and it looks like they'll stay there until they leave for Tucson Sunday night. It also looks like the cold weather has put the old kibosh on the proposed varsity-alumni game, booked tentatively for Saturday. Unless there is a big break in the weather, the game is off.

Scouts Hangartner and Kern, back safe and sound from Los Angeles, where they scouted the Trojans against Notre Dame on Saturday, had charge of the practice yesterday.

TOSSERS GO WEST

Tonight, Coach Clifford Carlson leads his Panther basketball varsity out of town, heading for the Middle West. Tomorrow night the boys will square off against Northwestern, and on Saturday will engage Minnesota. The jaunt will be concluded on Monday with a game with Butler University in Indianapolis.

The Panthers will arrive back home Tuesday morning and then on Friday, will take on Indiana in the Stadium Pavilion.

Heine Miller, Temple University football coach until Pop Warner was named to succeed him recently, and Bill Donohoue, former Tech backfield star, are applicants for the position of head coach of Carnegie Tech next fall, following the resignation of Bob Waddell, but the dope is that Howard Harpster is in and needs only the ratification of the athletic council. Denial is made that Tommy Yarr, former Notre Dame star, is being sought as a line coach.

DUKES TO DINE TONIGHT

The annual Duquesne University Alumni Association dinner to the Bluff gridiron cohorts of Elmer Layden will be held at McCreery's at 6:30 o'clock this evening. Members of the varsity and freshman squads will be guests of the oldtimers at the session.

Included on the program of speakers are Attorney Oliver K. Eaton, County Commissioner Charles C. McGovern, Rev. J. J. Callahan, C. S. Sp., president of Duquesne; Rev. William E. O'Donnell, dean of men; Head Coach Elmer Layden, Line Coach Joe Bach, Freshman Coach Buff Donnelli, Basketball Coach Chick Davies, and Graduate Manager John D. Holahan. Leonard P. Kane, former Hill gridder and recently elected member of the State Assembly, will serve as toastmaster.

Special feature of the event will be award of monograms to winners of varsity letters on the 1932 array. Martin A. Flanagan is general chairman of the dinner and Michael J. Yates is in charge of arrangements.

The complete schedule for 1933 is expected to be announced.

Pirate Officers Reelected For Coming Year

NEW YORK, Dec. 15.—(AP.)—Mrs. Barney Dreyfuss, widow of the long-time owner and president of the Pittsburgh National League Baseball Club, has been elected chairman of the board of directors at the annual meeting of stockholders. The meeting was held in Jersey City yesterday.

William Benswanger was reelected president and treasurer, and Sam Watters again named vice president and secretary.

FINN, WARNER, CASH GIVEN PHILLIES

NEW YORK, Dec. 15.—(AP.)—The Brooklyn Dodgers today announced the acquisition of Ray Benge, star righthand pitcher, from the Philadelphia team of the National Baseball League for Neal (Mickey) Finn and Jackie Warner, infielders, and Austin (Cy) Moore, pitcher, and cash.

Ray Benge

Benge was one of the leading pitchers with the Phillies last year, appearing in 41 games, winning 13 and losing 10. He had an earned run average of 4.05. He has been with Philadelphia for the last five years and compiled a remarkable record with a second division club.

Finn has been general utility man with the Dodgers for two years, playing at second and third bases. Warner and Moore started the season with Brooklyn last year, Moore appearing in 20 games, but both spent most of the season with Jersey City of the International League.

Max Carey, Brooklyn manager, has been after Benge for several days, and in the original lineup the New York Giants also figured, Bill Terry being willing to send Hughie Critz, his second baseman, to Philadelphia in the deal.

TRADES FEATURE MEET

Trades on a wholesale scale featured the activities of the major league owners yesterday, with Joe Cronin, manager of the Senators, and Bill Terry, manager of the Giants, playing the important roles.

The Washington Senators put over two deals. In the first they sent Outfielders Sam West and Carl Reynolds and Pitcher Lloyd Brown to the St. Louis Browns for Outfielders Goose Goslin and Frank Schulte and Pitcher Walter Stewart. The Browns also got a wad of cash.

The second trade pulled by the Nats saw Fred Marberry, pitcher, sent to the Tigers in exchange for Earl Whitehill, southpaw ace.

BRAVES PULL DEAL

The Boston Braves gave Bill Walters, an infielder, and $60,000 in cash to the Mission Club in exchange for Albert Wright, second baseman, and Dick Geyselman, third baseman.

Clarence Blair, former member of the Cubs, was purchased from Los Angeles, and Irving Plummer, an outfielder, from Wilkes-Barre, by the Cincinnati Reds.

The Dodgers purchased Linus Fry, young shortstop, from Nashville, sending Earl Mattingly, pitcher, to the Dixie club in the deal.

The Giants engineered a deal with the Cardinals, sending Bill Walker, Jim Mooney, Bob O'Farrell and Ethan Allen to the Redbirds in return for Pitcher Ray Starr and Catcher Gus Mancuso. They also got Shortstop John Ryan from Buffalo in exchange for Eddie Marshall and a cash consideration.

The Boston Red Sox and Chicago White Sox engineered a trade this morning. The Red Sox gave up Shortstop Hal Rhyne and Pitcher Eddie Durham in exchange for Outfielders Bob Seeds and Bob Fothergill and Infielders Urban Hodapp and Gregory Mulleavy.

DEALS COMPLETED

Detroit, St. Louis and Washington today announced additional details involving the transfer of three more players.

Washington secured Charles Fischer, left-handed pitcher, from St. Louis for Dick Coffman, righthander, and sent Fischer on to Detroit to complete the deal which sent Earl Whitehill, star Detroit southpaw, to Washington. Detroit also got Fred Marberry, big righthander Washington relief hurler.

The St. Louis-Washington swap of Fischer and Coffman was merely a reversal of a trade of last summer, in which the two pitchers were exchanged.

Loyola Defeated By Davis-Elkins

CHICAGO, Dec. 15.—(AP.)—A sure-shooting quintet from Davis and Elkins College, Elkins, W. Va., trounced the Loyola University basketball team last night, 35 to 30.

The defeat was the first suffered by Loyola on its home floor since the 1930-31 season. It was Loyola's first game of the season. The half-time score was 20 to 15 in favor of Davis-Elkins.

Cornell, Syracuse To Meet on Grid

NEW YORK, Dec. 15.—(AP.)—Announcement of the resumption of football relations with Cornell University for 1933 was made today by Syracuse University, the two teams to meet at Ithaca next October 21 for the first time since 1900.

The Syracuse schedule also includes games with Michigan State and Penn State.

By JESSE HARPER

Director of Athletics, Notre Dame. Member, All-America Board of Football.

Jesse Harper

In my opinion, the outstanding football player of the Middle West this year was Harry Newman, quarterback for Michigan, the Big Ten champion. Early in the season, he threw the ball all over the gridiron for touchdowns. Later, when the defense improved against this style of attack, he started running with the ball, and won both the Chicago and the Indiana games by this method. In the last game of the year, with Minnesota, he kicked a field goal which won the game and the Conference title in sub-freezing weather at Minneapolis.

Such performance as this can not be denied special honor. There was no other player in this section of the country who could do all of these things and do them as well as Newman did under pressure.

There were several good centers in the Middle West this fall. It is extremely hard to make the distinction and pick out the greatest. After considerable deliberation and narrowing of the field, I have chosen Art Kreuger, of Marquette, as the boy with the little extra something which ranks him ahead of other Middle West pivot men. Krueger passed well, the first requisite of a center on offense; he was down on punts all season long, he blocked seven kicks, and he made tackles not only at his own position, but all over the field to stand out like a beacon light in the Marquette line.

GOOD ENDS PLENTIFUL

Where ends were scarce last year, they were plentiful this past season. Petoskey, of Michigan, and Moss, of Purdue, however, were so far ahead of the field that it was easy to decide on this position. Both are the inspirational type of player—and they seemed inspired every Saturday, blocking cleanly, going down fast for numerous tackles on punts, catching passes often for touchdowns and making their positions a nightmare for quarterbacks among the opposition.

There is but little doubt that Joe Kurth, of Notre Dame, was the outstanding tackle in the Middle West this year, and perhaps the best in the country. Suffice to say that Kurth was an outstanding all-America favorite last year and that he has conscientiously improved himself in every respect this year.

As Kurth's running mate, I know of no better tackle than Ed Krause, of Notre Dame, an outstanding all-Western and all-America prospect. He played consistent ball all season, but rose to the heights against Army, the biggest game of the year.

GAILUS, HARRIS PRAISED

Harris, of Notre Dame, and Gailus, of Ohio State, were two of the unsung heroes of the past campaign, with Gailus holding the edge by a small margin in the newspapers. Seldom have I seen a guard as consistent as Harris, who alternated with the Notre Dame varsity in 1930 and then played regular ball the next two years. Both Harris and Gailus made their share of tackles behind the line of scrimmage, blocking on end runs, backing up the line and covering on passes, tackling on punts, and piling up the power plays banged at them all season long. Gailus was the spark plug of Ohio State's line, while Harris was a consistent workman-like player throughout the campaign.

I have left the other backfield positions until last because I feel that I should make special mention of the difficulties encountered in picking two halfbacks and one fullback out of the fine ballcarriers who represented the Middle West schools this fall.

A Big Ten star who stood out while playing with a second division team was Gil Berry, of Illinois, who has completed three years of football which might have ranked him with Grange if he were receiving the help the Galloping Ghost enjoyed. Berry can block, pass, kick and run with the best of them. Illinois fans will tell you he is better than Newman. This is, of course, highly problematical because there is no comparison of team strength between Illinois and Michigan.

HINCHMAN AT HALF

Hinchman, of Ohio State, was another great triple-threat star who was not completely stopped by any team this fall. He was playing with one of the best balanced teams in the country, a smooth-working machine which gained power every week, after a faltering start.

The situation at fullback is just as perplexing as at the halfbacks I should say, however, that Horstmann, of Purdue, is all that could be desired in this position. He was designated by every coach whose team played Purdue as a fine line smasher, a great blocker, and a good open field runner. He could also back up a line with the best of them. It is unusual to find all of these qualities in one man.

FANS STRONG FOR MEINE

By CHARLES J. DOYLE

That the Pirates would blunder seriously were they to let go of Pitcher Heine Meine is the opinion of hundreds of Buccaneer fans who rightly believe the St. Louis Dutchman to be one of the best right-handers in the league.

Owing to holdout trouble, Meine was not in the Bucco fold until the race of 1932 had started, yet without spring training, the veteran was good enough to record 12 victories as against nine defeats. Moreover, his mark would have been more impressive had it not been for loose work in clinches by inexperienced players in the infield, especially Floyd Vaughan.

The best way to get an estimate of Meine's worth is to solicit the opinions of the boys who must face him throughout the summer. Most of them will tell you Heinie is a star of the first rank. So unless the Buccos could land somebody like Hubbell, Lucas, Bush or Malone, they would be little short of foolhardy to dispose of the sterling right-hander.

Before they left for New York, President Bill Benswanger and Manager George Gibson said they had no lines out looking toward a trade involving Meine.

Chilly Sauce

Bill McKechnie is finding it hard to deal with rival pilots of the National League, but Skipper Bill is awake to every opportunity, as is shown by his purchase yesterday of two costly Coast Leaguers.

McKechnie was reported as being eager to land Fred Lindstrom, but Bill Terry apparently was sweet on Glenn Spencer and George Davis. Spencer should be one of the standout pitchers of the game, while Davis, in his first full year in the big show, was a sensation.

More than one expression of sorrow was expressed in and around Pittsburgh over the passing of Outfielder Gus Dugas. The sturdy French-Canadian looks like one of the most natural batters to come into the league in the past 10 years. And Gus socks the left-handers with abandon. Perhaps he will win a regular berth under Burt Shotton.

George Gibson states that Adam Comorosky probably will be retained on the Pittsburgh roster. Gibby doesn't wish to drop any right-hand hitters. If Commy would take his baseball more seriously he would not have to back up very far from any outfielder in the league.

The Pirates also have Dave Barbee, than whom there is no harder swatter in the Heydler League. A lot of fans get a big "kick" watching Dixie Dave shellack the ball.

Special Planned For Rose Game

A special car for Pittsburghers who want to make the trip to Pasadena, Cal., for the Pitt-Southern California Tournament of Roses game on New Years Day and do not want to lose any more time than is necessary to make the jaunt by rail is being arranged by Dr. William D. McClelland, former Pitt quarterback.

The party will leave on Christmas night (December 26) at 11:35 o'clock and will arrive in Los Angeles at 10 p. m., December 29. Returning it will leave Los Angeles on January 4 and arrive back home January 8, with stopovers at the Grand Canyon and Albuquerque.

For reservations made up to December 23, the round trip cost, including Pullman, will be $189.38, after that date $142.55. If 25 or more persons make the trip in the party the rate will be cut to $175. Reservations may be made by calling Dr. McClelland at Hemlock 0466.

GARDEN PLANS HOCKEY TEAM

By CARL W. SHATTO

Exhibition games may partially appease the hockey appetites of local fans, who have been on a starvation diet as far as the ice sport is concerned here this winter.

John H. Harris, newly appointed directing force of Duquesne Garden, and his manager, Lee A. Bell, are contemplating staging some exhibition games, bring here teams from the National and International leagues. Also, one or two college teams may be induced to come here to face a local amateur squad now being formed.

The Garden will be opened next week for skating, and shortly after the opening, definite steps will be taken toward lining up some exhibition tussles.

It would be possible to piece together a right formidable band of amateur players here in the city. Tom Coulter, football and track star at Carnegie Tech and a fine skater, and Roy Schooley, Jr., are reported planning to reorganize the Yellow Jackets for some exhibition playing. Carnegie Tech, according to Graduate Manager Buddy Overend, is ready to form a team.

The St. Mary's College sextet, of Winona, Mich., will pass through town late this month and would like to play a game here.

A. A. Stagg Returns To Old Prep School

EXETER, N. H., Dec. 15.—(AP.)—A. A. Stagg, the grand old man of football, yesterday paid a visit to Phillips Exeter Academy, from which he was graduated in 1885, and talked at length to the student body—about baseball. Stagg was quite a pitcher for Yale 45 years ago.

GREENLEAF, RUDOLPH LEAD IN CUE PLAY

CARAS BEATEN BY VETERAN TABERSKI

NEW YORK, Dec. 15.—(AP.)—Frank Taberski, the veteran cue artist from Schenectady, N. Y., is in a fair way to become a real help to his old rival, Ralph Greenleaf, in the national pocket billiards championship.

Taberski stands little chance of winning the crown himself after having lost his first three starts, but after warming up at the expense of the last two men in the standing, James Mills, of San Jose, Cal., and Walter Franklin, of Kansas City, he knocked young Jimmy Caras, the new "boy wonder" from Wilmington, Del., temporarily out of the picture last night and he has another chance to repeat the feat tonight when he faces Erwin Rudolph, of Cleveland.

PLAYS RUDOLPH TONIGHT

Rudolph holds the same position that Caras did when he came up against Taberski, he is undefeated in four games and is only one victory behind Greenleaf in the standing. Caras went down by a 125 to 58 score in nine innings last night as Taberski took advantage of several breaks in the game for long runs, winding up with an unfinished cluster of 64.

The possibility of a three-way tie for third place was present in the schedule for this afternoon as Andrew Ponzi, of Philadelphia, faced Walter Franklin, of Kansas City, who has already lost seven straight matches, and Pasquale Natalie, of Chicago, met another second-division player, Benny Allen, of Kansas City. Both Ponzi and Natalie have won three games and lost one against four and one for Caras.

ALLEN ROUTED

Allen was the victim of a painfully one-sided defeat at Greenleaf's hands yesterday, making hardly a gesture toward getting a score as the defending champion won, 125 to 15, in 13 innings.

Franklin's seventh defeat brought Mills his first victory in seven starts. The score was 125 to 71 in 18 innings.

NORTH SIDERS FACE Y. M. H. A.

Two attractive basketball games are on the card for tonight, one involving two of the city's leading male fives and the other bringing the star Goldenson Vanities, girl champs, into action.

On the Y. M. H. A. floor, the Y quintet will engage the North Siders, with the home team seeking its seventh triumph in as many starts. On the South Side Market House floor, the Vanities will take on the Butler Ads, the Butler County girl champs.

Last night, with Timmy Lawry former Pitt star, playing a stellar role, the Brentwood five crashed the victory column by defeating the Gunther Falcons, 38 to 27. Lawry had a big night, dumping in five field goals and six fouls for 16 points.

GENE TUNNEY TELLS STORY OF LIFE

The Marine Receives a Lesson in Ring Psychology From Tommy Gavagan

By GENE TUNNEY
Retired Heavyweight Champion

SYNOPSIS

Tunney thus far has traced the early course of his fistic career, from athletic boyhood in New York's Greenwich Village, through fight clubs, to his activities with the United States Marines, his company then being encamped at Romorantin, France, where he won both the middleweight championships. He discusses ring courage and the contrasting psychologies of Tommy Loughran and Jack Dempsey.

CHAPTER X

For one possessing such sheer fighting ability, Dempsey had an extraordinary lack of confidence in himself. Though the majority of boxing's best judges believed that Dempsey could easily whip Harry Wills, his persistent Negro challenger, Jack evidently did not. He failed to accept a seven-year challenge. Four days before our first match Dempsey called Herman Taylor, a Philadelphia boxing promoter, into the privacy of his dressing room after a workout, and asked:

Gene Tunney

"Don't kid me, Herman. Do you honestly think I will win from Tunney?"

Taylor was so impressed by Dempsey's lack of confidence in himself that he hedged his bets.

Yet, in the Firpo fight, after he had lost consciousness in the early part of he first round (this in accordance with his own statement), he continued to tear into big, strong Firpo like a wounded lion. He never stopped punching. He came to in his dressing room after winning the fight by a knockout. This was a superb exhibition of sub-conscious or instinctive courage.

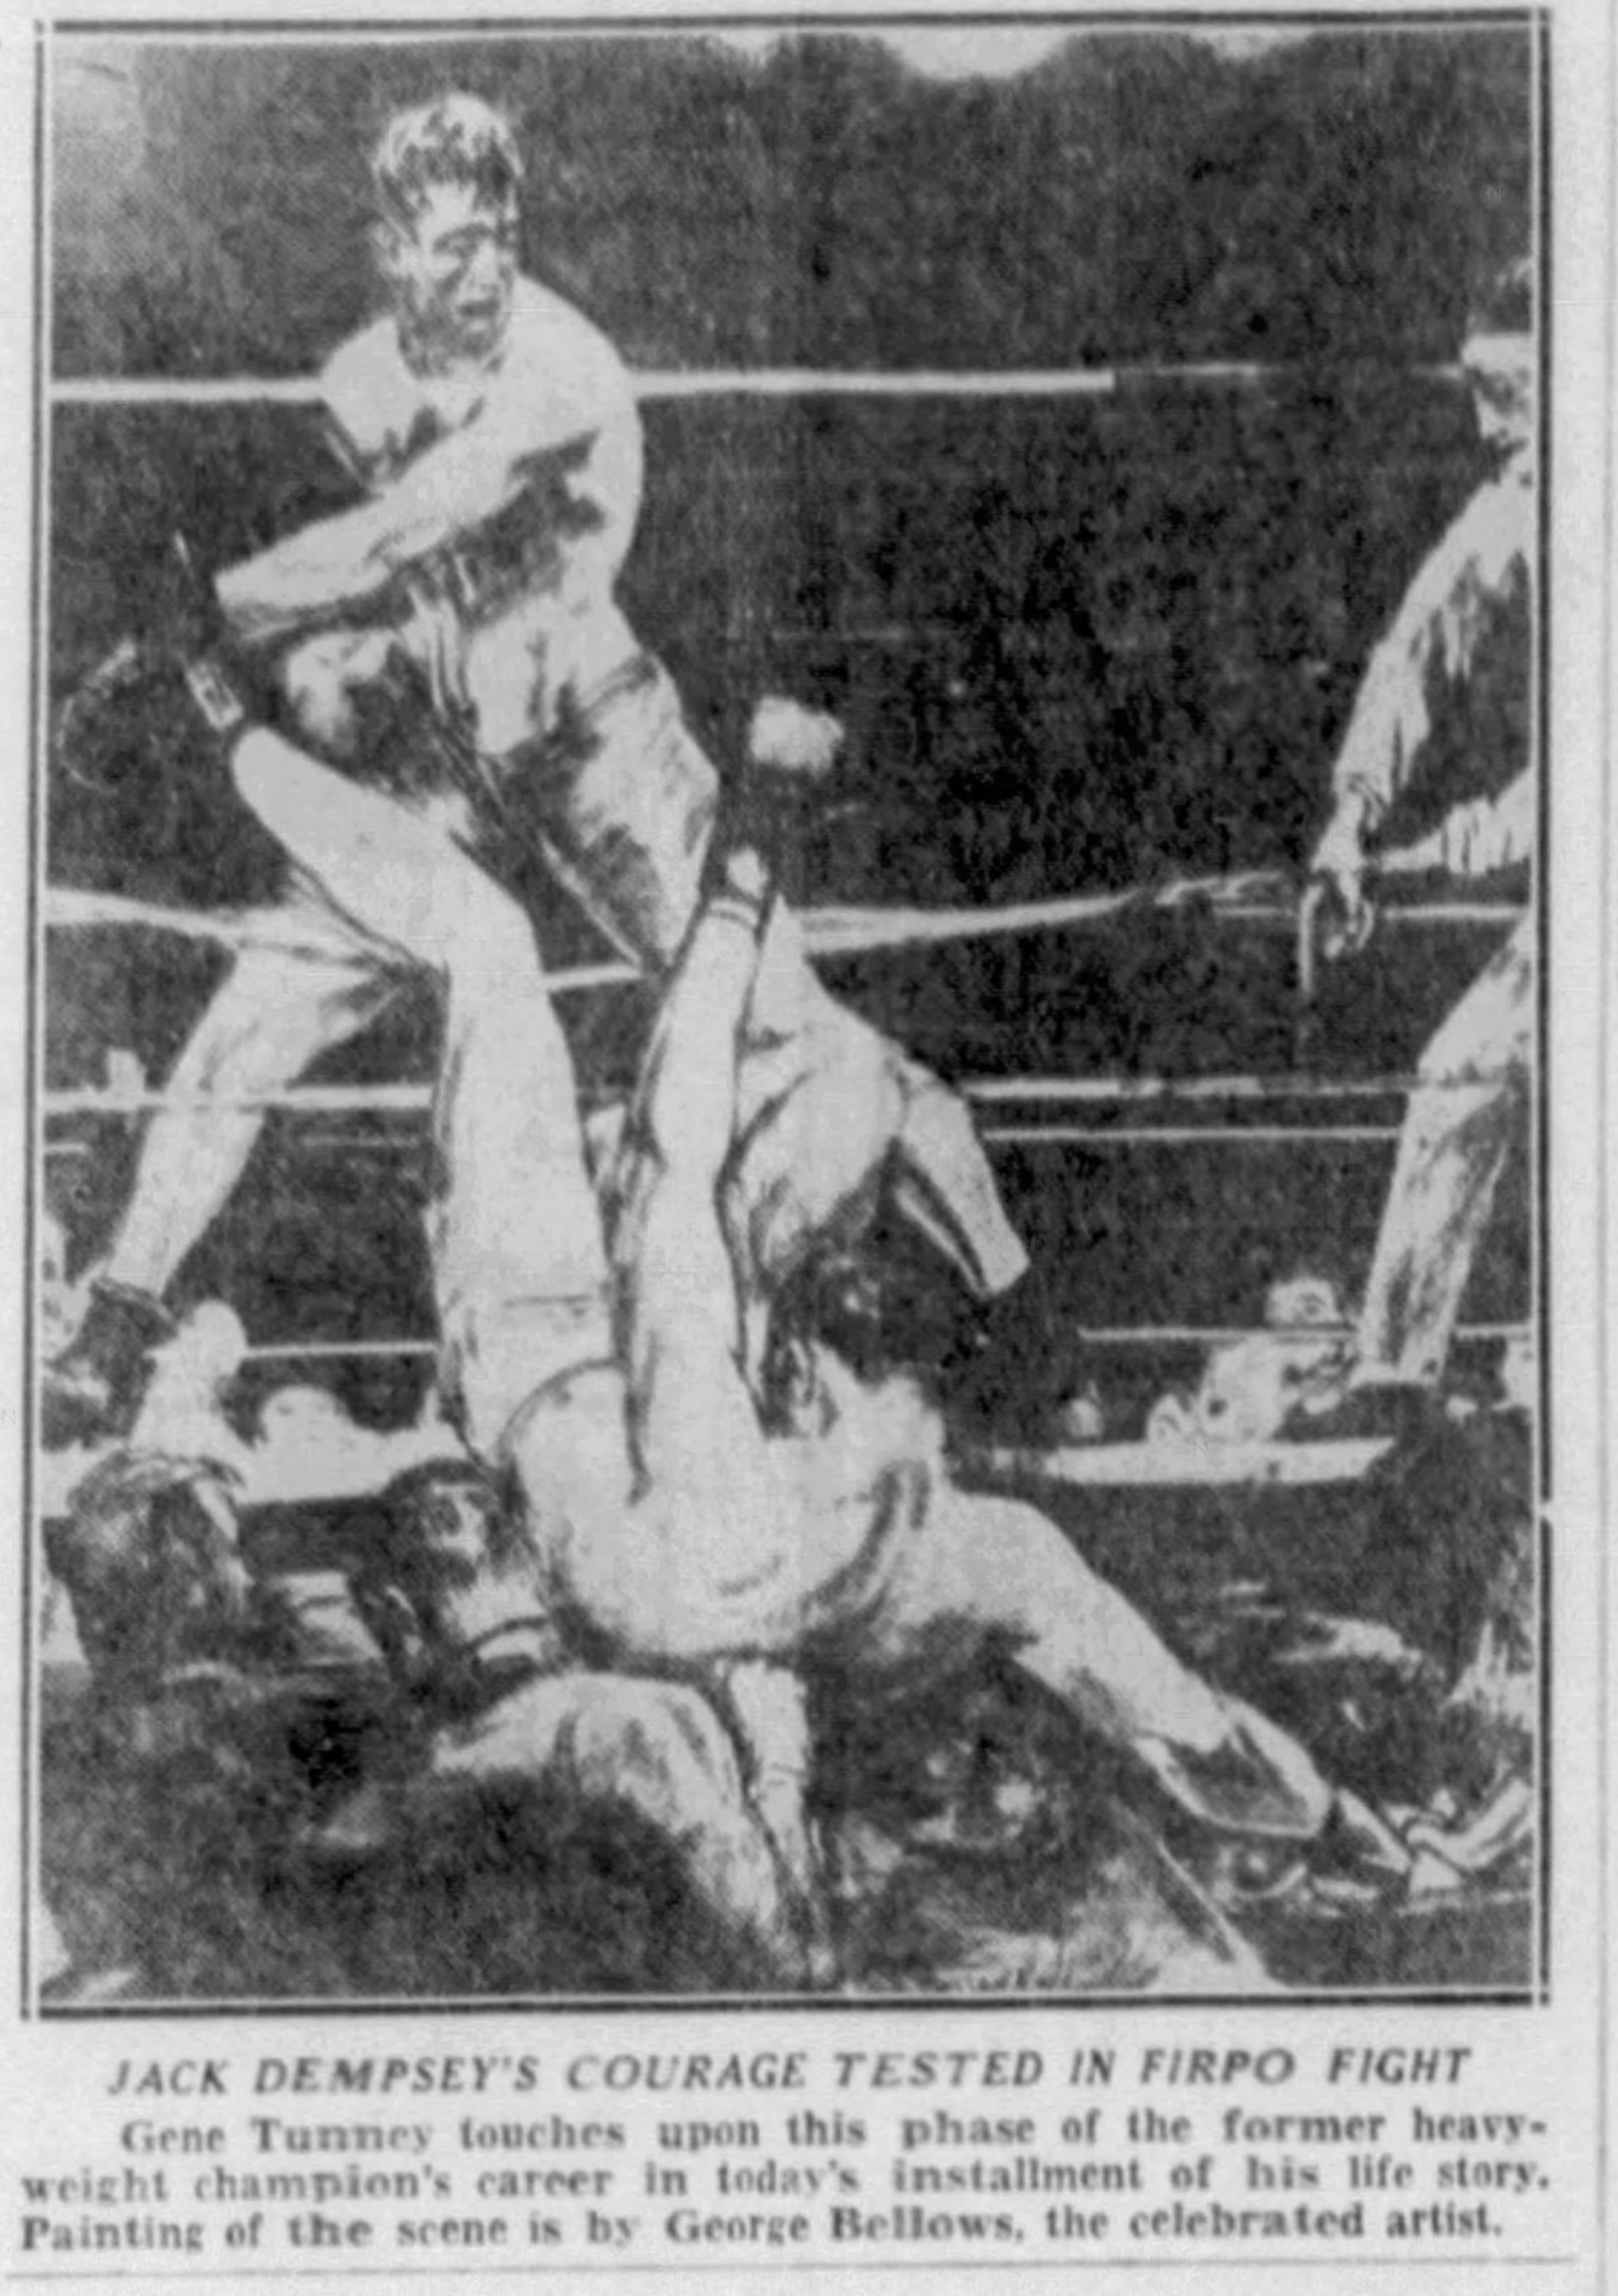
Tommy Loughran, the good fighter, Jack Dempsey, the great fighter: both very successful professionals, yet with almost opposite brands of courage.

RECALLS GREB FIGHT

Every man who has had extensive experience at physical combat knows in his own heart whether he has that stick-to-itiveness in the face of tremendous odds that is called gameness. Sooner or later one meets the test that proves in his own consciousness whether he is game or a quitter. The test may come in the first fight. It may not come until after years of professional boxing, but it is inevitable. In my case, though I had had several professional fights and unlimited sparring experience before the Wuerhl match, I did not meet the test until my head was outside the ropes and it was but a step to safety.

From this moment until the end of my career, I never had the slightest doubt about my determination to stay with an opponent regardless of existing conditions. Whether I could endure a severe drubbing and stay on my feet to the finish, though I was unable to land effectively on an opponent, was not decided in this Wuerhl match. This knowledge was another thing, which became a conscious possession later on during my first fight with Harry Greb.

Confidence in one's ability is sometimes a deciding factor in a match. It becomes a deciding factor where both men are equally matched in other respects. But confidence in one's ability, that is not founded on absolutely unprejudiced appraisal of one's qualities in every department of the fighter's makeup, is somewhat akin to braggadocio or conceit; and is stupid.



JACK DEMPSEY'S COURAGE TESTED IN FIRPO FIGHT

Gene Tunney touches upon this phase of the former heavyweight champion's career in today's installment of his life story. Painting of the scene is by George Bellows, the celebrated artist.

GUARD DUTY BORESOME

The pugilistic roads and crossroads are strewn with the prostrate forms of those who tried to reach the pinnacle with nothing but confidence in an untried ability, or in an ability found to be unequal to the test when it came. It is not only ability that brings countless numbers of recruits to the ranks of pugilism year after year. Confidence in an ability, unable to measure up to the belief it has inspired accounts for countless broken dreams.

As a reward for winning the Wuerhl match, the top sergeant of the company, a great old soldier, granted me an extra day off guard duty. On the second day, I was advised by the orderly who came shouting through our bunk house that "Private Tunney would fall in for guard mount at 10:13." Though I was the post champion, I was to see that no favoritism would be shown. For one who enlisted in an organization inspired by the slogan "First to Fight!" doing guard duty around empty balloon sheds and airplane hangars two hours on and four off, 24 on and 24 off, was a terrible letdown.

Of all the tasks I have been called upon to perform during my life, guarding empty balloon sheds has been the most boring.

DEFENSE CRITICIZED

Presently I began trying to figure out how I could get away from this kind of work and yet do my bit. I thought if I could fight often enough, successfully, for the small glory that came to our unit of marines in this large camp, it would justify my being relieved of this awful task. With this in mind, I went to the captain of the company and asked him if he could not arrange another fight for me, not mentioning my full plan. He said:

"Why, Private Tunney, I do not believe you ought to think of boxing any more. You have the spirit all right, but you get hit so much. Why do you let your opponents beat you up that way? Can't you do anything about avoiding such punishment?"

I answered:

"Captain, you must remember that I had but three days in which to train for this match with Wuerhl, while he had been training for months. You know, Captain, a boxer cannot fight and do guard duty. If I could get off guard duty for a week or so and train every day you would see a different-looking fighter."

He said:

"All right, Private, I will have a talk with the top sergeant and see what can be done about it."

By making it possible for me to train and devote most of my time to boxing, Capt. Barthe permitted me to lay the firm foundation of my professional career. Who knows whether Gene Tunney would ever have been heard about had Capt. Barthe said,

"No, Private Tunney, you must stand guard the same as the rest?"

I don't.

LAYS BOXING FOUNDATION

It was not long until the athletic officer of the camp came to our company commander and asked him to have me box the champion of Gievres in a special boxing carnival that was to be held in the balloon shed on Thanksgiving Day. Believing there might be something in my reasoning, Capt. Barthe decided to give me a chance to prove it.

My opponent turned out to be Sergt. Howard Morrow who had been a second-rate professional before he got into service. I again borrowed the shoes and trunks. With a week's training under my belt I was a more effective fighter. I knocked out Morrow in six rounds before 10,000 soldiers. I went into this match with far more confidence than I had before the Wuerhl fight. I had begun to know something about myself.

MATCHED WITH GAVAGAN

Back to guard duty. Another big boxing carnival in the balloon shed was arranged for Christmas afternoon. Our camp was again challenged, this time by Is-sur-Tille. Being the recognized champion of the post, I naturally was selected to be the representative of Romorantin. On this occasion several carloads of officers laden with francs accompanied the Is-sur-Tille champion, who turned out to be Tommy Gavagan, a first-rate fighter from Cleveland.

Gavagan had, before enlistment, fought all the near-champions of the middleweight division and was always considered a smart, game, hard-hitting middleweight contender. This match was a new experience altogether and gave me some worth-while knowledge about ring psychology.

We were called to the center of the ring by the referee, Joe Gorman. He had been brought from another camp so that there would be a neutral arbiter. Joe is now a very capable and successful referee in California. Gavagan was accompanied to the center by a Y. M. C. A. secretary, Bob Liggett, now business manager of the St. Paul Dispatch. Subsequent to this fight, Bob became a close friend of mine.

TOMMY USES PSYCHOLOGY

After Gorman told us we were to box under the straight Marquis of Queensbery rules, Gavagan turned to him and, with a poker face, asked:

"When I knock him down can I stand over him and hit him as he gets up, or must I step back 10 feet and wait until he rises?"

The referee, who was a stranger to us both and to the camp, was slightly abashed by this. Presently he replied:

"No, you do not have to step back 10 feet, but you cannot stand over him either."

Whereupon Liggett interpolated:

"Well, if Tunney is not knocked cold you mean Tommy will not have to stand back 10 feet."

Though this was a new experience, I realized quickly it was an attempt to prepare me for an inevitable knockout. They were applying a little psychology. I said impatiently to the group—Liggett, the referee and Gavagan—

"That's a lot of bunk!"

And, turning, I walked to my corner to await the bell.

The referee, who was not a party to this little scheme, suddenly realized what was taking place. He followed me to my corner and said:

"Don't mind that, they are just trying to get your goat, kid."

I was indeed naive. I thought this a most unsportsmanlike trick to play. I did not forgive Bob Liggett for some time.

Details of his bout with Tommy Gavagan and other A. E. F. camp champs will feature tomorrow's chapter as Tunney tells how he boxed his way to Paris and a quick knockout of K. O. Marchand, French slugger, who had been whipping some U. S. soldier fisticuffers.

'NOW IT CAN BE TOLD'

Bill Kern, a Landlubber, Reveals Thrills of Flight to Coast to Scout Trojans for Pitt

By CHARLES J. DOYLE

Scout Bill Kern's technical and private report of his study of the Southern California Trojans to Head Coach Jock Sutherland upon his return from the game with Notre Dame at Los Angeles last Saturday was an interesting document, yet it hardly was as engaging as the Pitt scout's recital of his airplane jaunt toward California, which ended quite dramatically on the desert sands below the mountains within 100 miles of the goal.

Bill Kern

A Pittsburgh takeoff in a violent storm, an argument over safety belts, a stalled motor, a seven-hour delay and the forced landing in the desert added spice to Bill's maiden air voyage, but Bill reached the scene in time to see Howard Jones' eleven do its stuff. He was back yesterday with his front line reports on the enemy.

TAKES OFF IN STORM

If you get your Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph regularly, you will recall the picture of tow-haired Bill taking off from a local airport in the midst of a storm. The greenhorn flier had been ordered to the Coast by his superior officer, and Bill climbed aboard a few hours later. The skillful pilot rose above the storm, but encountered such bumpy elements between here and Columbus, O., that safety belts were provided for the customers.

Kern did not like the looks of the belts and reneged politely, but firmly. Kansas City was reached on time, but one of the motors went "haywire" on the way to Amarillo. By this time the tenderfoot flier apparently was a favorite with the crew, which evidently thought he was a seasoned flier when he did not become ill, as others did, during the storm. Says Bill:

"I was enjoying an article in a magazine and was quite contented when one of the boys leaned over to me and remarked:

MOTOR GOES DEAD

"'Our port motor just went dead, but don't say anything to the rest of the passengers—it might disturb them.'

"Well, I just naturally quit reading, and was I happy when we came down nicely at Amarillo!"

The weather was so foggy when the plane reached Kingman, Ariz., that there was some question as to whether the trip could be finished. The careful pilots, however, managed to get within 100 miles of their destination when the fog bank became almost impenetrable.

FINISHES IN AUTO

In touch constantly with the airports by radio, the pilots were informed everything was O. K. on the Los Angeles side of the mountains, but the crew decided to land on an emergency field in the desert. The ship then rose again with the mail and completed the trip. Bill and his companions "flivvered" in and were at the end of the journey by daybreak.

PEABODY LOOMS AS SECTION I CONTENDER

By JULIUS LEVIN

With a flock of lettermen back from last year's squad, Peabody High School is casting eyes on the Section I championship in the City League this season.

The East Enders, under the coaching of Hugh Lambie, who formerly directed championship teams at South Hills High School, will have among their veterans Len Plummer, center; William Zeppenfield, Frank Gillingham and Haymond Glass, guards, and Maxie Helfand, Jesse Fox and Eddie Hull, forwards.

Hull is staging a comeback after being absent from school for a year. He has shown a lot of promise in the preliminary workouts and looms as a regular.

Peabody makes its second invasion of the Beaver Valley tomorrow night when Ambridge is met at Ambridge. Ambridge is reported to be unusually strong this season and Peabody expects a tough battle all the way.

Beaver Falls and Wilkinsburg have taken falls out of the Lambie quintet so far this season, but these games do not have any bearing on the championship fight in the City League.

The South High School passers, boasting a victory over Mt. Lebanon, invade New Castle tonight to oppose Phil Bridenbaugh's Lawrence County machine. Jesko, South High forward, will bear the brunt of the locals' attack.

School Notes

The Scott High School quintet, judging from the showing the Reedmen have made so far in pre-season games, will be in the thick of the fight for the Section VIII championship. Scott goes after its fourth successive triumph tomorrow night when Erie Strong Vincent is the attraction at Scott. Stowe Township, Avalon and Homestead have fallen before the Reedmen so far. The victory scored over Homestead was the third in succession for Reed's team over Bill Campbell's boys.

Fifth Avenue High, holding a victory over Bellevue High, faces an old rival in Uniontown tomorrow. The Fayette Countians are noted for the speedy basketball teams turned out by Coach A. J. Everhart and this year's quintet is no exception to the general rule. Uniontown has withdrawn from the W. P. I. A. L. basketball race owing to a disagreement over the caliber of opponents placed in its section.

Beaten by one point in its opening game with Aliquippa, Braddock High, last year's W. P. I. A. L. champion, is coming back with vengeance, having piled up big scores in its victories over Munhall and Monessen. Coach James (Ham) Hudson's passers are going to prove a tough team to beat this winter. Braddock meets Norwin tomorrow.

Neenie Campbell, coach at Ford City, defending champion in Section VI, takes his passers to Butler tomorrow to clash with Regis Heinzer's combine. Campbell is one of the best basketball coaches in the W. P. I. A. L. and his friends are anticipating another winner in the Armstrong County school. Butler is undefeated in three straight games.

Nate Lippe, coach at Aliquippa High, promises to cut quite a figure in the Section IV race. Beaten by an alumni team, 23-21, Lippe's passers turned right around and vanquished Braddock and Beaver Falls, two powerful opponents.

Earl Loucks and his Greensburg High machine are on edge for the battle with Johnstown at Greensburg tomorrow. Greensburg defeated East Huntingdon in the opening battle of the season, 30-18, and will be out for No. 2 at the expense of the Flood City quintet.

Ganzy Benedict's Ellwood City passers swing into action at Ellwood City tomorrow when Midland is opposed in a pre-season contest. It is the opening game for both teams.

Wesbecher Chosen Greensburg Coach

GREENSBURG, Pa., Dec. 15.—A. A. (Buzzer) Wesbecher, of Greensburg, for the past nine years athletic director at Youngwood High School, has been elected to a similar position at Greensburg High School. Wesbecher succeeds E. Earl Loucks, local mentor for the past five years, whose resignation was announced at the beginning of the past football season.

Wesbecher is a graduate of Greensburg High School and W. & J. College and also played pro football for five seasons for Massillon and Cleveland. He coached Greensburg High School in 1917, joining the Army at the outbreak of the war, and then coming back here as assistant coach in 1919 and 1920. He later coached at Alfred University in New York before going to Youngwood. Wesbecher will begin his duties next fall.

Ramblers' 1932 Welcome Change From 1930

CHICAGO, Dec. 15.—(AP.)—Veteran players of Notre Dame's football team know that thing called fame.

Two years ago they returned to Chicago as victors over Southern California, and one of the wildest sports demonstrations in years greeted them.

Yesterday the team came back in defeat. Less than 200 fans were at the station to cheer, and most of them were close friends and relatives.

STRONG SOCCER CARD LISTED

By TOM BIRKS

Headed by the Lawrenceville-German Sport battle, four interesting games are carded in the Pittsburgh Central League Saturday afternoon. The meeting at Leslie Park probably will decide the ultimate resting place of the pennant, as the rival clubs now rate first and second in the league standing.

It has been many years since the Strip district had a monopoly on the title race throughout the season, but the Sport Club and Lawrenceville have dominated the race since the first games of the season.

On a heavy, snow-bound field it will be anybody's game. Both Lawrenceville and the Sport Club flashed their inability to do themselves justice on a heavy field last week-end in the National Cup ties.

In the makeup of the elevens, the Germans seem to have the best forward line. Scheidle, Harrit and Helbig all are getting goals. Frey and Krampf are not so dependable as Moreman and Mangus for the Strip club.

Ambridge faces Clan Douglas and the Clansmen should win that tilt at the Westinghouse High School Stadium. McKeesport goes to Mt. Lebanon and Joe Luxbacher's team will try hard to win this game, since they have not yet conceded the pennant to any other club.

At Swissvale, a local fight will be waged when the Union Switch and Westinghouse teams meet.

The Referees' Association will meet as usual at headquarters Saturday night.

PREXIES AWARD GRID LETTERS

WASHINGTON, Pa., Dec. 15.—Eleven members of the W. & J. varsity football squad will receive their first letter and reawards will be given to 20 others, it was announced at a meeting of the athletic council, which met in a called session here to analyze the college's athletic budget for the year. Those receiving their first letter are:

Burkhart, Bethlehem; Phillips and Popow, Pittsburgh; Ercius, Donora; Earick, Mansfield, O.; Gray, Washington; King, Ellwood City; Koselko, Martins Ferry, O.; Isac, Detroit; Lieber and Ritterbaugh, Canton, O.; Frank Poe, Pittsburgh, and William Ivill, Washington, senior managers.

Reawards go to:

Armstrong, Alexandria, Va.; Bubenheim, Rosso, and Miko, Pittsburgh; Rometo, Glassmere; Massock, Duquesne; Heck, Tarentum; Dalrymple, Chester, W. Va.; Deacle, Sharpsville; Demedowitz, Brooklyn; John and Bob Fife, and Zagray, Canton, O.; Furjanic, Steelton; Headley and Rhodes, Atlantic City; Johnson and Shaffer, Greensburg; Melenyzer, Charleroi; Capt. Port, Rutherford, N. J.

The athletic council scrutinized the budget, and while a drastic curtailment in the winter sports program was expected, the council announced the program would be attempted as scheduled. A second meeting will be held soon at which more definite action will be taken.

U. of Washington On Financial Rocks

SEATTLE, Dec. 15.—(AP.)—Financial troubles threaten to sweep all sports but football and basketball from the University of Washington athletic schedule. With $45,000 in short term notes due today, finance committees were attempting to arrange for payment of this and bonded indebtedness due January 1.

Such action would hit crew at the school whose former oarsmen and coxswains now are coaching many of the leading collegiate eights in the country.

Penn State Off Colgate Schedule

HAMILTON, N. Y., Dec. 15.—(INS.)—Tulane, Ohio Northern and Rutgers are newcomers on Colgate's 1933 football schedule, released last night. The game with Tulane, to be played in New York, November 11, will be the first athletic contest between the two colleges.

Other 1933 opponents of the Red Raiders, unbeaten, untied and unscored upon this season, include Syracuse, N. Y. U., Lafayette and Brown. Penn State has been dropped.

Bucknell Names Two Grid Leaders

LEWISBURG, Pa., Dec. 15.—(AP.)—Bucknell University's football team will have two captains next year, for the first time in the school's history.

The athletic council yesterday chose Nicholas Farina, of Steelton, center, and Owen James, of Scranton, right guard, after the voting lettermen had tied on three ballots.

LEVINSKY SIGNED

CHICAGO, Dec. 15.—(AP.)—King Levinsky, Chicago's wild-swinging heavyweight, has signed to meet Tommy Loughran, former light-heavyweight champion, in a 10-round match at Philadelphia, January 3.

LOCAL BOY CAPTAIN

Cadet Shuker, 1206 Center avenue, Wilkinsburg, has been elected captain of the 1933 football team at Staunton Military Academy. He is a graduate of Wilkinsburg High.

WHITNEY LAYS EUROPE'S PANIC TO FRANCE

By MERYLE S. RUKEYSER
Universal Service.

NEW YORK, Dec. 15.—Richard Whitney, president of the New York Stock Exchange, charges that the European financial panic of 1931 was ascribable to French manipulation adopted to combat German policies.

Mr. Whitney gives this interpretation in the current annual report of the president of the exchange—an elaborate and well documented survey of economic developments at home and abroad.

Mr. Rukeyser

Referring to the series of runs in Europe last year, Mr. Whitney declared:

"An able American commentator has pointed out that the financial crisis of 1931 in Europe can only be understood by realizing that the mechanism of international finance was being used to continue the supposedly concluded warfare between France and Germany, with the money and security markets this time serving as the actual battlefields. The natural aims of a healthy financial economy on the continent were thus perverted to serve political purposes, and however effectively they may have been so employed, the result was a chaotic condition in European business and finance in some respects more abnormal from the economic viewpoint than even the active state of war after July, 1914.

FORCED TO SUSPEND

"The opening engagement occurred in Austria in May. As the principal bank in Vienna—the Credit Anstalt—tottered under under the abnormal political and other burdens which had been thrust upon it, Germany proposed once more the Anschluss policy of a customs union with Austria. This move—dictated in large measure for internal German political reasons—was countered by French withdrawal of funds from the Credit Anstalt. Despite the efforts of the British, who were primarily interested in averting the very financial catastrophies which actually followed, the Austrian bank was forced to suspend."

Then Mr. Whitney traced the sequence of events in Germany and Great Britain.

Mr. Whitney's report is far more than a routine document. It is an informative economic treatise, mirroring much of the original research ably done under the direction of Edward Meeker, economist of the stock exchange. The theme of the report might be termed the "old deal" as contrasted with the "new deal." The report is largely devoted to orthodox economics and laissez faire.

REPORT BULLISH

In tone the report—at least inferentially—is guardedly bullish. In May, 1929, criticism was made in this column because E. H. H. Simmons, Mr. Whitney's predecessor, appeared at least by implication to identify himself and the stock exchange with bull arguments. The comment was to this effect:

"The stock exchange should maintain a strict neutrality. It is nothing more than a meeting place, where buyers and sellers reflect their opinions. The stock exchange as such should be as impartial toward price fluctuations as the thermometer is to shifts in the temperature."

Mr. Whitney indicated that "the exhaustion of liquidation and the gradual beginning of fundamental economic improvement have, it may be, not yet adequately impressed the public."

Further, Mr. Whitney quite reasonably suggested that a reversal of factors making for curtailment of consumption and the piling up of inventories of raw materials "might lead to a considerable price recovery."

Again, pointing out the drastic decline in the floating or market supply of stock certificates, which have been passing into the hands of investors Mr. Whitney added:

"From the standpoint of technical market conditions at least, this shift has provided a powerful basis for rising prices."

Again, he said:

"The recent low levels of the ratio (of stock exchange member loans to market values of listed shares) may in the future appear . . . indicative of extreme deflation."

Whitney Defends Short Selling in Annual Statement

By GEORGE H. SNYDER

A NEW DEFENSE of short selling was voiced by Richard Whitney, president of the New York Stock Exchange, in his annual report, made public today.

In reviewing the events of the depression years, Mr. Whitney expressed the opinion that a comparison of the movement of stock prices and bond prices in 1931 and 1932 definitely demonstrated the service performed by the short interest in the market.

He declared that the general deflation in stock prices during the depression was not due to short selling, but to a steady shrinkage in the size of the long interest as revealed by the Federal Reserve weekly computations of brokers' loans, Mr. Whitney said:

"The significance of this decline is obvious. On the announcement of good news, the shorts covered and the market became buoyant, but speculators for the rise were not convinced and refused to enter the market. Thus, when the temporary stimulation of short covering wore off, and more disheartening news concerning company earnings and other vital considerations was announced, there was not sufficient buying power to continue the rise, which under the circumstances appeared to be unjustified inflation. As a result, the renewal of the downward trend was inevitable."

* * *

Short Interest Met Two Crises

MR. WHITNEY SAW short covering to be of great importance to the stability of the market during the two real crises of 1931. The first of these occurred September 21 and 22, following the suspension of the gold standard in England, when the stock exchanges all over Europe closed, and tremendous short covering in New York, induced by the two-day suspension of short selling, stabilized the situation by absorbing a torrent of liquidation and enabled the market to remain open.

The other crisis occurred in December, when year-end selling to establish tax losses and liquidation by banks striving to make liquid and reassuring statements as of December 31, were superimposed on a stock market which was already reflecting the continuing downward movement in all business activity and profits. Similarly, in the critical months of the spring of 1932, short covering enabled the market to absorb violent liquidation, albeit with severe price declines. After July 5, however, a broad rally in stock prices occurred which has at any rate halted the intense financial strain reflected in continually declining security prices.

* * *

Bond Market Showed Lack of Short Traders

THE EXTRAORDINARY conditions surrounding the security markets last year are revealed even more clearly in bonds than in stocks, according to Mr. Whitney. Normally bond prices are expected to be more stable than stock prices not only because bonds are obligations bearing a fixed rate of return, but also because they are sold short only infrequently.

In 1930 there was for a time a reassuring even though gentle rise in bond prices until the critical autumn season, with its swiftly mounting bank failures. Through the first half of 1931 bond prices declined, but in the latter half of the year liquidation became overwhelming and bond prices experienced a huge deflation. After a brief rally early in 1932, further liquidation forced the price of many listed bonds to still lower levels, until an extensive rally began in June. In commenting on the fact that bonds, during this period sold at fantastically low prices while stocks could always find an actual buyer, Mr. Whitney said:

"The explanation of this apparent paradox lies largely in the fact that there was no short interest in bonds, and no compulsory buyers stood ready in the bond market to cushion the fall of prices occasioned by extensive liquidation. The actual events of 1931 and 1932 in the security market itself have thus provided another illustration of the fact that short selling is a stabilizer of prices, and far from leading to exaggerated price depressions is in reality an important preventive of them."

STOCK MARKET MOVEMENT IRREGULAR

NEW YORK, Dec. 15.—(AP.)—The stock market lacked stamina to carry its rally through a second session today.

The advances of the previous session were extended in spots in the first hour, with some issues getting up fractions to a point, but by mid-day most of the advance had been lost, and the market was sluggish and irregular.

With the due date of the war debt payments at hand, and the status of the British and French payments evidently settled for the time being, Wall Street turned its attention to domestic affairs. Keen interest was shown in legislative developments, particularly the hearings on the farm relief measure, and the plan of early consideration of the Glass Banking Bill. In the main, Wall Street comment indicated considerable hope of constructive legislation.

Buying recommendations made by a prominent investment service, and a number of brokerage houses, attracted considerable attention in Wall street, although opinion remaine decidedly mixed. While bullish quarters stressed the good undertone shown by the market in the past several sessions, and the amount of funds seeking investment as indicated by the demands for highest grade bonds, skeptics still pointed to the low rate of corporate earnings and the uncertainties surrounding the earnings outlook for the first half of 1933.

Discussing the prospects for 1933 in the monthly bulletin of the Cleveland Trust Company, Col. Ayres said "the problem of trying to forecast the business developments of 1933 is one that involves in large measure the attempt to guess or estimate the degree to which the policies of the new administration at Washington will be formulated with wisdom and its actions guided by sagacity."

POUND RALLIES, FRANC LOWER

NEW YORK, Dec. 15.—(INS.)—The British pound sterling jumped 1⅛ cents to $3.29¼, a new high for the recovery movement on the payment of the $95,500,000 war debt payment, today while the franc ruled slightly lower at 3.90⅛ cents.

Belgian exchange also was weak at 13.84 cents, and below the gold point, on that country's default along with France and Poland. In brokerage circles today switching out of French government and municipal bonds was advised.

The Federal Reserve system today will pay to the United States Treasury the $95,500,000 in gold for the account of England and will in turn earmark the same amount of metal in the Bank of England's vaults pending its shipment to this country.

With Europe apprehensive over the results of the French default the flow of gold into this country was speeded up.

The Federal Reserve reported the receipt of $5,905,100 from England, $656,000 from China and the earmarking of $5,202,700. There were no exports.

The rest of the foreign exchange list was quiet.

LONDON, Dec. 15.—Trading on the London Stock Exchange continues restricted owing to approach of the close of the account period.

PARIS, Dec. 15.—Prices on the Bourse were firm throughout the list.

BERLIN, Dec. 15.—The Boerse exhibited a good tone, with small gains again general. The French war debt decision had no effect on prices.

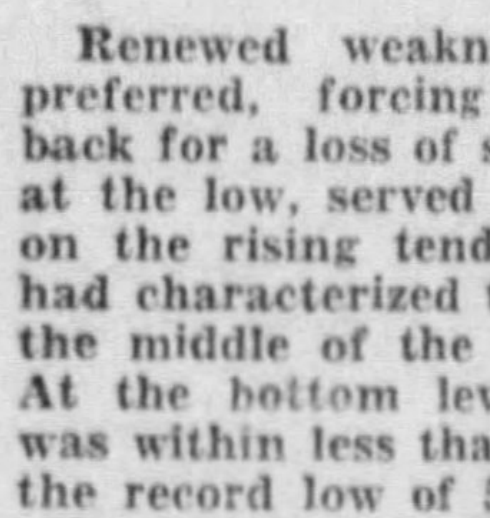
Old Russian Recognition Rumor Stirs Trade In Electrics

Wall street dusted off one of its old stock in trade rumors as the electrical equipment issues and farm implement shares came into renewed prominence in early dealings. Prospective recognition of Soviet Russia a few months ahead was held out as the explanation for the show of strength in stocks like Case Threshing Machine, Harvester, Westinghouse and General Electric. This yarn has cropped up intermittently during the past year, and at the moment the professed belief is that a move in that direction will be among the first steps of the new administration with the calling of a special session of the new Congress after March 4 next.



Renewed weakness in Steel preferred, forcing that stock back for a loss of some 3 points at the low, served as a damper on the rising tendencies which had characterized trading up to the middle of the second hour. At the bottom level the stock was within less than 9 points of the record low of 51½, touched prior to the dividend meeting last July. Some of the selling was for short account, but much of the pressure was described as representing liquidation. Dividend action is due January 31, but Wall street is quite reconciled to the increasing possibility of suspension of payments at that time. Mr. Taylor, head of the company, who is leaving tonight on a quick trip to London, having stated the corporation's case quite plainly some months ago.

Wall street was quick to take a constructive view of the refusal of France to continue payment under the present regime of debt payments. In many quarters, it was insisted that the refusal brought a settlement of the whole war debt question measurably nearer. It was recognized too, that the French refusal to pay meant that there would be no renewed discussions of efforts to go back of the Lausanne accord and revive the deeply interred reparations payment schedules.

France's trade in general merchandise with the United States has averaged $354,000,000 annually, with the total divided into $138,000,000 of imports into this country and $216,000,000 of exports. Both imports and exports have declined since 1929. There has been a balance of trade against France in that country's transactions with the United States in virtually every year in the last several decades. For 1931 it was about $41,000,000. The previous year it was $110,000,000 and in 1929 the balance against France was $94,000,000.

November traffic of American Airways, Inc., showed a marked increase over that of the same month last year, according to L. D. Seymour, president. Plane mileage increased 24 per cent while passenger traffic was up 50 per cent and air express was 700 per cent ahead of the November, 1931, poundage. Passenger traffic for the first 11 months this year was reported 67.7 per cent higher than last year.

Loadings reports so far received from individual railroads for the week ended December 10 indicate that the percentage decline from a year ago will be slightly greater than in the preceding week and the percentage of the 14-year average ended with 1931 will be smaller. The total for the week ended December 10 will show a sizeable decrease in number of cars loaded as compared with the immediately preceding week, which, for the most part, is a seasonal variation.

U. S. FOREST PURCHASES

Purchase of 4,727,680 acres of land has been made by the United States for national forest purposes in the last 21 years, said the annual report of the National Forest Reservation Commission. This about half completes the commission's program of land acquisition within 41 forest purchase units established to date for timber growing and watershed protection in the Eastern half of the country. On account of a lack of funds, only 83,086 acres were purchased during the fiscal year 1932, compared with 547,945 acres during the previous year.

ARGENTINE WHEAT CROP

Preliminary official estimate of Argentina's wheat crop indicates 231,460,000 bushels, an increase of 5,585,000 bushels over a year ago, but a decrease of 7,413,000 bushels compared with the crop harvest two seasons ago, Buenos Aires advices state. Estimating a carryover of approximately 18,000,000 bushels and home requirements of 95,000,000 bushels, the exportable surplus is placed at about 154,000,000 bushels.

PACKARD STOCKHOLDERS GAIN

Stockholders of Packard Motor Car Company now total 111,934, compared with 104,756 on January 2, 1932, with 89,319 on February 1, 1931, and with 60,451 on April 1, 1930.

LONE STAR GAS LEADS LOCAL TRADING

Fuel stocks re-established their leadership of the trading on the Pittsburgh Stock Exchange today with Lone Star Gas dominating the market, seconded by Western Public Service. The latter Company today announced its first dividend, declaring a 10-cent disbursement. Lone Star, which has been showing an upward tendency for the past several days, pushed its way through $7 in the early market, the first time it has sold above that figure since the mid-summer rise.

The heavy industrial group did not follow the move in the fuel stocks, but maintained a steady tone. Improvement on the "big board" in the early market stiffened the price structure and it was evident that not much stock was for sale around the recently prevailing levels.

WHEAT PRICES TURN UP

CHICAGO, Dec. 15.—Responsive to strength shown by the New York stock market, wheat scored an early advance today. International debt complications appeared to be out of the picture as an immediate price influence. Opening unchanged to ⅜ higher, wheat afterward rose all around. Corn started unchanged to ⅛ off and subsequently held near the initial figures.

Nervousness of wheat prices at Winnipeg acted as a handicap later on wheat bulls in Chicago. Corn and oats were easier despite wintry weather likely to promote enlarged feeding of livestock.

Provisions reflected an upturn of the hog market.

HEARST STOCK YULE DIVIDEND IN MAILS

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 15.—Christmas dividend checks, covering the tenth consecutive quarterly cash dividend payment, were in the mails today, destined for the homes of thousands of investors in Hearst Consolidated Publications, Inc.

This dividend, based upon an annual rate of 7 per cent or $1.75 per share, will be an important individual contribution toward the 1932 Yuletide distribution of funds.

Hearst 7 per cent preferred shares have rapidly grown in favor with the conservative class of investors throughout the country and are considered one of the safest and soundest securities available today.

The popularity of this investment is best evidenced by the fact that during the past 15 months, the most severe of the depression, approximately 12,000 investors have acquired an interest in Hearst Consolidated Publications, Inc., bringing the total number of shareholders close to 36,000 persons.

The $129,000,000 Hearst Consolidated Publications, Inc., represents a group of 12 nationally known enterprises of William Randolph Hearst. In the face of epochal economic conditions, Hearst Consolidated has fully earned dividends during the last three years and ranks among the major industrials maintaining dividends.

TRADE BUYING AIDS COTTON

NEW YORK, Dec. 15.—Cotton futures opened steady, 1 point higher to 2 points lower, with disappointing Liverpool cables offset by a good trade demand. December, 6.03c; January, 6.04c; March, 6.16c; May, 6.27c; July, 6.36c; October, 6.53c.

The demand was supplied at about the initial figures, however, and prices eased off a point or two during the early trading under realizing and scattered selling which included southern hedging. January sold from 6.04 to 6.00, and May from 6.28 to 6.23, with active months showing net losses of about 2 to 4 points at the end of the first half hour.

The early setback carried prices off to 5.96 for January and 6.18 for May, or about 6 to 9 points net lower. The selling tapered off at this decline and the market was quiet later in the morning with prices working up a few points on a moderate scattering demand. At mid-day, May was holding around 6.23 with the general list showing rallies of 3 to 5 points from the lowest.

LIVERPOOL, Dec. 15.—Cotton—Receipts, 23,000 bales, including 8,100 American. Spot in fair demand; prices 16 points higher. FARISH BACKS TEXAS CUTS

FORT WORTH, Dec. 15.—W. S. Farish, president of Humble Oil and Refining Company, informed of the crude oil price reduction initiated by the Texas Company yesterday, stated that it was "a logical one." Farish said:

"Product prices do not justify the crude oil prices which were in effect before the recent attempted increase, and the return from the sale of products on the markets of the country must inevitably sooner or later set the prices for crude oil."

Until he returns to his office in Houston today and is in closer touch with the situation, he would be unable to make a statement on probable course to be taken by his company in the matter, he stated.

The new prices posted by the Texas Company range from 50 cents to $1.06 per barrel. Former prices ranged from 75 cents to $1.12.

Forbes

New York City Now Visitable: Weeping Ends

By B. C. FORBES

NEW YORK is again visitable. Your shoulders won't be drenched with tears even if you visit the financial end of Manhattan. The abject despair which gripped the financial community during the first half of this year has lifted. Pessimists there still are, of course; but the predominating spirit is one of modest hopefulness.

Mr. Forbes

The United States promises to end 1932 on a somewhat higher plane than ruled at the end of the first half of the year. The prolonged downward trend has been arrested in most directions. The deduction that bottom was touched around mid-year is being more and more widely drawn. President Richard Whitney, of the New York Stock Exchange, yesterday said:

"The public usually fails to recognize promptly either the advent or the passing of a boom or of a depression. Most observers early in 1930 were not yet convinced that the inflation of 1928-1929 was over, and in like fashion the exhaustion of liquidation and the gradual beginning of fundamental economic improvement have, it may be, not yet adequately impressed the public."

THE DAWN of returning prosperity, after severe depression, comes like a thief in the night. This writer long ago ventured the opinion that events would prove that bottom was reached around mid-year. Herbert N. Casson, eminent British business commentator, writes:

"Good times invariably come after a depression, about six months before most people know it. They come while most people are still talking depression. The new opportunities come before people are ready for them.

"Once a ship was wrecked a hundred miles from the mouth of the Amazon. A lifeboat filled with sailors drifted toward the shore. The sailors had no water. They were half dead from thirst.

"They drifted into the mouth of the Amazon. There was fresh water all around them but they did not know it. Finally one sailor scooped up some water with his hand and drank it. And they were saved.

"Better times have begun, stir yourself and use your opportunities."

THIS IS encouraging: Draw a line from the bottom point reached annually by railway car loadings in the week containing the Fourth of July, to the point reached at the beginning of December, and you will find that this year's is the only line since 1928 which follows an upward course. In other words, in every year since 1928 car loadings were lower at the beginning of December than they were at mid-year. This year the reverse is true.

Cannot this be interpreted as one of various straws showing how the wind is blowing?

BRITAIN HAS lived up to her historic reputation.

Would it be going too far to say that France has done the same thing?

Out of evil sometimes springs good. The momentous events of this week are likely to strengthen the solidarity of the English-speaking nations and to raise them in the esteem and confidence of the world. Many able minds have ardently urged since the World War that only close co-operation between the two great English-speaking peoples could insure world peace.

Although the Bank of England owns little more than $450,000,000 gold, Britain meets her obligation of $95,550,000. France, although the Bank of France owns over $3,260,000,000 gold, welshes on her obligation of only $19,261,438.

Which of these debtors is likely to fare better when the whole question of war debt revision comes up? France, because of her geographic position and because of her history, should have been the last country in the world gratuitously to alienate the friendship of this powerful nation.

THE IMPRESSIVE recovery in German bonds is readily understandable. Germany stands to benefit most of all from international debt readjustment.

(Copyright, 1932, B. C. Forbes.)

NEW YORK BOND MARKET

NEW YORK, Dec. 15.—The bond market, ignoring foreign war debt casualties and domestic industrial uncertainties, displayed a steady to firm tone today in moderately active trading. Further strength of United States government issues was the principal feature of the session. The war loan situation continued to weigh somewhat heavily on various foreign obligations.

NEW YORK, Dec. 15.—(AP.)—Transactions in the most active bonds on the New York Stock Exchange today were as follows (000 omitted in sales column, United States bonds in dollars and thirty-seconds of dollars):

WARNER HEADS KEEP CONTROL

WILMINGTON, Del., Dec. 15.—(INS.)—Control of Warner Brothers Pictures, Inc., today remained in the hands of the Warner management following a furious battle for proxies for control of the corporation and the election of five directors favored by the management.

The directors, elected for two-year terms, are John P. Laffey, Wilmington; Charles Guggenheimer, New York; Morris Wolf, Philadelphia, and Samuel Morris and Stanleigh P. Friedman, both of New York.

Following count of the vote, judges announced the directors had been elected by a "majority of several thousand shares" and that nothing which may develop can change the result of the vote.

The meeting also approved an amendment to the corporation charter changing the common stock from no par to $5 par and turned down resolutions submitted by the "opposition" condemning the management and calling for return by Renraw, Inc., of 9,000 shares of common issued to it in 1928.

MARY FAITH -:- Story of a Girl With Husband Who Wouldn't Grow Up -:- By BEATRICE BURTON

Mary Faith's Anguish Over Losing Kim Lessened As Time Goes On CHAPTER VII.

At half past three Mr. Nesbit left the building to go to a bank directors' meeting. He did not get back to the office until six o'clock.

"I'm sorry to keep you like this," he said, putting his head in at the door of Mary Faith's little room. "Do you mind staying a little late? I'd like to get my desk cleared tonight."

"I'll be glad to stay," said Mary Faith, and she meant it.

His words were like a reprieve to her. All day she had been dreading the evening meal in the River street house with the Brock girls watching her with their X-ray eyes. A boarding house was so public. You couldn't keep even your sorrow and your humiliation to yourself if you happened to live in one.

It was half past seven by the time she had finished the last of Mr. Nesbit's letters and had locked her desk for the night. She was getting into her raincoat when he opened the door of her room once more.

"It's raining," he said. "I'm going to drive you home."

"I don't mind the rain, Mr. Nesbit. I often take walks when it's raining. I like to slosh through puddles."

"I'm going to drive you home."

When she went downstairs a few minutes later he was standing in the front doorway, waiting for her. Outside the gray closed car that he drove stood at the curbstone.

SHOPPING INTEREST GONE

They got into it. Mary Faith leaned back against the cushions, her eyes on the wet glitter of the streets as they rolled along. The pavements were black and gold, and the lighted shop windows were like giant-size magic lanterns throwing their colors out into the darkness.

A few days before she had lingered before them on her way home from work, enchanted by the lovely things that were on display in them. Enchanted by the snow-white electric ice boxes, by the carved and polished furniture, by the Oriental rugs and the bowls and boxes of Chinese brass.

Now she turned her eyes away from them. The very sight of them had a certain power to make her heart ache . . . She was back at the typewriter and the filing cabinet for good.

"It's almost 8 o'clock and you haven't had any dinner," Mr. Nesbit suddenly remembered when they were halfway to River street. "We'll go somewhere and get some."

Mary Faith shook her head quickly. "No, thanks," she answered. "Mrs. Puckett always has Agnes put some dinner away for me when I'm late. And I'm tired. I'd rather go straight home if you don't mind."

The dining room windows were dark when they drove up before Mrs. Puckett's. Mary Faith let herself quietly into the house, hoping that she would meet no one on her way upstairs. But as she closed the front door Mrs. Puckett called out to her from the parlor.

AVOIDS QUESTIONS

"Mary Faith!—Didn't I just see you drive up in a gray closed car?"

Mary Faith knew that she had seen her. Whenever an automobile stopped before the house Mrs. Puckett hurried to the front windows. She had the ears of a fox and eyes in the back of her head.

"Yes," Mary Faith came down the hall and stood between the ruby velvet curtains that hung in the doorway of the parlor. "That was Mr. Nesbit's car. He brought me home tonight, Mrs. Puckett."

He never had driven her home before, and Mrs. Puckett knew it. Her eyebrows shot up under the fringe of her pompadour.

"Oh—ho" she said. "So that's it! So that's why we aren't getting married in two weeks; so that's why we've changed our plans! We have a new beau!"

"It looks to me like a case of 'off with the old love and on with the new,' one of the girls remarked archly. "That's the way things look to me, Mrs. Puckett."

Synopsis

Mary Faith is secretary to Mark Nesbit, wealthy, young businessman. She informs Mark that she is leaving her position to marry Kimberley Farrell, young lawyer, to whom she has been engaged for some time. Invited to Kim's house for dinner, Mary Faith is greeted coldly by his mother. Later, Kim startles Mary Faith by breaking his engagement and asking for the ring. The next morning, Mary Faith informs her co-workers that she is not to be married. She asks them to take back their presents.

Now Go On

If that was the way things looked to them it was a blessing, said Mary Faith to herself. And in her heart she thanked Mr. Nesbit for driving her home.

"Good night, everybody," she said and escaped from them before they could ask her any more questions.

Her room was unbearable to her that night, filled as it was with things that reminded her of Kim. The books they had read together. The pink-sprigged dishes and the etching that she had bought long ago. The scrapbook of recipes and household hints. His picture in a leather frame on her desk. His picture.

She picked it up and stood looking at it for a minute or two. Then she opened the drawer of the desk and laid it face-downward under some old letters.

And for a moment she stood there, pressing her hands against her heart as if she was trying to deaden the intolerable pain in it.

Once during the night she woke up.

In the darkness everything came rushing back to her—all the unhappiness of the past 24 hours.

For one black moment she knew she was sick of herself, of her life of everything . . . Then the merciful weariness of utter exhaustion came over her again and she slept until morning.

* * *

September was blown away on a gale that stripped most of the branches in Haltnorth Park and tore loose one of the green shutters outside Mary Faith's bedroom windows.

Halloween came, and there were little pasteboard jack-o'-lanterns on the tables in Mrs. Puckett's dining room.

Thanksgiving Day brought the first snow and filled the house with the rich odor of sage dressing and roast turkey.

The year before Mary Faith had gone to the Thanksgiving Day football game with Kim, chrysanthemums on her coat and windblown roses in her cheeks.

This year she went to church, alone.

The words of the beautiful service for Thanksgiving kept coming back into her mind all that long lonely holiday: "He healeth those that are broken in heart. He giveth medicine to heal their sickness."

NESBIT INJURED

They seemed to have been written just for her. For time, the medicine that heals those that are "broken in heart," was healing her. Her first anguish over losing Kim had settled down now to a dull and steady ache.

Once again she could pick up a book or magazine without seeing Kim's face swim across every page. She could hear the shrill ringing of the office telephone without telling herself that it might be Kim, wanting to talk to her. Sometimes after work she went to the moving pictures with Jean Bartlett and found herself actually enjoying them.

Slowly, slowly, she was learning how to live her life without Kim.

A little after nine on the first morning in December, Mary Faith stepped into Mr. Nesbit's office and found it empty.

At 10 o'clock when Dan Bassett came upstairs to see him about some orders it was still empty.

This was unusual; for Mr. Nesbit was a person of punctual and orderly habits.

At nine every morning he walked into the office. At half past five he left it. On Wednesdays he lunched at the Rotary Club. On Saturday afternoons he played golf at the Blue Valley Country Club if the weather was fine. If it was not he played handball at the Athletic Club downtown. His life was ordered with beautiful regularity, and Mary Faith knew it.

"I'll sign those orders for you, Dan," she said to the shipping clerk. "But I wonder where Mr. Nesbit is. It's not like him to be late, and not to telephone."

At 11 o'clock he did telephone from his house in Blue Valley, 30 miles away.

"I've hurt my ankle, Mary Faith," he told her. "The doctor says I'll be laid up here for a couple of weeks. So I'm going to have to ask you to bring my mail out to me. Better bring along your typewriter and anything else you need. Loft is on his way in to town to get you. Anything you want to ask me about?"

"No, Mr. Nesbit," answered Mary Faith, who always signed routine checks and orders and looked after things in general when he was not at the office.

Fifteen minutes later Loftus, his colored chauffeur, came walking into her little room with an umbrella hooked over his wrist. He carried her typewriter down to the plum-colored limousine that stood waiting in the street and held his umbrella over her carefully as she crossed the icy sidewalk.

"Dis is sure bad weather for drivin'," he said to her as the car found its way through the traffic of the streets. "I never knowed Mr. Mark to have an accident until dis mornin'." He shook his head.

"What happened to him, Loftus?"

"He tipped over in his car—de little gray one," the man explained. "I seen him drive out de garage and pretty soon I heard a horn tootin' out by de gate. It kep' on tootin' and pretty soon I goes to see what's wrong out dere. And dere's Mr. Mark's car throwed over in de ditch and him settin' on top of it. He made de curve too quick, he say."

The Blue Valley road was like a frozen river and Loftus drove over it slowly and cautiously. It was almost 1 o'clock when he turned into a gravel driveway that ran along between high hedges of evergreen.

At the end of it stood a long low house of field stone. Smoke rose from its chimneys, giving promise of warmth and comfort within. A white collie came running across the snowy lawn from the field-stone stable.

"It's raining," Nesbit said, "I'm going to drive you home."

Best Remedy for Cough Is Easily Mixed at Home

Saves $2. So Easy! No Cooking!

You'll never know how quickly a stubborn cough can be conquered, until you try this famous recipe. It is used in more homes than any other cough remedy, because it gives more prompt, positive relief. It's no trouble at all to mix and costs but a trifle.

Into a pint bottle, pour 2½ ounces of Pinex; then add granulated sugar syrup to make a full pint. Syrup is easily made with 2 cups of sugar and one cup of water, stirred a few moments until dissolved. No cooking needed. This saves two-thirds of the money usually spent for cough medicine, and gives you a purer, better remedy. It never spoils, and tastes fine.

Instantly you feel its penetrating effect. It loosens the germ-laden phlegm, clears the air passages, and soothes and heals the inflamed membranes. This three-fold action explains why it brings such quick relief in severe coughs.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of Norway Pine, used for generations for its healing effect on throat membranes. It is guaranteed to give prompt relief or money refunded.

SUN-TELEGRAPH-WARNER THEATERS JUNIOR KOMIC CLUB

Adele Yoris, of the Cameraphone Chapter of the Sun-Telegraph-Warner Theaters Junior Komic Club, shows signs of being a great singer when she grows up. Among the numbers she sang at Saturday's meeting was "Everything Nice Belongs to You." She was given an ovation by the members. She promises to sing again next week. Jack Kastrentas sang "Say It Isn't So" and Dorothy Crozier put a lot of real pep in "The Gentleman From Georgia."

Members of the Arsenal Chapter always have a good time at the regular meeting. Saturday's meeting had the usual large attendance with Frank Kay as master of ceremonies. Frank also showed the club a few nifty tricks in dancing. Santa Claus sang a Christmas song and the Evans sisters sang popular songs and did clever dancing. A team of youngsters, "Babe and Claire," tumbled all over the stage in a swift acrobatic act.

GALA SHOW ARRANGED

A gala show that has been planned by the Plaza Chapter for next Saturday—that big diversified entertainment — the Gertrude Bales School of Dancing put on with so much pep for the Schenley Chapter last Saturday. Manager John Morin, Jr., looks for a record-breaking attendance at next Saturday's meeting. There will be some new juvenile entertainment on the program and nearly all that appeared on the Schenley program will also be at the Plaza. These will include George Franks, Charles Nussbaumer, Marion Jones, Carl Steinmitz, Catherine Bell, Dolores Richardson, Betty Wagner, Eva Marie Aur, Betty Jean Heilpert, Betty Hoeferman and, last but not least, Mitzi Bales, whose songs and dances made a great hit at the show last week.

It is hard to tell how the children's hosiery business is going to be about Christmas time in the shops of Pittsburgh but if the kiddies' stockings keep coming in at outlying Warner Theaters where the Komic Club chapters meet, there is going to be a notable shortage. It is estimated that the club members have already turned in more than 10,000 stockings tagged with membership names to be distributed at the special Komic Club Christmas parties scheduled for Saturday—the day before Christmas. Special holiday programs are being arranged including a visit from Santa Claus at each theater, the singing of carols—in fact everything to emphasize the real holiday spirit for the children.

TODAY'S BIRTHDAYS

Manager William Hock, Kenyon Chapter, announces an important change in the matter of entertainment for his kiddies beginning with the meeting this Saturday. In the first place the meetings will open at 12 o'clock noon instead of 1:00 o'clock and instead of the regular stage shows hertofore put on, the program will consist entirely of pictures with plenty of comedy and cartoons.

Congratulations to the following boys and girls, all members of the Sun-Telegraph-Warner Theaters Junior Komic Club, celebrating their birthdays today:

Rowland—Robert White, Alice Spooner, LaVerna Brown, Dolores London.

South Hills—Byrd Westbrook, William Fleming, Norman Seuffert, Jimmy Glass, Frank Black.

Etna Harris — Wilma Bergman.

Manor—Eleanor Riteman.

Kenyon—Ruth Valentine.

Consensus of the Drys

We have interviewed some prominent drys on the much malted subject of beer. Here's their views.

It's treason by the quart.

I shall drink it but I shall fall with my face toward the foe.

No man can force this satanic mixture down my throat. I shall inhale it through a soda water straw.

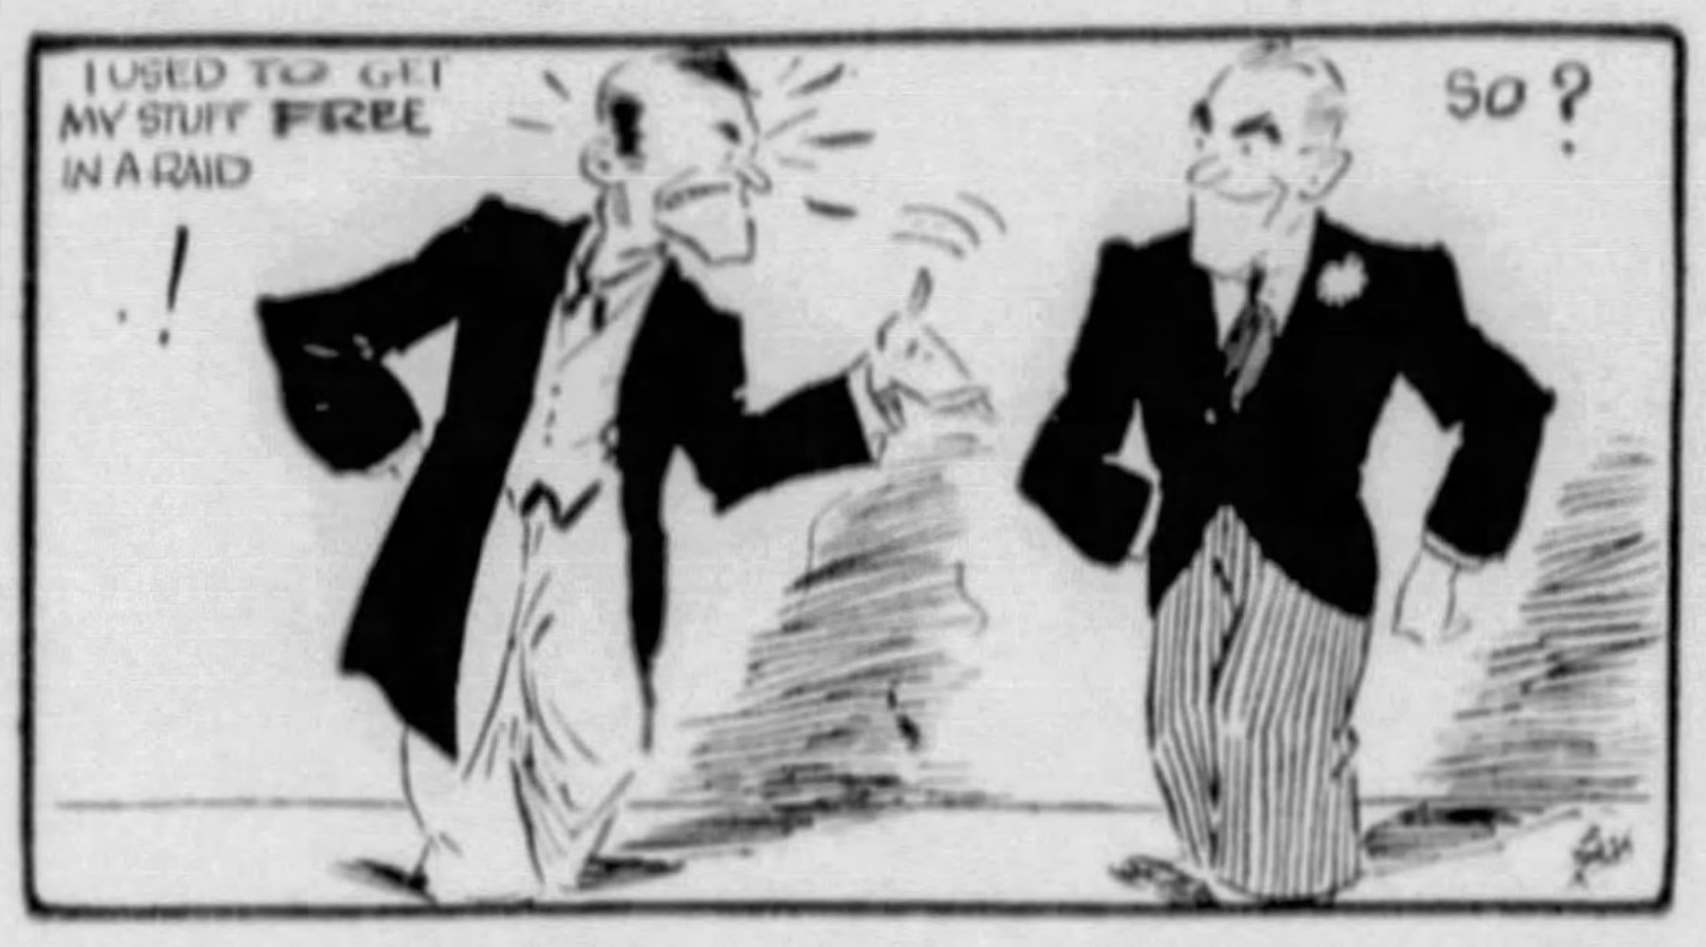
It's against the Constitution, the nation and the flag. Whadda ya shay, boysie, old boysie?

No, no, no. A thousand times no and two yesses.

I still condemn the brew that men put in their stomachs to steal away their brains. How about a little petty larceny?

Forty-two states have voted for this vile stuff. To show that I wash my hands of the entire affair I am selling my home beer recipe to Jake Ruppert.

I protest against spending my good money for liquor. I used to get my stuff free in a raid.



I USED TO GET MY STUFF FREE IN A RAID
SO?

It is going to reduce traveling. A man will be afraid the train will break down in one of those six Republican states.

It's against the will of the people. So was prohibition. Let's try each other's hats on.

Nothing shall be over one-half of 1 per cent. The brewer's big hosses shall never run over me. I have been a temperance lecturer all my life. I got my red nose from wearing tight shoes.

Say, does the Star Spangled Banner still wave o'er the foam?

Modification is nullification with spinach. It is an attack of the Constitution. To taste is to become a habitue. A man who orders a dark will also want some light on the subject.

I protest against this outrage. Beer, dancing and laughing is a violation of individual rights. Why fool a hundred million people when everybody knows the stuff makes me bilious?

Make mine the same.

Organized Labor Seeks Insurance Against Idleness

The most tragic aspect of the depression is that its cost falls so heavily on the shoulders of those least able to bear it, namely, the unemployed.

Instability in business—the vast fluctuations in gross volume from the peak of booms to the trough of depressions—constitutes a major social crime of our time.

There are two civilized approaches toward a remedy. They are not mutually exclusive.

One consists of a thoroughgoing effort to impart stability into the economic organization through machinery for intelligent economic planning and co-ordination.

The other is to set up reserves in time of plenty to take care of the needy in periods of adversity.

In private life, prudent men have found that, though they cannot avoid untoward accidents, they can minimize their adverse economic consequences through the principle of insurance.

At its recent convention in Cincinnati, the executive council of the American Federation of Labor, reversing its traditional position, advocated compulsory unemployment insurance. It suggested that management contribute not less than 3 per cent of the payrolls.

Unlike European schemes, which have deteriorated into doles, the state is to make no contribution, according to the American Federation of Labor plan.

Some advocates of the reform believe that the worker, as well as the employer, should make contributions to the fund.

The advantage of making the scheme compulsory is that it stops the vicious practice of putting the socially minded employer at a competitive disadvantage with the employer intent on sweating labor.

Believing that federal legislation may be impeded by constitutional limitations, the labor organization proposes state action, supplemented by federal legislation covering interstate commerce, work in the territories or the District of Columbia and other supplementary federal legislation, such as the proposed Wagner bill which would allow employers substantial income tax credit for such payments as they may make under state laws toward the creation of unemployment reserves.

As the federation points out, "the whole scheme should be so construed as to induce and stimulate so far as possible the regularization and stabilization of employment."

The present depression found employers, workers and the various governments unprepared for the calls which have been made upon them.

The insurance scheme, which is intended to prevent the unemployed from becoming penniless during hard times, would thus tend to prevent business from dropping as low as it has in the present cycle.

The existing economic deadlock constitutes a broad challenge to socially-minded, forward-looking citizens.

Out of the troubled period, it is to be hoped, will emerge practical machinery for mitigating the business swings and shifting the incidence of the unavoidable burdens.

Necessary Sacrifices

Since the Taxpayers Cannot Afford Them, Certain Luxury Services Will Have to Be Foregone.

It is not a pleasant thing to contemplate the discharge of 700 city employes and a cut of 25 per cent in the wages of those remaining. Yet the citizens' committee, headed by W. P. Witherow, which has recommended these things, has done the community a service in thus boldly recognizing that sacrifices will have to be made if the taxpayers are to be relieved of an intolerable burden.

The committee, appointed to find new sources of revenue, has earned the citizens' gratitude by telling Council that it is its duty to cut expenses. It is reassuring to learn from President John S. Herron that the recommendations in large part will be followed.

It must be admitted that the $5,000,000 slash in the budget will require the elimination of various municipal services. Valuable as they are, we believe them to be mostly luxury services. They will be missed, but they cannot be afforded.

The city must make the same sacrifices that the taxpayers have had to make individually.

Returning to the Farm

Enrollment Gains in the Country Schools Show a Drift from the Cities to the Rural Regions.

Rural schools with less than 11 pupils are permitted to remain open only upon evidence that the district is unable to provide other facilities. The permits are granted by the State Council of Education.

In the 1929-30 school year 468 of such small rural schools in Pennsylvania applied for permits. The number that applied in the current year was 231.

The great decrease in the number of these small schools is due to gains in enrollment. There is a heavy drift of population from the urban to the rural regions. "City folks," it is reported to Gov. Gifford Pinchot, "are going home to the old folks."

This drift to the country is not to be regretted. There will be benefits for both the urban and rural regions of the state in a more even distribution of the population.

A Humanitarian Invention

It Solves a Great Problem.

Some humane—or merely lazy—inventor has contrived a gadget which shuts your window for you in the early morning.

It fastens to the window sill and is run by a clock.

You set the clock at a half hour before your rising time.

It starts the machinery running, and your window is lowered gently.

Your slumbers are undisturbed and your room warm and comfortable when you finally climb out of bed.

Like all epoch-making discoveries, this one is simple. The only odd thing about it is that nobody ever thought of it before. But in the opinion of many millions of our citizenry whose teeth have chattered at reveille during the winter months, it is the greatest gift to suffering humanity that has been made since the birth of the safety razor.

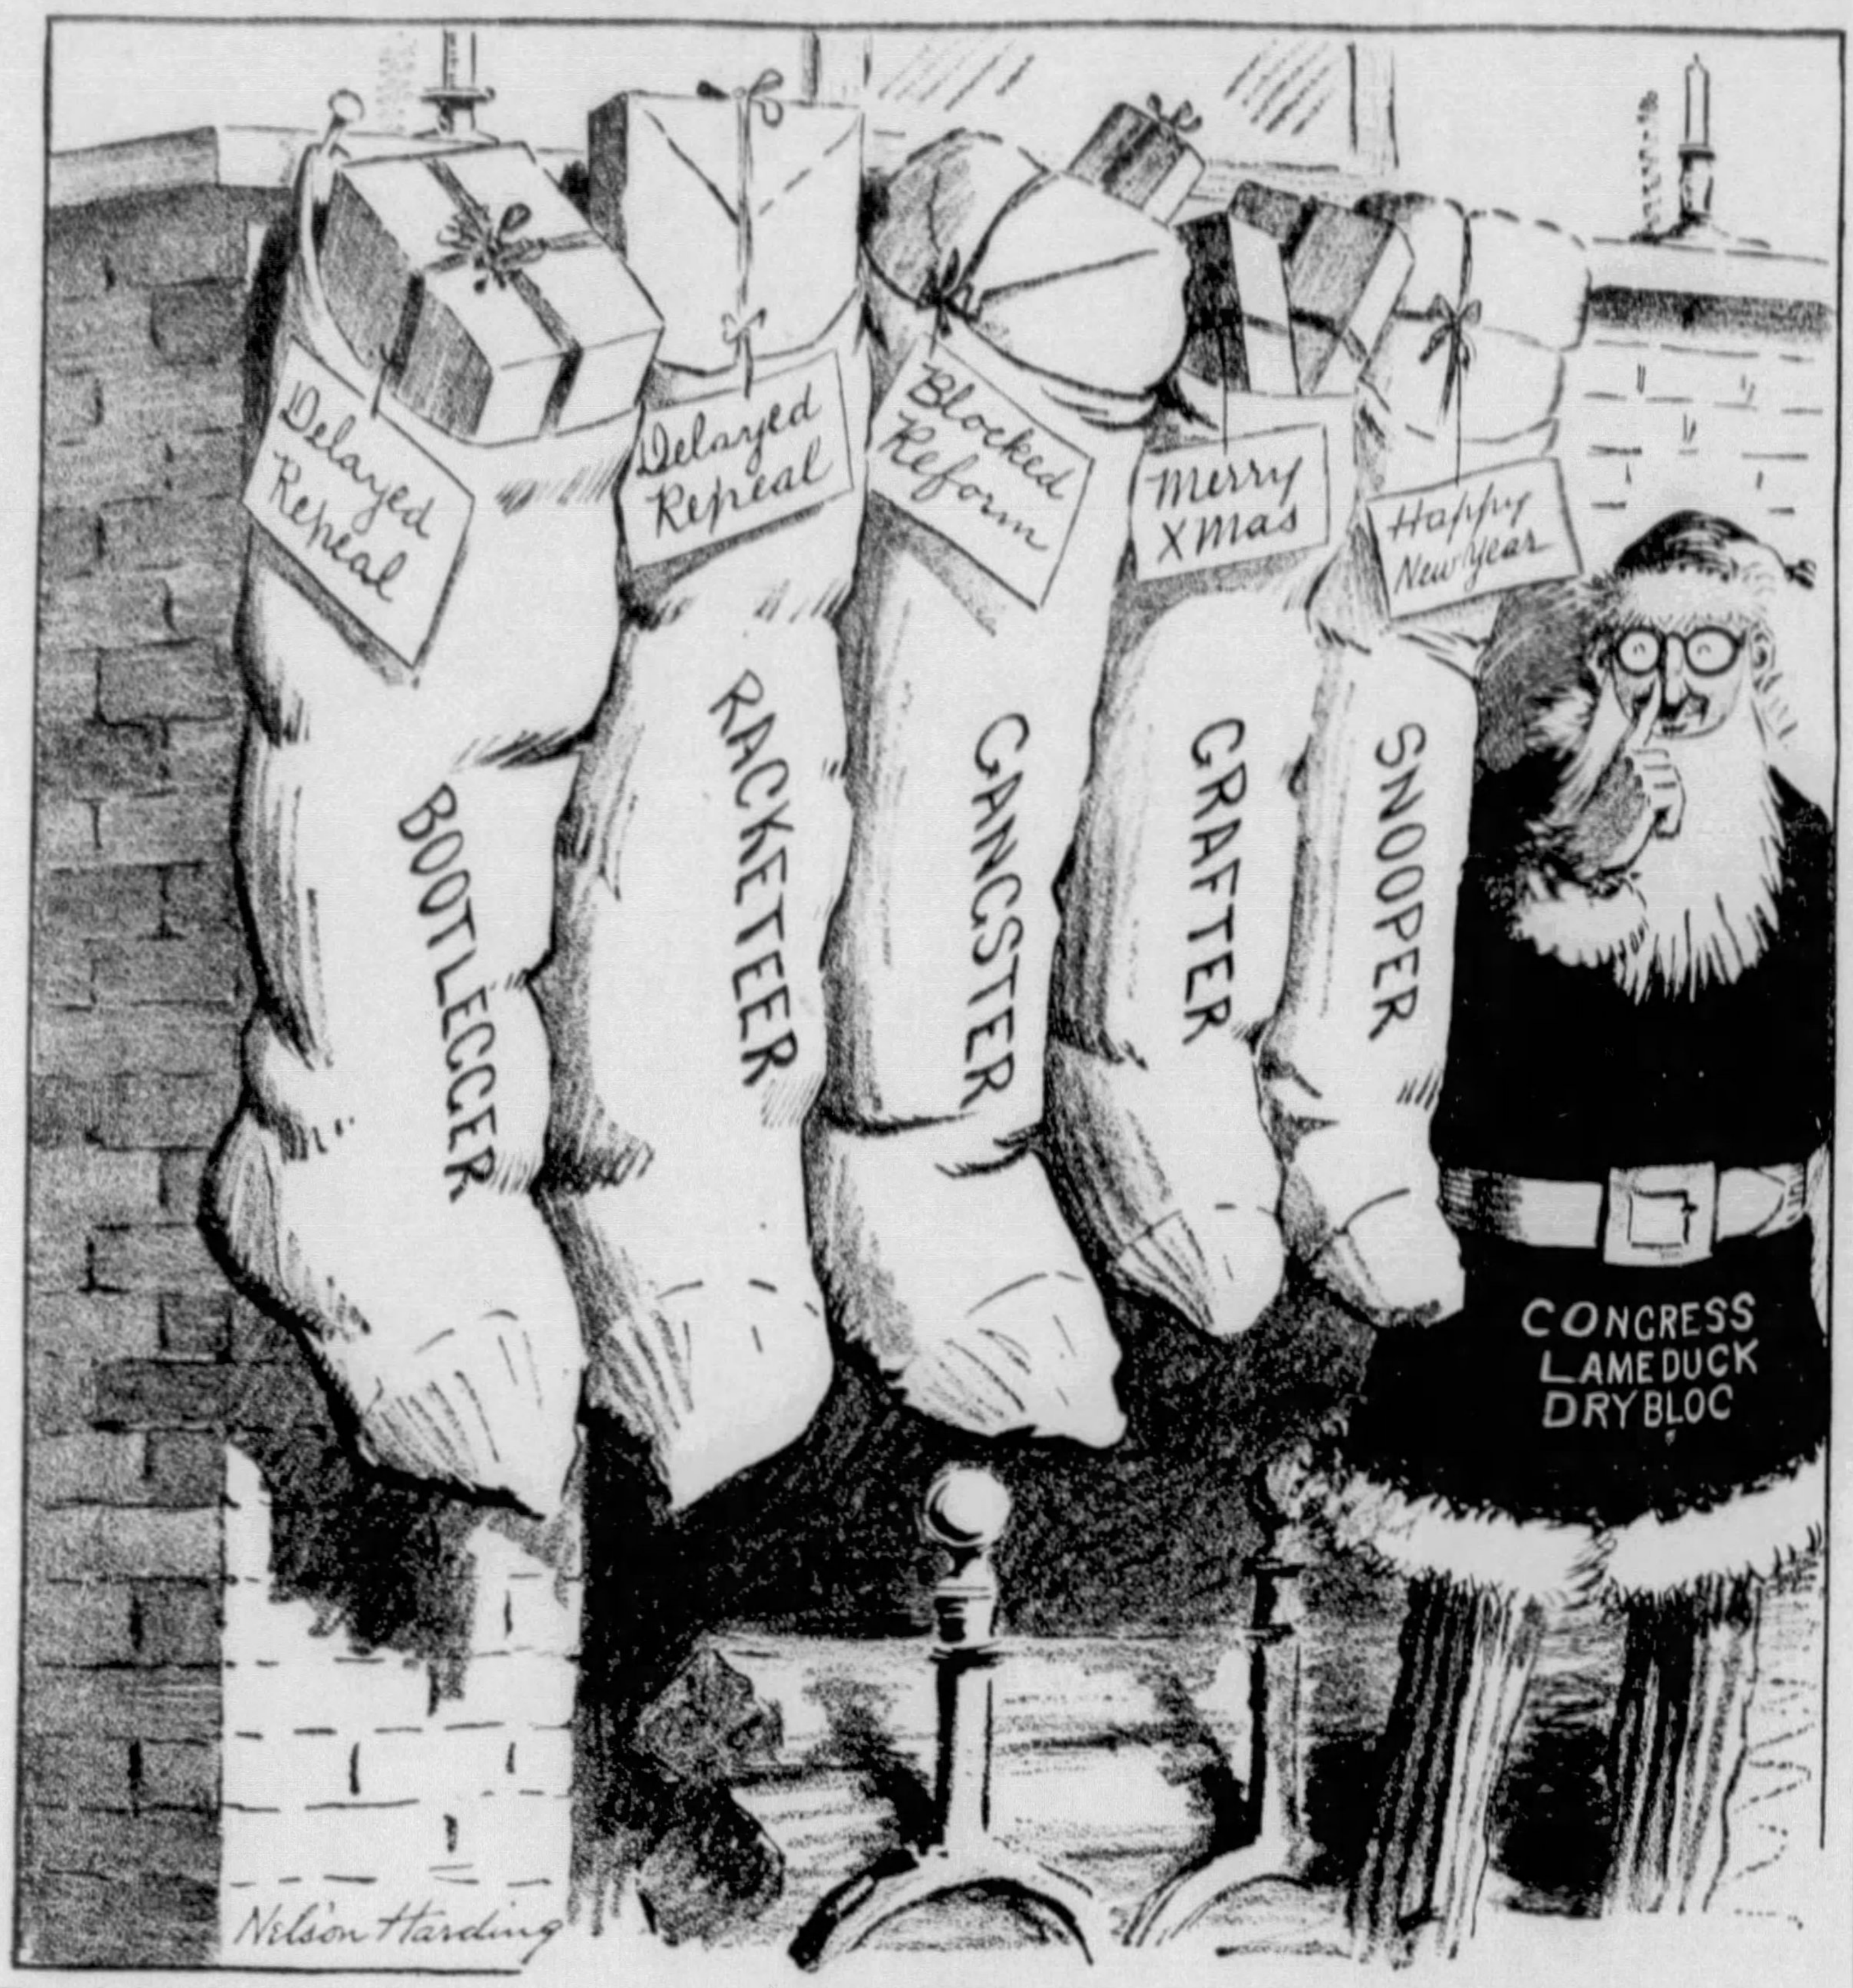
THAT simplified one of mankind's most vexing problems, if it did not eliminate it.

THIS robs the ordeal of getting out from under the blankets of half its horror.

It seems the next best thing to not getting up at all.

There Is a Santa Claus! -:- -:-

By Nelson Harding



"There isn't a Santa" the skeptic insists,
But some folks have reason to think one exists,
For these very fortunate persons have found
The gifts that prove Santa Claus still sticks around.

Their stockings were hung on the chimney with care
And show by their contents that Santa is there!
At least for this Christmas he brings them good cheer
For there's not a chance that he'll come back next year.

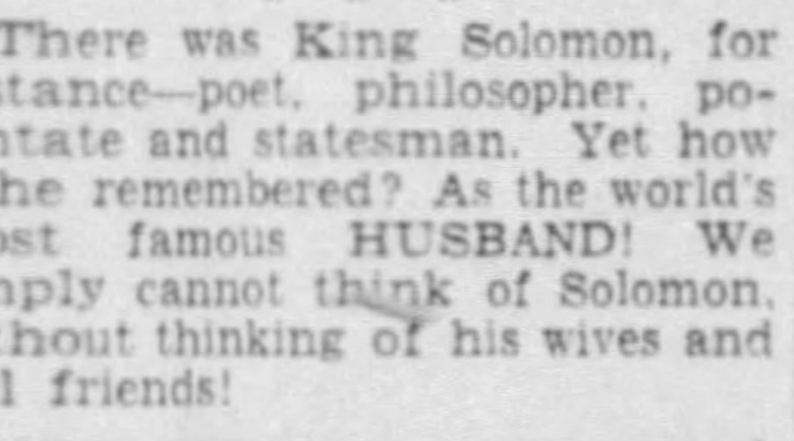
Debunking Famous Lovers

Now that all the great heroes and statesmen of history have been "debunked," it's time to turn to the world's Great Lovers. Because, while many men have been admired and revered for their statesmanship or their genius, most of them are remembered chiefly for their love-affairs.

* * *

There was King Solomon, for instance—poet, philosopher, potentate and statesman. Yet how is he remembered? As the world's most famous HUSBAND! We simply cannot think of Solomon, without thinking of his wives and girl friends!

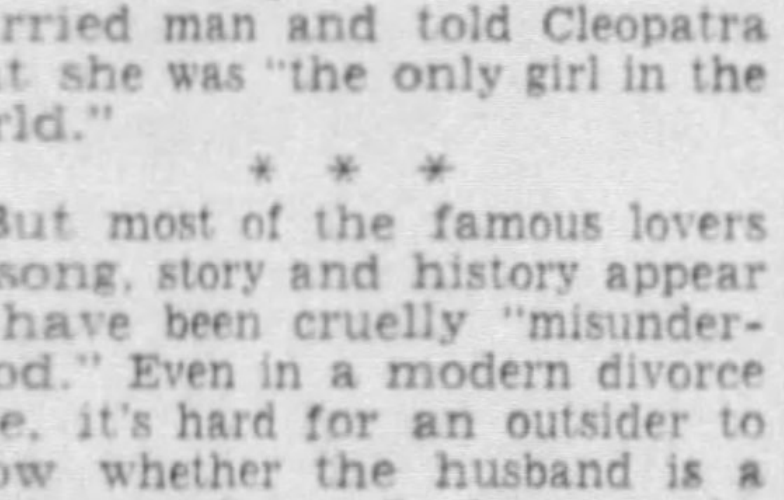


DID YOU SAY SOLOMON WAS A POET, PHILOSOPHER ETC ?
SURE !

And there was Marc Antony. If it had not been for Shakespeare, few of us would remember his conquests, his feats as a politician or his genius as an orator. All we ever seem to recall is that little summer vacation he took in Egypt, when he forgot that he was a married man and told Cleopatra that she was "the only girl in the world."

* * *

But most of the famous lovers of song, story and history appear to have been cruelly "misunderstood." Even in a modern divorce case, it's hard for an outsider to know whether the husband is a villain or a hero. So how can the public or the historian know just what was in a long-dead man's mind or what provocations he had.



I'M LIKE DON JUAN - 'A COLLECTOR' !

Bluebeard may have been only a long-suffering, misunderstood husband. One who was determined to have a WHOLE closet to himself, where he could find his Sunday shoes without having to wade through an ocean of georgette crepe, and be sure that his fishing clothes were safe.

* * *

Lochinvar got to the wedding on TIME; but it was not his OWN wedding. If it had been, he might still be telephoning from some roadhouse that he was tied up with motor trouble.

* * *

No doubt Omar Khayyam clung faithfully to the loaf of bread and the jug of wine, of which he sings so tenderly. But, if we could know the whole story we should probably discover that he changed the "Thou," occasionally.

* * *

As for Don Juan, he may have been merely an experimenter, with the "collector's complex." Some men collect ivories, some collect pictures, some collect books—and some collect hearts and women, after dinner stories and alibis.

* * *

Most Great Lovers have been "MISUNDERSTOOD!"

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, Dec. 15.—A sudden flare in the night clubs' dead sky marked the opening of Montparnasse, another mansion of gold and marble in the Fifties, flaunting a new hustle of grandeur in the decadence. Just when the death knell is sounded for such places, some intrepid impresario bewilders the populace.

There is no denying, too, that despite economic ills, the glorified rum foundries fill with jousters of the flagon. Most of them are east of Broadway in the Fifties and admission is quite casual. Indeed, doormen, plumed like parrots, look suspiciously on "membership cards." Only raccoon coats are poison.

In the majority, the overflunkied down-stairs rooms are set for visiting lodgemen. Serious drinkers collect at a secret bar upstairs, where ladies redolent of chypre and oily young men in tight collars give the real "New Yorkish" flavor. Mickey Finns are a cunning stratagem for the too brash.

The average speak has a trio of bartenders, but one in East Fifty-eighth has nine, from six until daylight. A muted orchestra and a dickydacky duo with a circumambulating midget piano entertain. The strain in such cloisters is for the informality of the Paris bistro.

The bars are horseshoe shaped, with revolving, cushioned, backbraced stools on the outer rim. The idea is always to have a drink before you. Beer is around 50 cents a scoop and hard-stuff six bits a copy. Everybody seems riding the moment to a frazzle.

* * *

Peggy Joyce is now established in a four-storied private house with a sky-blue narrow front in East Sixty-third. It is the orchidaceous lady's first adventure in housekeeping on this side of the Atlantic, although she maintains a chateau overlooking the Bay of Mentone. For years she drifted from one Manhattan hotel to another. To protect her jewels, every window is barred, every door triple-locked, and the house is a jungle of burglar alarms. Judge Samuel Seabury is a neighbor.

* * *

J. P. Morgan, lumbering after news photographers in a scowling cloud of rage, made himself a bit laughable at a recent ship docking. The lens lads are ruthless, but they cannot match the brashness of international bankers the past 10 years.

Fatty Arbuckle has been seen at various Saturday theatrical dances this winter. Time's frost leaves the inevitable wither. And an expression of melancholy. His friends—and they are many—believe his fate in the studios a perpetual Calvary. Al St. John, his nephew, once told me that months after Arbuckle's trouble he sat night after night in his auto in the garage—shifting gears. And staring!

* * *

It would seem that Arbuckle desires most to look at life from the side lines, and be left alone. Several times I tried to speak, being an acquaintance of many years, but there was always a studied avoidance. One night recently I ran plump into him in a cafe, extended my hand and revealed my identity. Graciously he replied: "Telling me your name is something like Lindbergh in Paris." There was an awkward pause and I asked how things were. "I'm getting along all right," he replied, but added a dubious: "I suppose." It was fraught with a thin tinge of defeat, the gesture that grips the throat in faint clutch.

* * *

A fairly long ago vaudeville favorite was Ethel McDonough, tympanist, who rat-tat-tatted a merry romp over major circuits. A man who expertly wields snare drum sticks is one of the heroes of life, but when it's a lady, I become a worshipping slave. I lost track of Miss McDonough, but in Fifty-eighth street the other day I saw a military shop bearing her name. I peeked in and there she was. And she might like to know, I'm the old fool who lifted his hat reddened to the ears, and stumbled away. Nor will she know how nearly I came to blowing a kiss.

* * *

Miss McDonough's captivation was during gallery-perching days when the popular tune was "I Guess I'll Have to Telegraph My Baby." It, by the way, was the first gigolo song with "she'll send me ten or twenty maybe." Flo Adler, too, was a secret love of that era and Richard Carle, to this paw-paw picker, was the funniest man in the world.

* * *

This story persists. A private mansion dinner, six men, six women. Much bubble water. And afterward, the host gave each guest a new bathing suit he professed to have patented. All dressed and plunged. The bathing suits evaporated in water. Boo!

LISTEN, WORLD

By Elsie Robinson

Suppose a Judge ordered two people of entirely different tastes and temperatments to be haled into court, and proceeded to say:

"You two people must be bound to each other for life. Yes, I know that you hate each other, that you will be unable to spend a day together without furious quarreling. And undoubtedly your quarreling will destroy your individual efficiency and become a public nuisance. But that makes no difference. It suits my notions of propriety that you should be tied to each other; so, tied you are!"

Horrid idea, isn't it? Impossible that such a thing should happen in a civilized country! And yet such things are happening every day in this country, with your and my full consent and approval.

Unwilling women are sentenced to be bound for life to men whom they detest. Furious men are doomed to spend their days with women whom they despise. All because they once, in an ill-judged moment, thought they loved each other and took a chance at marriage.

"Oh, if they're married, that's different," you say.

But is it different? Is hate with a wedding ring any different that hate without a wedding ring? Isn't a spoiled life as much a tragedy and a social menace if it is backed by a marriage license as if it isn't?

Consider, for example, the case of Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Pasch, of St. Johns, Mich. For 10 years Mr. Pasch has wished to be divorced from Mrs. Pasch. For 10 years Mrs. Pasch has fought that desire and the court has backed her.

For over five years they have lived apart and have been constantly engaged in litigation. Their quarrel has swept from one state to another, and has involved countless innocent bystanders. And now, for the fifth time, Mr. Pasch has failed in his efforts to be free.

Now I am not acquainted with either Mr. or Mrs. Pasch. They may, for all I know, be most admirable individuals. But do you think that a 10-year vicious row is admirable?

Do you think that any person, male or female, whatever his or her character, should be denied release from a hateful marriage, refused the chance to make a new start in life?

Do you think that 10 years of such public hate protects the sanctity of marriage? Or serves public welfare?

Over in Russia they don't believe it does. They believe that hate, which destroys individual happiness and efficiency, is as great a private and public catastrophe as smallpox or bubonic plague. Also, they believe that any form of slavery is abominable and a disgrace to the nation in which it exists. And they consider unwilling marriage the most degrading form of slavery. Accordingly, in Russia any man or any woman who wishes to be freed from an unhappy alliance is given divorce without opposition, even though they should resist the action.

This seems very shocking to most Americans, who consider Russians little better than savages.

And many quote religion as a defense for this attitude. But no religion forbids legal separation. Only remarriage is forbidden, and that is a matter for each individual's conscience.

So, putting prejudice aside, which is the more civilized attitude?

To allow those who cannot live together in harmony to go their separate ways, with the chance of a new start in life if they so desire?

Or to bind them together in lifelong bondage, which will serve to perpetuate their hate and wreck their joy and ambition?

Teachers; Reading's Reminder; Pertinax

By Claude G. Bowers

Author of "The Struggle for Democracy in America," "Founders of the Republic," "Jefferson and Democracy," "The Tragic Era" and other important works, now writing for the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

In these days of deficits and an acknowledged necessity for reducing the cost of government, there is a disposition in some quarters, everywhere, to save through the sacrificing of the schools and at the expense of the teachers—the most valuable public servants in America today.

What must be, must be—but it is time for some one to suggest that the last place to sacrifice is in the schools. Neither the clamor of the thoughtless nor the plans of the politicians or bankers must be permitted to lower the standard of the public educational institutions that are always in the front line trenches battling for the preservation of our democracy. The schools of New York City must remain where they are today—the salaries under legislative control.

If the teachers of New York City and other cities are to be reduced in salary, it is too bad. They are not getting more than they earn. They are not being paid proportionately with any other branch of the public service. And they, with their salaries, have performed miracles of generosity in preventing suffering, hunger and exposure among the children of the unfortunate throughout this dreadful crisis of human misery.

And that is something to think about!

* * *

Teachers Give to Poor Children

These, teachers, out of their salaries, that even now do not measure the value of their services, have contributed freely and proudly almost $2,000,000 to keep the children of the unemployed in wholesome food and in warm clothing. The hungry child has been fed; the child with worn-out shoes has been provided, and not by any emergency committee, but by the teachers.

These teachers have done more than the bankers.

To the extent that salaries are reduced, this relief fund, one of the most sacred, is necessarily cut.

Of course, we can save money by discounting all the relief work imposed by common humanity on the nation, the state, municipalities—but we can't save our institutions that way, and we cannot recommend to the millions, denied their right to work, our system of society, in that way.

* * *

But Someone Taught These Great Men

Just now, when so many are approaching the problem of the teachers in flippant mood, we would comment this story:

One day a number of people appeared before St. Peter asking admission to paradise, and each was asked what he had done on earth to deserve reward.

"I was a great general," said one. "I conquered vast territories for my country and was rewarded with an estate and a mansion."

"I was a great statesman," said another. "I was responsible for writing into the statutes many humanitarian laws, and laws that made for order and stability."

"I was a great physician," said the third. "Through my researches and experiments, I found ways to alleviate human suffering."

"I was a great financier," said the fourth. "I managed a bank so cautiously and honestly that no one ever lost a penny through any act of mine, and I loaned to merchants with adequate security and kept the current of business flowing."

"And what have you done?" asked St. Peter, looking at the fifth man, who modestly and, in evident embarrassment, kept in the background.

"I was not an important person like these others," he said stumblingly. "I did not do great things. I was merely a teacher—and the general, the statesman, the financier and the physician were my pupils."

"Then," said St. Peter, "you were the most valuable servant of society of them all. You go in—and sit at the head of the table."

Demands England Stand by France

We are hearing much in the press about the "hot heads" on the foreign debt question. The Marquis of Reading has just warned an English audience against "hot head" expressions among the English. He reminds it that America is in a very serious economic condition with many dangerous problems of its own. He also tells it that he found, in America, a general sympathy with England's plight, and a common acknowlment that she did not get terms so good as those given other debtor nations. He suggests that this feeling can be greatly modified by harsh denunciation of America merely because she can see no sense or justice in taking upon herself all the debts of the world.

The "hot heads" we are hearing from now are in France—which has not yet paid one penny on her debt through the taxation by one penny of her people. Pertinax is a journalist and an intense nationalist. He thinks it intolerable that France should pay on her debt anything she does not get from Germany; and, like all the rest, he conveniently forgets the vast empires in land, teeming with wealth, that France and the others got—when we got not one inch. The Foreign Legion in America likewise find it disgusting to mention this little detail.

But Pertinax sets forth his plan in its relation to England. He demands from Ramsay MacDonald—

"A formal promise that the British government is determined not to pay the next installment (June 15), and that it in the meanwhile will not accept any readjustment in its debt which is not accompanied by a similar readjustment for France."

If that is what England wants, then England wants an understanding with France more than one with the United States.

American Farmers Ask Same Question

Speaking at a dinner of the Chemist Club in New York, Lammot du Pont, who is credited with business common sense, said last week:

"I can't see the difference between an individual and a national debt. If the national debts are not paid, creditor nations will be hurt, but the debtor nations will be hurt worse.

"The debtors who do not pay cannot expect to borrow again from anybody who hears that they failed to pay."

The Marquis of Reading, commenting on the difficulty of paying in goods, says that it requires so much more goods, representing so much more labor, to pay a debt now than it did when the debt was contracted. That is true. We have heard much to the same effect in this country from the farmers and home owners who borrowed money to buy a house some years ago. The farmer who borrowed money and put a mortgage on his farm, five years ago, must now produce many times more of wheat and cotton to pay his debt.

When we start in to reduce these national debts of other nations to meet this situation the farmers, whose farms are being taken from them on mortgages, will be apt to remind Congress of the fact.

* * *

Talk of New War; Don't Pay for Last

One interesting observation in Reading's speech: He tells us that there are "disturbing factors" in the world today with "much unquiet whispers and murmurs and faint suggestions of possible wars."

Does that explain why it is considered so destructive to reduce the enormous appropriations for war purposes in the debtor nations—enough to get the money to make the debt payments?

And here is another thought that goes to the determination of the intelligence of the nation's rulers: If these nations cannot even pay what they owe on the last war, isn't it sheer insanity to be planning a new war?

Reading hopes, however, that the "peace-loving English-speaking nations" unitedly can preserve peace. Will England be doing her part by insisting that the sword-rattling nations that do not want to pay their debts shall be forgiven the debts, so the money saved can be added to the war budgets?

Outdoor Lights Add to Christmas Beauty

Holiday Joys Enhanced by Illumination

Passers-by Cheered By Displays On Lawns, Homes

Make the outdoors bright with Christmas light! Ever since the Star of Bethlehem lighted the eastern skies on the eve of Christ's birth, Christmas has been a season of brightness and light. In days not far past holiday trees were illuminated with candles. Their lovely flicker held a menace of fear that the tree branches or hangings might catch fire.

Electric lights for Christmas trees were greeted with joy by parents and children alike. Steadier their glow and safer. More durable, too, than candles, they could be packed away with the Christmas trimmings to be used from year to year, or brought forth as illuminated decorations for other holiday seasons.

A few years ago their use became extended to the outdoors. It seemed selfish, some folks thought, to keep so much of brightness and beauty within the house. Why not share some of it with lonely passersby? Why not have an outward manifestation of the joy of the Christmas spirit within? Many homes with evergreens in yard and terrace lent themselves ideally to this arrangement.

In a short time it became a matter of civic pride to see who could have the loveliest outdoor Christmas illumination in the neighborhood. Many mothers welcomed the new idea for a number of reasons. Sometimes the setting up of a Christmas tree indoors entails a great deal of extra work, moving furniture to make room, and cleaning up afterwards when the drying pine needles become scattered throughout the house. Some families have both an indoor and an outdoor tree illuminated. Others have transferred it entirely out of doors, where children may not only view it in plain sight from the windows, but share it with all those who pass by.

There is nothing nicer during the Christmas season than to drive down street after street and partake of the joyful vision of brightness in front of each home. The gayly-colored lights are reflected on the soft snow. Homes look like illuminated Christmas cards against a dark background of sky.

Protect Food To Aid Health

The preservation of food is one of the most vital points to be considered in maintaining the health of the family. For this reason the electric refrigerator is a very important unit in household equipment.

Milk, kept in a refrigerator that is inadequate for proper food preservation may become laden with deadly germs. Vegetables, while not wholly injurious, may lose their all-important vitamines. Meats may indeed become unfit for use long before either odor or taste warns us of the danger.

In efficient home-making, kitchen grouping, to save steps, is a very vital consideration, and the most important unit in the group is the refrigerator or storage center. The home-maker should make sure it is capable of providing the food protection health demands.

A HOME AGLOW WITH THE CHRISTMAS SPIRIT

A SUGGESTION FOR CHRISTMAS WEEK . . . OUTDOOR DECORATION BECOMING A CUSTOM

Two Little Green Trees

Two little green trees stood on a hill,
Their tears running down like a silvery rill;
"We're no good to any one, way, way up here;
Not a soul to make happy, and no one to cheer."
Just here came two woodsmen with ropes and an ax,
Cut them down and then carried them off on their backs.
They bore them both down to the valley below,
Setting one in a house and one out in the snow.
Now the fairy queen had a great secret to tell
The mother who lived here, and whom she knew well;
And that night, on the softest of tip-toeing foot,
They met where the two little trees had been put;
The queen gave her troop of electrical elves
Their orders, and quickly they scattered themselves:
First they clicked their red heels, and their peaked caps doffed,
Then on fluttering wings they flew up aloft,
And soon on each bough of the two little trees,
A bright little fay was reclining at ease;
And the moment they saw the queen's wand uplift,
A light streamed forth gayly from each tiny fist;
Green, orange, and crimson, blue, purple and rose,
Till in armor of jewels each little tree glows;
And inside and outside, night turns into day,
As the rainbow tints glitter from every spray.
And twice from her crown did the queen pluck a star
To stand for the Christ Child, whose children we are;
And these the two trees held as high as they could,
Exulting, "At last we are doing some good!"
And the very next day, every lassie and lad
Pronounced them the best trees they ever had had!

Cooking Economy In Menu Selection

Economy in electric range cookery lies in selecting dishes that can be cooked at the same temperature in the same time. For instance, stuffed pork chops and baked potatoes, or meat loaf and potatoes au gratin.

Useful Gifts RuleShopping This Yuletide

Electric Appliances Popular in New Buying Trend

What do you want for Christmas? Down through the ages men and women have pondered this question from the time December dawns on the calendar, until the last package is wrapped and tied with a sigh of relief.

There is a marked trend apparent this year toward family gifts. Gifts that outlive the Christmas season. Gifts not selfishly intended so much for the individual as for the year-around convenience of the whole family. At the head of the list of family gifts are the radio and the electric refrigerator. The radio needs no elucidation.

THE ELECTRIC LEAGUE OF PITTSBURGH

Late Years Speed Electrical Development

Rapid Strides In Power Use Made Recently

Ancient Discovery Becomes Source of Modern Comfort

Few sciences can claim as great an antiquity as that of electricity. More than 500 years before Christ, Thales of Miletus is credited with the knowledge that amber, after being rubbed, acquired the property of attracting light bodies. Several hundred years later Theophrastus, in a treatise on "Gems," mentions the fact that this power is not peculiar to amber.

No definite scientific information was gained, however, until the close of the sixteenth century. In 1600 William Gilbert used for the first time the term "electric force" and "electric attraction," and distinguished between "electrics" and "non-electrics" in his great work, "De Magnete."

NEW FORCE STUDIED

During the eighteenth century, electric phenomena were studied extensively. Means of producing electric currents were discovered. Du Fay in France and Kinnersley in Philadelphia differentiated between positive and negative electricity. The Leyden jar was accidently discovered in 1745, about the time Benjamin Franklin was making his historic experiment with kite and key. Soon after this, lightening rods, suggested by Franklin, became popular in America and Europe.

The progress of the science of electricity during the nineteenth century was rapid and astounding. In 1876 Paul Jablochkov, a Russian officer, invented an electric candle, consisting of two rods of carbon placed side by side and separated by insulating material. Two years later C. F. Brush, in the United States, produced another efficient form of dynamo and electric arc lamp suitable for working in series, and these inventions inaugurated commercial arc lighting.

Thomas A. Edison in 1879 constructed a successful lamp, consisting of a vessel wholly of glass, containing a carbon filament. By 1900 electricity had practically superseded all other kinds of power.

TELEPHONE INVENTED

By 1879 telephone exchanges began to be developed in the United States, Great Britain and other countries. Electric traction advanced rapidly. About the time the horse car and the candle began to be supplanted by encroaching electrical servants, our more imaginative grandmothers began to envision a magic millennium when the giant, "electricity," might be harnessed to do her slightest bidding. And whatsoever woman has wished for down through the ages, man has sought to invent.

If I could only press a button ...and hear music, cook my food, wash my laundry...woman would say, as she sank wearily into a chair after a hard day of endless tasks. It all seemed so improbable in those days. But now nearly all of her visions have come true.

Electricity, more than any other single factor, has liberated womankind from household slavery. It has given her leisure for education, culture, recreation and development. It has freed her for business and professional careers. It has permitted her to penetrate into the world of men, on an equal basis. It has yielded her comfort and convenience for herself and her family. It has kept her health from breaking under household drudgery, and has lengthened her span of life. Electricity is man's greatest servant.

Home Motors Need Light Oil

It is important that a motor be properly lubricated. Bearings that fit very tightly should be oiled with a very light grade of cylinder oil. Do not force oil with large particles between the bearings. As the bearings wear, a heavier oil may be used. Do not use sewing machine oil for an electric motor as the heat of the motor may cause it to decompose and the gummy residue makes it difficult for the motor to turn.

Ball bearings should be packed in a grease especially for this purpose. All ball bearings are properly packed when they come from the manufacturer. This packing will usually last from one to three years, depending upon the amount of use which the appliance is given. Most household motors having ball bearings are so made that it is necessary to have them repacked by a service man.

Busy Hostess Finds Aid in Quick Service

Foods Kept Ready For Instant Use By Refrigerator

The electric refrigerator has proved a boon to the busy hostess, who, due to the stress of time, occasioned by many activities, often finds it necessary to prepare a luncheon on short notice.

The scientific refrigeration method has opened to her many possibilities in the art of sandwich making. She has but to prepare many of the fillings popular with her family and friends and to keep them in covered jars in her refrigerator.

Here are some suggestions for sandwich fillings that may be prepared and placed in the refrigerator ready for use on a moment's notice when the guests arrive:

Grated carrot mixed with enough mayonnaise dressing to moisten

Chopped celery and Roquefort cheese. (Mix finely chopped celery with mashed cheese and enough cream or mayonnaise dressing to moisten. Add a few drops Worcestershire sauce.)

Snappy cheese and pimiento. (Mash cheese with fork or press through sieve; mix with chopped pimiento and milk or cream to moisten.)

Cream cheese, chopped olives and mayonnaise.

Baked beans and chili sauce. (Mash beans and moisten with chili sauce. Add chopped pickle if desired.)

Chopped turkey, ham and pickle relish mixed with mayonnaise dressing to moisten.

Chopped corn beef, celery and watercress mixed with Russian dressing to moisten

Chopped ham, hard-cooked egg and pickle relish mixed with cooked or mayonnaise dressing.

Chopped bacon and hard-cooked mixed egg with cooked mayonnaise dressing.

Hard-cooked egg, tuna fish, pickle relish (Mix with cooked or mayonnaise dressing to moisten).

Beef, veal or ham loaf with Russian dressing.

Peanut butter and chopped ginger, mixed with mayonnaise.

Peanut butter and chopped dates, mixed with mayonnaise.

Shrimp, pineapple, celery and mayonnaise. (Chop shrimp and celery, mix with shredded pineapple and mayonnaise to moisten).

Anchovy butter—butter which has been softened and mixed with anchovy paste to taste.

Watercress butter—finely chopped watercress blended with softened butter.

Chicken giblets and hard-cooked egg. (Chop giblets and egg and mix with mayonnaise dressing to moisten).

Tongue, chopped cabbage, pickle and mayonnaise. (Mix finely chopped tongue, chopped cabbage, and chopped pickle or pickle relish with enough mayonnaise or Russian dressing to moisten).

Chopped egg, sardine and mayonnaise dressing.

Liver, bacon and hard-cooked eggs. (Cooked liver put through food chopper and mixed with finely chopped crisp bacon and chopped hard-cooked egg. Mix with mayonnaise or cooked salad dressing.

WHIPPING CREAM

One of the mistakes most commonly made in the preparation of frozen mixtures is that the cream is too stiffly whipped This results in a grainy frozen dish with an unpleasant fatty, buttery taste. Use a 30 per cent cream for whipping, and whip only until it will hold its shape, not until it will pile up stiffly on a spoon. If the whipping is stopped when the cream is thick enough to hold its shape, but still thin enough to pour from the bowl, the finished product will be smooth and creamy in texture.

Many Outlets Necessary for Use in Home

Connections for All Appliances Should Be Provided

One part of a wiring system comes within the power of every woman to determine. This is the number of circuits in the house, and the number of outlets (lighting or service) apportioned to each room. Electric current must be given lamps to light, motors to run, ranges and grills and toasters to heat. Besides having abundant wires through which to flow, there must be plenty of places where those wires are tapped so lamps and appliances can be attached. These places are called "outlets" because they let the current "out" from the circuit.

It should be seen that there are abundant outlets, so there will be light when and where it is wanted, and so that lamps may be connected in many different places, appliances attached sensibly, without ugly unworkmanship - like cords stringing from lighting fixtures.

Advantages Of Electrical Cleaning

Mechanical Devices Prevent Wear On Furnishings

The advantages of electric cleaning over hand cleaning are as follows:

Saving in time—Light dust, surface dirt and litter are picked up instantly.

Saving in results—Where the sweeping of a rug with a broom every day for a year would leave it at the end of the period heavy and unclean, with a mass of soil that had sunk into its pile, the cleaning of that rug once or twice a week for the same period with an electric cleaner would leave it clean, free from an imbedded dirt, practically dustless. This same difference applies to all fabrics, hangings and upholstery.

Milk Should Go On Coldest Shelf

Although all parts of an electric refrigerator are cold, some foods last longer where temperature is lowest. On the coldest shelf should be placed food of the most delicate character, such as cream, milk, butter, broth, cooked food and desserts.

As a fireside treasure, it knows no peer in keeping the average American family home nights.

The latest available figures on radio sets in the United States show an increase of 200 per cent in ownership over 1926. It is estimated that there are 15,000,000 sets in this country. In 1926 there were about 5,000,000 sets in use; 6,500,000 in 1927; 7,500,000 in 1928; 9,000,000 in 1929 and 11,000,000 in 1930.

The electric refrigerator has such a widely diversified range of uses that the average housewife is years in exhausting all its possibilities in the pursuit of new and unusual menus. Primarily, of course, its value lies in the healthful and economical preservation of foods. Never before has it been so profitable to buy foodstuffs in large quantities at bulk prices.

REFRIGERATORS POPULAR

Probably the most desired of all electrical gifts and without doubt the most useful, the automatic refrigerator is generally conceded to be the ideal family gift, rendering continuous service, winter and summer, through scientific protection of foods and in the concoction of countless frozen delicacies.

Next to the refrigerator, the most popular culinary gift this year seems to be the electric mixer. Handier than a dozen hands, this versatile equipment performs the work of beating, whipping, mixing and grinding so tedious, bothersome and wearisome to every housewife. It works hand in hand with the refrigerator in whipping up frozen desserts in a jiffy. It is a boon to the breakfast table, in hurriedly extracting the juice from oranges and beating up ready-to-mix flours for pan cakes, waffles or muffins.

The table grill is another popular electrical gift suggestion. With this capable appliance an entire breakfast, or after-the-theater supper may be cooked. Many weary steps are saved for mother, when eggs, toast and bacon can be prepared at table. Table grills are also good "roommates" for the boy or girl away at school.

Electric toasters are all automatic this year. No more burning or scraping of the great American breakfast staple. One model of a toaster has a dial to set for light, medium or dark toast. A ruby-colored signal light keeps you posted about the toasting. Bread is browned on both sides at once and the current shuts off automatically when the toast is done. Two and three-decker sandwiches may also be toasted on this model.

VARIETY OF GIFTS

Golden brown waffles may be baked in the new table irons, with the same clock-like precision, and eggs boiled right up to the minute desired. Percolators come in great variety this year, the various urn-types for formal usage, the convenient pitcher types for every day, and the attractive vitrified china models, prettily decorated and unbreakable.

Lamps, always delightful gifts, are more beautiful than ever this year. Many are of pottery, with parchment shades. Others have metal, glass and even wooden bases, with both plain and modernistic shades to match.

Dozens of other appliances stand ready to serve on the electrical gift list. Vacuum cleaners, ironers, washing machines, clothes dryers, warming pads, hair curlers, sun lamps, radios, health appliances are all substantial gifts which will outlast this Christmas and many other Christmases.

HAVE YOU THOUGHT OF A MIXER?

ELECTRIC FOOD MIXER . . . IT MASHES, MIXES, BEATS, ETC.

Worn Insulation on Wires Peril to Home Appliances

Each length of appliance cord consists of two wires—being in effect a miniature circuit. This is called a branch circuit. One is the carrying wire, the other the return wire. Current, in its desire always to go back home, will take a short cut every time we give it a chance. If the insulation on these twin wires become worn, so that they can come into contact—the current from the feeder wire jumps into the return wire right there, leaving the appliance at the end of the cord in the lurch.

In forming this "short circuit" the wires develop an easy path for a great deal more current than would normally flow through them. You see—other current, finding that by joining this truant electricity it can also get home "across lots" instead of going through the roundabout paths along which it has been routed, flows from the service wire to the wire leading out to that defective cord, goes on to the spot where this joins its own return wires; then it all goes home together. But this cannot go on happening. In a fraction of a second, the fuse melts and prevents any more current from traveling over the wire.

The careful storing of the appliance cord has much to do with keeping it in excellent working condition. Never roll the cord into a tight ball or crease it.

Chilled Foods Easily Made in Refrigerator

Slightly Different Technique for New Desserts

Many delicious frozen and chilled foods can be prepared in the electric refrigerator. It requires a little different technique and a recipe somewhat modified to make an ice cream dessert as luscious as the old-fashioned smooth, velvety-textured dessert, which cannot be successfully frozen without agitation, or some method of aeration. However, there are dozens of substitute creams which may be frozen in the electric refrigerator which turn out to be delicious.

In addition to the frozen creams, there are literally hundreds of desserts of the jellied, or otherwise thickened variety, which to be really perfect, require a low cooling temperature. These include Bavarian creams, fruit, chocolate, nut and many other varieties; mousses or parfaits of every description, fruit combinations, held together with gelatine or other stiffening agencies; icebox cake in astonishing varieties; combinations of fruits, jellied frappes, sherbets. All of these may be chilled in the electrical refrigerator simply and easily to such a degree of perfection that women are finding new delight in creating them.

Salad combinations jellied or simply chilled, or even partially frozen, add to the great variety made possible by the chilling powers of the electric refrigerator.

SALAD SANDWICH LOAF

1 small loaf sandwich bread.
½ cup butter.
3 cups salad.
Lettuce.
Mayonnaise.

Remove crusts from bread and cut in 4 slices lengthwise. Cream butter and spread 2 slices on both sides; top and bottom slice on 1 side only. On bottom slice, buttered side up, arrange layer of lettuce and salad. Cover with slice buttered on both sides. Arrange another salad layer.

Repeat and put on top slice, buttered side down. Press under light weight.

Spread surface with mayonnaise or cream cheese, mashed and moistened with cream or salad dressing. Garnish as desired. Cut in 1-inch slices for serving.

One salad may be used for all layers, or a combination, such as vegetable salad and chicken salad, may be used.

SALAD PIQUANT

1½ cups shredded cabbage.
1 cup diced celery.
¼ cup chopped pimento.
1 cup tiny French peas.
1 cup green beans.
2 tablespoons gelatine.
½ cup cold water.
½ cup mild vinegar.
2 tablespoons lemon juice.
2 teaspons Worcestershire sauce.
2 cups boiling water.
½ cup sugar.
1 teaspoon salt.

Soak gelatine in cold water about five minutes. Add vinegar, lemon juice, Worcestershire sauce, boiling water, sugar and salt. Cool. When mixture begins to thicken add remaining ingredients. Turn into wet mold and chill in refrigerator. Serves 12.

Butterscotch Sauce for Vanilla Ice Cream

1½ cups white sugar.
1 cup brown sugar.
¼ cup boiling water.
1 teaspoon vanilla.

Mix the sirup, sugars and water and let boil for 10 minutes.

Add the vanilla and set aside to cool.

Refrigerators Of Today Boon To Budget

Of all facilities and features for which electric refrigeration in general has become famous, their insuring healthful foods and preventing the wastage that ordinarily results from so much spoilage in the household are the two of paramount importance.

They lighten the home-makers' task as well, by making it possible for her to shop less frequently, by chilling desserts quickly for her, by keeping her supplied with plenty of ice in usable size at all times, and by affording countless other such conveniences never possible before the advent of electric refrigeration.

To justify the stupendous human effort that grows, gathers, refrigerates and ships food in wholesome and appetizing perfection into market places, where it is spread out in profusion winter and summer, it is imperative that refrigeration in homes be the best obtainable.

Food must not be permitted to deteriorate after it has crossed its final threshold. Inadequate refrigeration at this point is a form of extravagance for which there seems no defense, since it is now possible to have domestic refrigeration just as effective as that which is used up to the moment food reaches its long anticipated destination.

The modern refrigerator's care is as simple as that of a piece of fine porcelain. Its durability makes possession a matter of satisfying permanence. And the saving it effects in eliminating spoilage and waste makes it a decided boon to home budgets.

Two Practical Oven Meals

Economy in electric range cookery lies in selecting dishes that can be cooked at the same temperature for the same time. The cooked courses in these two menus are cooked in an oven of 400 degrees, and take 45 minutes.

No. 1—Stuffed pork chops, baked potatoes, creamed onions, with which could be served an ice box salad in aspic, topped off perhops, with cherry pudding.

No. 2—Meat loaf, Harvard beets, patatoes au gratin, with which could be served a water cress salad, with banana pudding providing the dessert.

To Prevent Separation

In order to prevent "separation" of mixtures during the freezing process it is important that all ingredients should be at approximately the same temperatures when combined. This is particularly true when folding mixtures into whipped cream. If a mixture which is not well chilled is added to whipped cream, separation is very apt to take place during freezing.

Unwrap Fresh Meat, Put in Refrigerator

Meat should never be stored in tightly wrapped paper in an electric refrigerator. It should be placed in a clean dish, and covered with a piece of waxed paper, if desired. Cooked meats, on the contrary, dry quickly, and should be covered closely.

Cover Fish Before Placing in Ice Box

Fish must be covered closely when placed in an electric refrigerator. It should be washed thoroughly in cold water, then wiped dry. The flavor of the fish is improved by salting before storing.

Table Lights Add Zest to Yule Dinner

Electricity Big Aid To Housewife in Holiday Feast

Planning the Christmas dinner is not a difficult problem, since there are certain foods which custom has set apart as really belonging to the day, but every home manager wants her table decorations to be novel and it sometimes has seemed as if all the good ideas had been used.

Now comes electricity to her aid. Nothing lovelier could be devised than Christmas flowers of light in evergreen foliage, the arrangement being that of a huge elongated wreath. A visit to the woods, unless snow has fallen too deeply or there has been a long stretch of zero weather, will reveal many of nature's treasures that lend themselves charmingly to a scheme of this kind.

Ground pine is particularly decorative. Red berries, tiny pine cones and an astonishing number of small, growing things, may be found under a warm coverlet of leaves. One woman uses sprigs of bittersweet and baby's breath in her wreaths, and, although baby's breath may sound out of place with the sturdy and rugged character of Christmas greens, this gives a surprisingly delicate and pleasing effect.

The wiring will be invisible if skillfully done. Little Mazda lamps glowing in the hearts of red crepe-paper poinsettias, indicate the places. The huge snowball centerpiece can be readily fashioned by nimble fingers and it may serve two purposes; an ornament, made of white crepe-paper on a spherical wire foundation, with a lamp within; or as a container of favors or small gifts, in which case a round hat box can be utilized. Little dabs of paste will hold sparkling mica snow in place.

A perky bow of wide, red tulle may further ornament the snowball. Such a table laid with spotless damask, gleaming silver and glittering glass will be a satisfaction to the hostess and a joy to her guests. If "friend husband" happens to be handy he will enjoy making a miniature reproduction of the house itself for a table centerpiece.

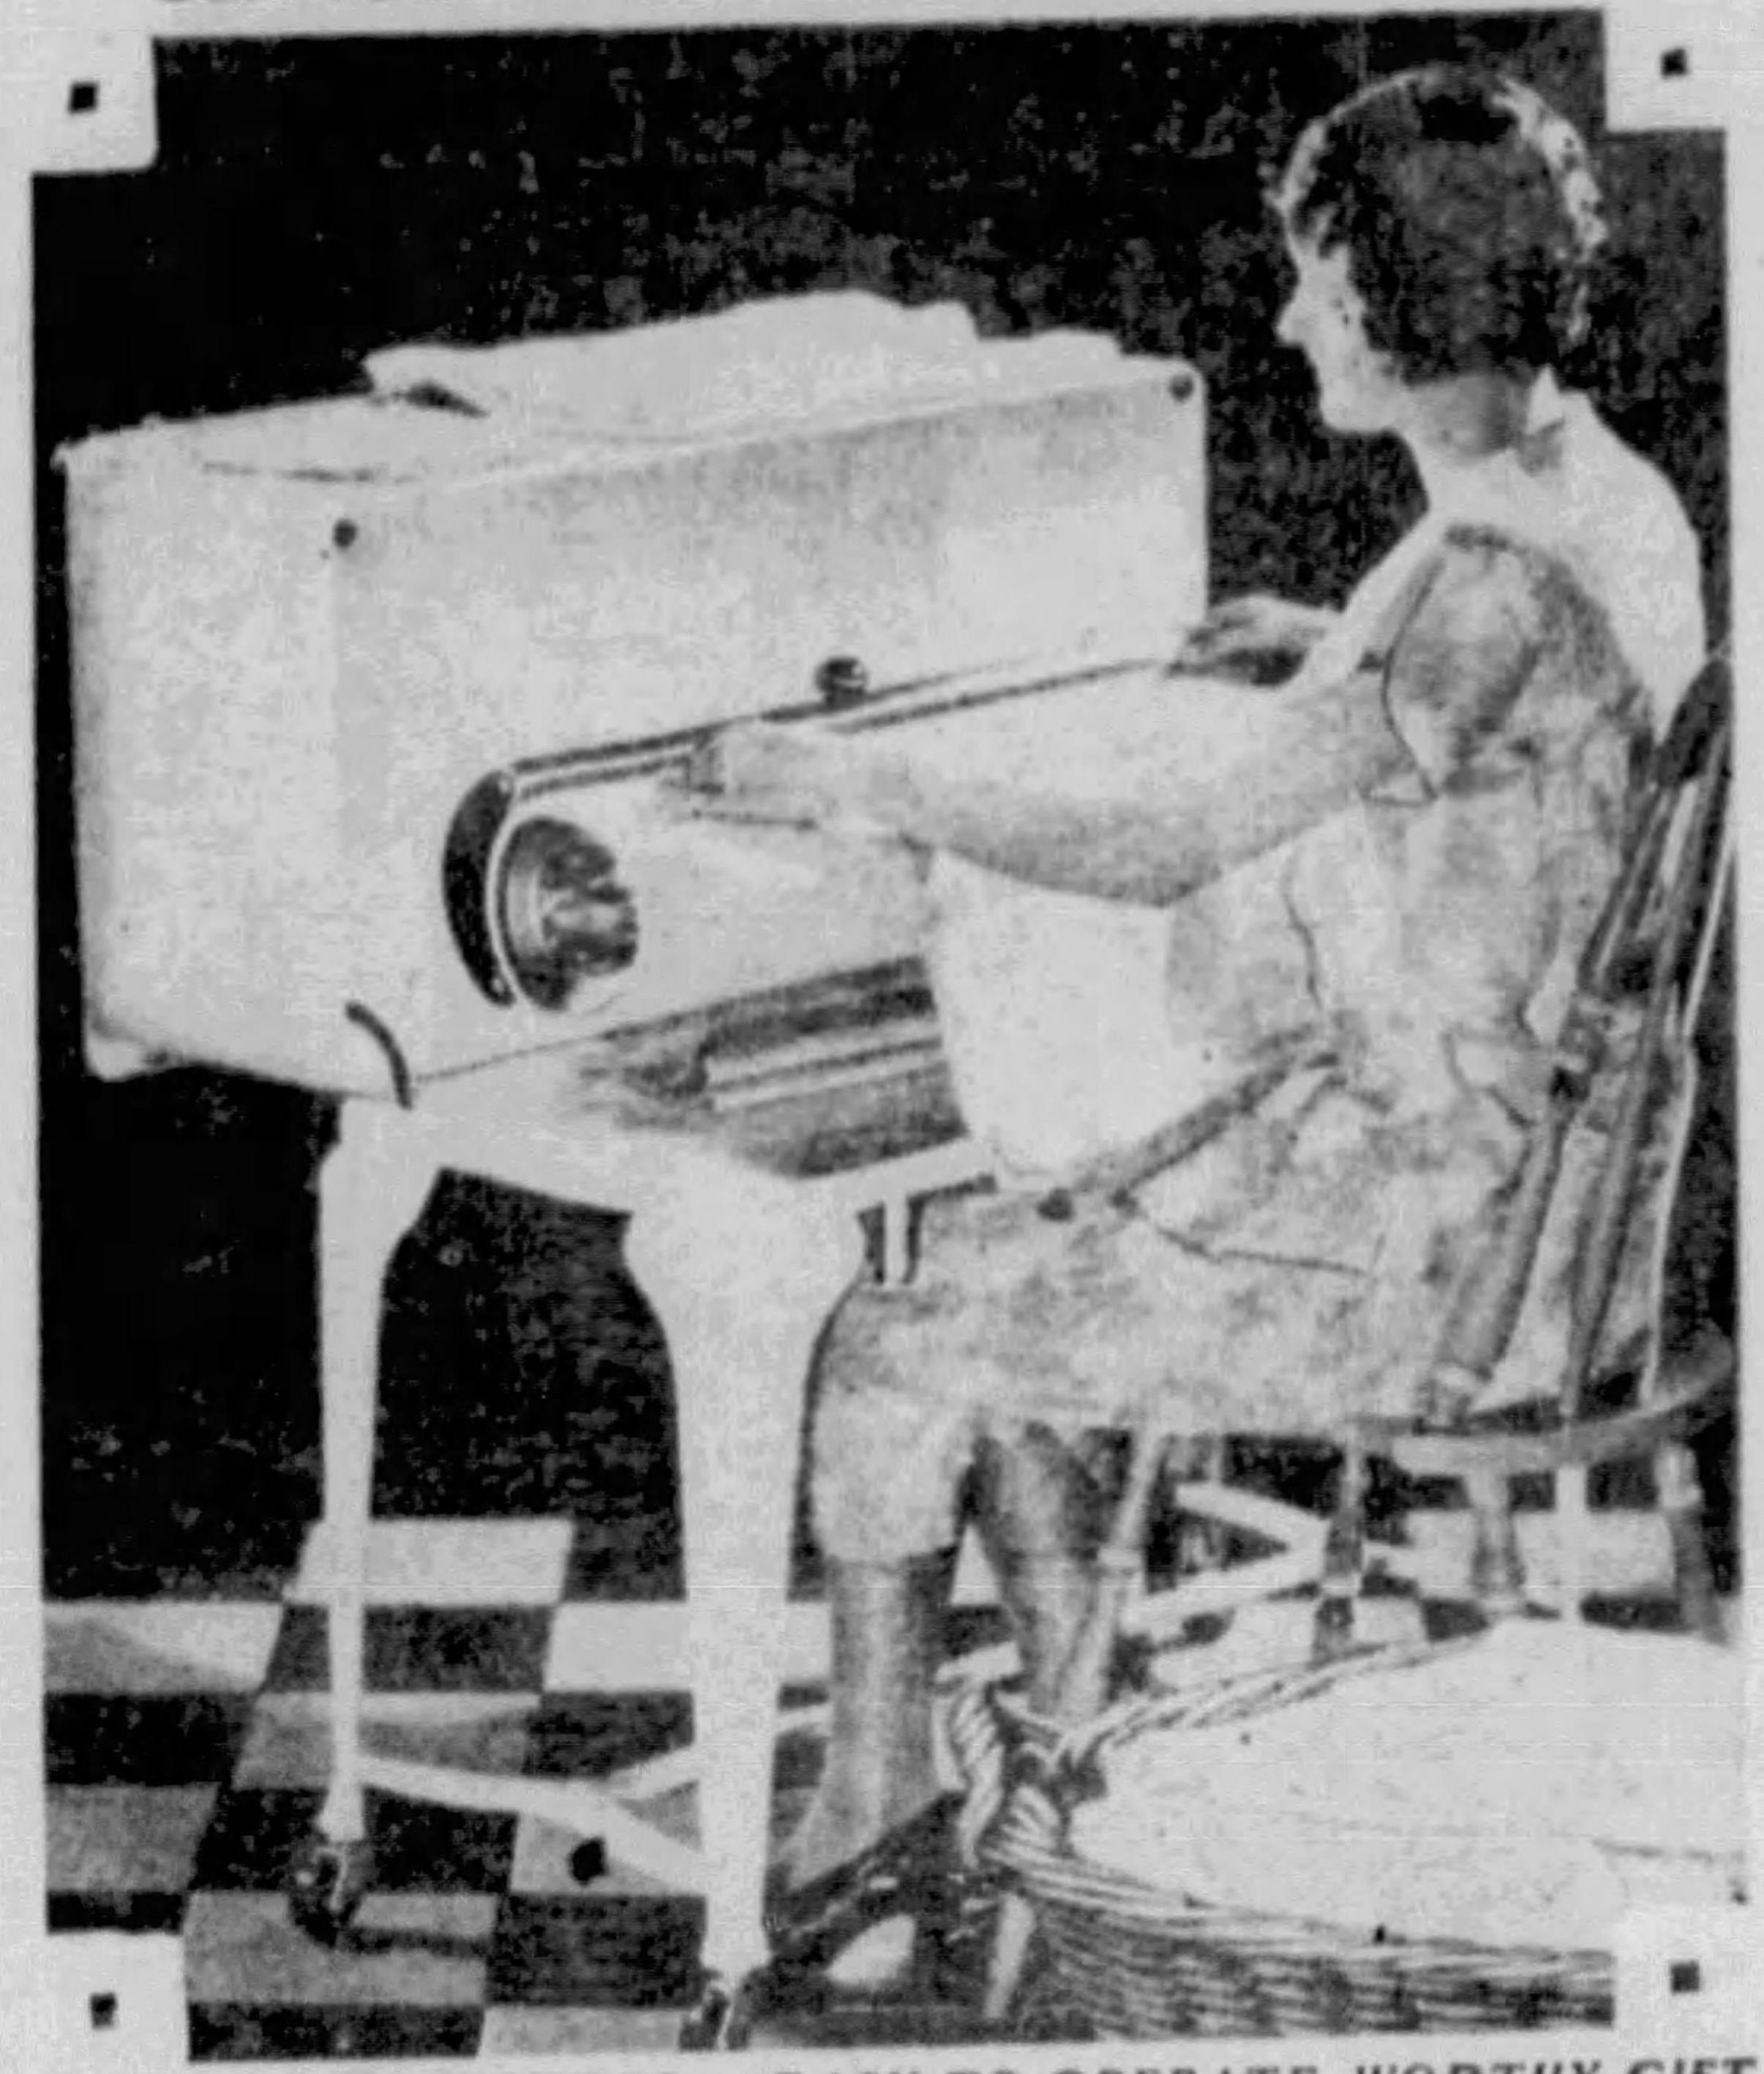
This was cleverly carried out in an instance which the guests are still delightedly talking about, with miniature lamps fed from a toy transformer representing the actual outdoor lighting of the home. The placecards were attached to sprigs of pine, each illuminated with a tiny yellow lamp, concealed under the pine needles so that it diffused its light with an unusual and pleasing effect.

The room lights were turned off just before the guests entered and the table spoke so eloquently of Christmas that there was a catch in more than one throat.

Meals Conserved By Electric Ovens

There is not the danger with an electric range oven, as with an ordinary oven, of the dinner cooling and drying out. The electric oven is heavily insulated and heat remains a considerable length of time. Since there is practically no evaporation, it is not obligatory to arrive home on schedule time.

SEATED AT HER IRONING TASK



ONE OF NEW IRONERS . . EASY TO OPERATE, WORTHY GIFT

Kitchen Drudgery Ended By Electric Table Grills

Those who eat in the kitchen these days do so from choice. No longer is it a necessity.

It used to be a help to mother to eat as near to the stove as possible. Even then it was pretty hard on her, standing over a fire built by her own hands—making endless trips from cook-stove to plate with griddle-cakes and fat little country sausages.

What the other members of the family remember of those days is the charm of watching the food cooked and having it delivered "hot off the griddle," whether they wanted one cake or a dozen.

Now mother does her breakfast cooking with many electrical cooking devices right in the dining room or breakfast nook table.

There are percolators, or drip-coffee appliances, to give individual choice in the beverage served. Eggs and creamed breakfast dishes of many kinds may be cooked speedily in compact, clean grills.

Toasters turn out evenly browned slices on the instant, either crisp or soft. Waffle-irons are constructed to cook these good Southern dainties without smoking fat, and in greater varieties than ever dreamed of: round, oblong and in many other forms. Greaseless pancakes may now be cooked at the table.

The action of these appliances is so perfect that, in a well-wired home, two or three may be going on at once, while the cook sits tranquilly in her place and chats over the morning headlines which someone reads aloud, or laughs in gayety made possible by this release from kitchen marathons.

KitchenMotor Reduces Toil

Do you remember the greatest mixing event of your childhood gastronomically speaking? The Christmas pudding, wasn't it? What muscle it required! And everyone took a hand, partly through sentiment and partly because it really was a task, if it was of any size. And then there were the eggs that were so exasperating and the cream and other whipping exactions.

The home-maker of today has no such problems—not if she possesses that great labor-saver that electricity makes possible—the kitchen motor or complete food mixing outfit. It undertakes so much of the responsibility of the preparation of foods. It will handle heating, mixing, chopping, mashing that formerly used so much of the housewife's energy.
